Roosevelt's Talk Warns Of Monopoly On Waterway

He Tells Canadians They Must Act With U. S. to Beat Trusts.

Vows Assistance If Invasion Comes

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Thousand Islands Bridge, United States-Canadian border, Aug. 18.—President Roosevelt took his arguments for the St. Lawrence Waterway to the Canadian people today and warned them that private American interests may monopolize the development, unless the Toronto and Washington governments take action.

The President advanced his arguments in dedicating the new international bridge here. Earlier today, as he accepted a degree from Queens University, Kingston, Mr. Roosevelt sternly cautioned any power that might be thinking of invading Canada that the United States would guard Canada's frontier as though it were her own.

He spoke of the new bridge, situated near the source of the St. Lawrence River, as a symbolic as well as material connection between the two countries.

Warns of "Interests."

Co-operative development of the St. Lawrence Waterway, his most cherished ambition, should go forward speedily, he said, to defeat certain interests.

"To put it bluntly," the President explained, "a group of American interests is gradually putting itself into position where, unless caution is exercised, they may in time be able to determine the economic fate of large areas on both sides of the border.

"A conception has been emerging in the United States which is not without certain magnificence. This is no less than the conviction that if a private group could control the outlet of the Great Lakes Basin, the group would have a monopoly in the development of territory larger than many of the great empires in history."

Like Chicago Speech.

The President's Kingston talk was in the spirit of his world-shaking "quarantine" speech at Chicago last year. It was interpreted as an extension to Canada of the Monroe Doctrine.

[When the Doctrine was pronounced by President Monroe, December 2, 1823, Canada was a colony of Great Britain and was excluded, with colonies then held, by European powers. Now, however, Canada has become an independent dominion.—Editor's note.]

"The Dominion of Canada is part of the sisterhood of the British Empire," Mr. Roosevelt said. "I give to you assurance that the people of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

Both governments sought to be "scrupulously fair" both toward each other and their own citizens, he said, but neither government could or should control the processes of public opinion. He added:

"We cannot prevent our people from having an opinion in regard to wanton brutality, in regard to undemocratic regimentation, in regard to violations of accepted individual rights."

Pay Ruling Bars Police Captain From Course at Institute.

Selected from 92 applicants for an eight-month fellowship at Northwestern University Traffic Safety Institute, Capt. Arthur Miller, commanding the Third Police Precinct, will be unable to accept unless some provision is made to pay his salary during the course.

CAPT. ARTHUR MILLER.

A recent ruling by Auditor Dan Donovan prohibits the District from paying Miller while he is not "actually on police duty." The fellowship carries a cash fund of $1,200, sufficient to cover expenses during training.

"At a time when the services of a trained traffic man are badly needed in Washington," said a member of the Commissioners' advisory committee on accident prevention,

Peoples Drug Truckmen Are Pledged to Post Highway Crusade.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A set of 24 "emergency" recommendations, adopted yesterday by the citizens' advisory committee on accident prevention, will be filed with the District Commissioners today as immediate proposals to combat traffic evils.

And as plans were laid to promulgate a long-range, continuing safety program for Washington, 29 delivery truck drivers for Peoples Drug Stores were pledged to prevent accidents by enrollment in The Washington Post-Junior Board of Commerce permanent highway safety crusade.

T. N. Beavers, executive vice president of Peoples, agreed to use The Post-Junior Board safety emblem as a means of promoting careful driving habits among the company's truck operators. All drivers, he said, will be summoned to a safety conference supervised by W. E. Disney, warehouse manager.

Hines' Aide Repudiates DeweyStory

Harlem Politician Signed Statement 'to Save Self,' He Swears.

Remarks of Prosecutor Draw Rebuke From Justice Pecora.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 18.—Julius Williams, colored election captain in the Eleventh Assembly District organization of James J. Hines, veteran Tammany leader, was locked up in the Tombs tonight under $10,000 bail at the request of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, following several hours of hectic cross-examination in Supreme Court, where Hines is being tried on charges of protecting the Dutch Schultz policy racket.

In his testimony today Williams repudiated a statement he had signed in the district attorney's office, July 14, and testimony which he gave on July 15 to the grand jury, which indicted Hines, to the effect that the veteran leader got him a job with George Weinberg, Schultz's principal lieutenant in the policy racket, shortly before the election of 1932, when the alliance of Hines and Schultz in politics and crime is alleged to have been in full flower.

Dewey Made Angry.

Williams, a burly, sullen and recalcitrant witness who roused the district attorney to an obvious wrath, informed the court that the statement attributed to him had been dictated by Sol Gelb, assistant district attorney on Dewey's staff, and that he had signed it only after having been left alone for a little conversation with the gangster, Weinberg, who advised him to sign it to "save" himself.

"Were you in any danger that you wanted to be saved from when you had this talk with Weinberg that you testified to," Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora asked him.

"He said I'd go to jail," replied the witness.

Pressed further by Pecora, he said there were "a lot of men" around him, and he "didn't know what would happen."

Pecora Rebukes Him.

Dewey went after the witness hammer and tongs, so sharply at times that Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief counsel for Hines was moved to intervene in protest, reminding the court that Williams was the prosecutor's own witness. "He's not my election district captain," Dewey shot back at him, and Justice Pecora cautioned him not to make any more remarks like that.

The prosecutor read off long portions of Williams' testimony before the grand jury, giving a detailed story of Hines sending him to Weinberg for a job at 351 Lenox avenue, in Harlem, where the Schultz mob had set up its policy headquarters.

"Didn't you say that?" Dewey kept shouting at the witness, only to be met by a mumbling, "I don't re-

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 18.—Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, asserting that "the President's attack on me and other members of Congress is an escalator to a dictatorship," asked the Nation to back him tonight in his fight for re-election of which the stage is Administration control of the House Rules Committee.

"Let's have it out," he said in a radio address.

"If the people of the United States desire to extend an invitation to a dictatorship, we should know about it just as speedily as possible.

"If the 'purge' is going to work in America, the sooner we know it, the better. I, for one, have no hesitancy in snatching up the gage which the President has thrown down."

O'Connor, placed by the President on the Administration's "purge" list, said the issue was "which shall it be—democracy or monocracy?"

He said the President had read at his press conference a New York newspaper editorial containing "a brief, but viciously untrue reference to me," and had added, "you can interpret that as coming from me."

Feels "Insulted."

"Nearly every man in public life . . . has been insulted by that newspaper. But it is quite different," said O'Connor, "to be insulted by the President of the United States. One naturally feels it very keenly and naturally is at a disadvantage to reply in kind.

"I would be derelict, however, in my duty as a Representative elected by the people and as an American citizen, if I did not express myself as to what I believe to be the issue now definitely raised in this country.

Committee at Stake.

"Will the 'purge' work in America?"

If O'Connor is renominated and re-elected, domination of the Rules Committee, which determines the legislation to come before the House, may pass into the hands of anti-Administration Representatives.

This would place the White House in a highly disadvantageous position for pushng legislation through Congress. The committee demonstrated its strength in the last Congress

'Whose Maryland?' Tydings Asks Voters

Senator Hints He'll Answer President's Attack Sunday; Eastern Shore Crowd Cheers His Challenge on Legislative Record.

By Edward T. Folliard
A Staff Correspondent.

Salisbury, Aug. 18.—Senator Tydings, selected personally by President Roosevelt for party "purge," had just finished a speech, and a sound truck was blaring "Maryland, My Maryland."

A farmer, his mind obviously on Washington, bellowed: "Whose Maryland is it?"

That was Tydings' theme, too. Standing on the courthouse steps of this Eastern Shore town, he told a crowd of farmers and businessmen that he would never be a "rubber-stamp or a ventriloquist's dummy."

The speech sounded very much like a rehearsal for something stronger to come. Tydings announced that he would make a radio speech Sunday evening concerning some "recent events," and this was taken to mean that he would answer the President's charge that he had "betrayed" the New Deal.

Tydings asked all those who thought he should have voted for the Supreme Court packing plan to raise their hands. None did. He asked those who wanted him to vote without debate for every Administration measure that came along to raise their hands. None did.

"If you want that kind of Senator," Tydings shouted, "please don't vote for me."

"If that's what you want, there is no need of Congress. If that's what you want, then in Heaven's name let's go back to the days before the Revolution, when King George III ruled by royal decree. But I wouldn't be that kind of Senator, if every man and woman in Maryland voted for me. Let's keep the Free State."

Tydings did not mention President Roosevelt by name. He used the term Chief Executive. Even then his sharpened criticism had to do with the power that the President would have grasped had the Supreme Court packing plan gone through, and were members of Congress now to capitulate to him entirely.

The tall, well-dressed lawmaker,

Cumberland Turns Down PWA Grant

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 18.—The city council turned down a grant of $113,000 today from the Public Works Administration after Commissioner Harry Irvine said he was "fed up on WPA and PWA and favored going ahead on any projects which are necessary with your own money."

The grant was for the construction of a $250,000 addition to the Memorial Hospital, which the council had previously accepted. The grant was rejected, however, after a conference with hospital authorities.

"The Federal Government is building up a political machine, and is using strong-arm methods on municipalities to have them accept grants," Irvine complained.

Charles Heskett, city attorney, told the council that under PWA regulations the city would be compelled to fix high wage scales for the project, which would affect future construction in the city.

"We would end up by fixing the highest scales possible, and, as a result, much of the Federal grant would be used in paying higher wages than necessary," he said.

Dunlap, Warm Admirer of President, Resigns 'to Save Integrity.'

Discharged Man Fought Talmadge, Assisted on Warm Springs.

By Robert C. Albright.

Edgar B. Dunlap, prominent Georgia Legionnaire and one of the President's warmest admirers, yesterday was removed as Atlanta counsel of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation following campaign activity for Senator George.

His resignation was requested by directors of the RFC "because of his refusal to discontinue his political activities in the face of repeated requests made by the corporation."

Immediately on receipt of the request, Dunlap wired the RFC: "I accordingly resign to preserve my independence and integrity as a citizen of the sovereign State of Georgia."

Aided Warm Springs.

Dunlap had been RFC attorney for five years and was regarded as one of the most active Roosevelt supporters in Georgia. He took a prominent part in drives for funds for the Warm Springs Foundation, the President's own project, and last winter was Georgia chairman of the President's birthday ball committee. Under his leadership, Georgia was the first State to exceed its quota of funds from the celebration.

Dunlap organized the Roosevelt Georgia home-coming celebration in 1935, fought Talmadge for Roosevelt control of the Georgia delegation to the Democratic convention in 1936, and was spearhead of the Gainesville, Ga., celebration for Roosevelt last March, when the President dedicated a local memorial. Prominent in the American Legion, last year he was a candidate for national commander.

He Will Carry On.

Dunlap said he "had as much right to be active in this campaign as District Attorney Lawrence Camp and his assistants," and that he "would continue to help Senator George to the extent of my abilities."

President Roosevelt in his recent Barnesville, Ga., speech selected George as his first "purge" victim, and asked Georgia voters to elect Camp, who is seeking to unseat him.

Informed of the Dunlap incident, Chairman Morris Sheppard, of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, instructed an investigator to proceed to Atlanta and "examine the facts."

"In Line With Policy."

The RFC said the requested resignation was "in line with its policy to have its employes refrain from active participation, aside from voting their convictions, in political campaigns."

"Every department has that rule," Senator Sheppard told reporters. "Regardless of which candidate Dunlap was supporting, the corporation had a perfect right to discharge him if he was politically active."

Sheppard said he, nevertheless, was asking a committee agent to investigate the facts.

Senator George, who recently denounced the President's interference in the State's primaries as "a second march through Georgia," commented on the resignation: "Mr. Dunlap's fine courage is unmistakable proof that the ballot of the people of Georgia cannot be controlled from Washington."

U. S. Fighters In Spain Held OGPU Dupes

By the Associated Press.

Two disillusioned young deserters from the Lincoln Battalion, a brigade of Americans fighting in the Spanish government army, told a House committee yesterday that hundreds of their former comrades wanted desperately to come home, but were being held "virtual prisoners."

The witnesses said the American fighters were being held by Communist leaders of the government forces, spied upon by "Russian OGPU" (secret police), threatened with machine guns at any sign of mutiny, and constantly in danger of execution.

Government Aid Urged.

Abraham Sobel, 23, of Boston, who said he escaped after a 200-mile walk to the French border, vowed to "make the Communists pay through the nose" for his overseas adventure. For it was they, he said, who induced him to join the Lincoln Battalion.

Japan Orders All Recruits To 'Stand By'

1,000,000 Untrained Men Are Affected by War Office Decree.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, (Friday), Aug. 19.—The Japanese war office today issued a "stand by" order to all members of the recruit division of the nation's fighting forces.

There were no official figures, but it was estimated 1,000,000 men would be affected. They are recruits, not reserves, and constitute a special group between the ages of 24 and 34 who have not received active military training.

Shanghai, Aug. 18.—Loh Lien-kwei, chief Chinese detective in the International Settlement police force, was assassinated in a public street here today, apparently in retaliation for the exposure, in this morning's newspapers, of the criminal record of Zang Yu-chin, a Chinese recently appointed to an official position in the "Tatao," the puppet municipal government here sponsored by the Japanese.

The shooting was a climax to a wave of terrorism which began here July 7.

U. S. Union Threatens to Take Job Dispute to Labor Board

A demand that the National Labor Relations Board investigate the discharge of an employe of the United States Conciliation Service, should other proposed methods of arbitration fail, was made last night by Local 12 of the United Federal Workers of America.

The demands were made at a mass meeting of the local, a C. I. O. affiliate, to protest the discharge of Mrs. Rhoda Singer. Members declared that Mrs. Singer was released because she belonged to a union.

According to the story which Mrs. Singer told at the meeting, she was hired eight months ago by the Conciliation Service, a Labor Department unit, to do secretarial work. Although she had civil service status, she was hired then upon a temporary basis, she said, but was promised a permanent position if her work proved satisfactory.

A month later, she told the meeting, Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the conciliation service, informed her that her work was "excellent," and that she would be given a permanent job and an increase in salary. Neither of these was forthcoming.

Last Friday, Mrs. Singer said, she went once more to Dr. Steelman and announced that she intended to present her case to her union. She was fired when she came into the office Monday morning.

Members of the local at the meeting last night voted unanimously to empower Miss Helen Schnitzler, their president, to appoint a committee to take action on the case.

The committee adopted resolutions asking that a four-man commission, composed of two members of the union and two conciliation service representatives, be named as an investigating body. It was provided that in the event of a disagreement a fifth impartial member be named to the commission by the original four.

Should the four members be unable to decide upon the selection of a fifth, the union committee asked that the case be referred to the National Labor Relations Board.

G.O.P. in Virginia Decides to Allow Smith Clear Field

Culpeper, Va., Aug. 18 (AP).—Eighth District Republicans today decided by a vote of 148 to 94, not to nominate a candidate in opposition to Representative Howard Smith, Democrat.

The move brought from John Locke Greene, of Arlington, who led the fight for a nominee, the statement that "the convention decided to turn the Republican Party in the Eighth District over to the Democrats and Howard Smith."

Representative Smith, who has opposed the President in some particulars, recently defeated William E. Dodd, jr., for the Democratic nomination.

Pastor Kills Maid, Then Burns Home

Stanton, N. D., Aug. 18.—State's Attorney Floyd Sperry, of Mercer County, said tonight the Rev. Helo Jannsen, Lutheran minister at Krem, had confessed poisoning and attempting to burn Alma Kruckenberg, 16, to hide the girl's pregnancy.

The crime was revealed, in the absence of Mrs. Jannsen, when the ten-room parsonage at Krem was destroyed by fire Monday night. The body of Alma, who had been the Jannsens' maid, was found in the basement.

Commissioners Order 2 Police Tried in Death of Leroy Keys

The District Commissioners yesterday ordered Police Privates Robert M. Henry and John W. Nally before the Police Trial Board for their connection with the death of Leroy Keys, colored war veteran, last March.

The order followed an extensive review of testimony before the coroner's jury and grand jury, by Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, into the death of Keys. The policemen were held guiltless in both cases.

In his report to the Commissioners Seal stated:

"In the matter of the killing of Leroy Keys, occurring on March 8, 1938 and as to which an ignoramus was returned by the grand jury on March 23, in respect to the policeman whose bullet caused Leroy Keys' death, I am requested 'for an opinion as to whether or not there is evidence to warrant drafting charges against these officers and reference to the Trial Board.'

"In their efforts to take Keys into custody they fired into the apartment occupied by Keys in which he had barricaded himself. Keys' death was due to a shot fired by Private Nally."

Failure of the grand jury to indict on a charge of homicide is inconclusive, in Seal's opinion, he stated.

Seal pointed out the situation wherein policemen may use their service revolvers. In this connection he said:

"Neither of these policemen could have been in fear of their lives, one being behind a tree and one behind a wall, and neither in the room with Leroy Keys, and even if they may have believed from the circumstances that the elderly persons in the room above Keys' apartment were in danger of their lives, no attempt was made by them to obtain entrance from the rear or any other point of the building, or to employ tear gas. There was no crime or arson committed as intimated in one police report, if Keys was burning his own furniture."

Doughton Says He Will Oppose Tax Increase

Ways and Means Chairman Sees Possibility, However, of Levy on U. S. Bonds.

Opposition to any "substantial increase" in taxes was voiced here yesterday by Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, who said he hoped improving business will make any sharp tax raise unnecessary.

But Doughton saw prospects "of possible additional revenue" from proposed legislative action lifting exemptions on Federal, State and local securities.

At the same time it was learned the Administration is preparing to move next session to tap this now protected pool of potential receipts. Intensive studies both of security tax exemptions and existing bans on reciprocal taxation of Federal and local official salaries, were nearing completion.

President Gets Report.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill, who will soon leave the Treasury for private practice, revealed he laid progress reports on the studies before President Roosevelt at a recent luncheon. The President's own proposal for taxing income from future issues of Federal, State and local bond issues, by direct legislation rather than a constitutional amendment, was discussed at the luncheon.

The Joint Committee on Internal Revenue, Congressional adjunct of the House Ways and Means and the Senate Finance Committees, is cooperating with the Treasury in the studies. Experts have been having difficulty estimating revenue possible under the President's tax proposal, as taxpayers are not forced to report tax-exempt holdings, and there is no exact knowledge of brackets in which the securities lie.

Finds Country Favorable.

Chairman Doughton, recuperating from a severe illness, said he thought the country generally favors taxation of tax-exempts. But to derive any "early" revenue from that source, Doughton said it would be necessary for Congress to take direct action. He said a Constitutional amendment would delay tax collections in that field for years.

A special committee of the Senate, headed by Senator Brown (Democrat), Michigan, shortly will open hearings on the comparative wisdom of moving directly by legislation, or amending the Constitution.

Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee, said recently that unless business improves it may be necessary to lower income tax exemptions and increase rates in the middle brackets.

Doughton yesterday took partial issue with that view.

"I am hoping we won't have to increase any taxes materially," said the Ways and Means chairman. "We have raked and scraped the field pretty well already. We couldn't increase the highest income tax brackets any higher than they are and I hope it will not be necessary to broaden the base and increase taxes in the middle brackets.

"I favor first getitng the whole picture and then if we must raise any more revenue, raising it where it would be least burdensome."

Doesn't Want "Fight.'

Asked if restoration of the 1936 undivided profits tax may be an issue again, as suggested by the President in his Reedville speech, Doughton said:

"We have had one fight on that. I hope we don't have to get into another."

Doughton agreed with Harrison that in the next session tax policies would be largely dependent on business conditions, but he was optimistic about the busines outlook.

"Business is improving rapidly in my section of the country. It is good in other sections, and I expect it to be much better when more of the Government's recovery money gets working. There is plenty of money to loan, and anybody who has any credit can get money."

Sure of Extensions.

Doughton said he regarded it as virtually certain that some $200,000,000 in nuisance taxes expiring next year will be extended and that "some further adjustments may be made in the tax system." But he declared the existing tax structure if business improves should be sufficient to meet current needs.

"If business continues to improve, relief needs will decrease and Treasury receipts will go up," he said. "That would tend to bring receipts and expenditures nearer together.

"What the country really wants is a situation whereby the expenses of the Government can be greatly reduced. I do hope we can decrease expenditures. I am in favor of raising enough revenue to meet current needs, but I think we can get along without increasing the public debt."

Medical Society Sued for 3 Millions

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—Suit for $3,000,000 damages was filed in Federal court today against the American Medical Association and six individuals on behalf of the Hirestra Laboratories, Inc., of New York, manufacturer of a facial cream.

The bill of complaint alleged the defendants conspired to injure the company by saying its products were harmful.

The bill alleged the association was controlled by a "hierarchy of high salaried officers" who discouraged the use of remedies without first consulting a physician.

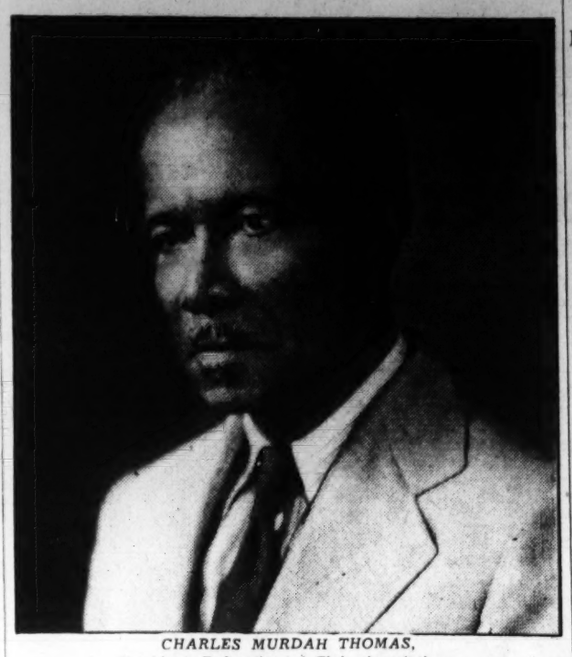
Working for Washington

Housing, Suffrage Are Aims Of Colored Federation Head



CHARLES MURDAH THOMAS,
President, Federation of Civic Associations.

Charles M. Thomas Sees Local Racial Problem Intensified by Influx of Rural Folk; Battles 'Side Show' of Harlem Type.

With a higher percentage of colored persons in its population than is to be found in any other American city except New Orleans, Washington—since days following the Civil War—has been the proving ground for theories connected with the Nation's inter-racial problem.

The local problem is intensified because it is neither that of the North nor of the South, and because to the best educated and most urbanized members of the race—which are found here in great numbers—annually are added droves of the least educated and the most rural.

Charles Murdah Thomas, president of the Federation of Civic Associations and a long-time leader in efforts of the District's colored people to assume responsibility for their own elevation, estimates that 77,000 of the 160,000 Negroes today in the National Capital were born "south of the Potomac."

Urbanization Is Aim.

"Probably more than members of other races they look toward Washington as the place where all their worries will be washed away. It has become a habit with them," he says. The urbanization of these rural-minded oncomers is one of his special interests. He hopes that they can be fitted into the local colored pattern of life and that the whole pattern can be incorporated into the District as a real American element—not as a "side show" of the Harlem variety.

Twenty-one affiliated groups with a membership totaling close to 1,000 make up the Federation of Civic Associations. Its principal objectives for the coming year, according to Thomas, have to do with the local housing problem as typified in work of the Alley Dwelling Authority and with a study of the suffrage problem "in its relation to the need for increased Federal expenditure in the District." The organization has gone on record in favor of local suffrage, but is not interested in national representation for the District.

A native of the District and the son of a father who was an attorney here during the Reconstruction era, Thomas studied both law and medicine—but turned to economics and social science after the World War because he believed that without direction through social service his people were destined to become the American peasantry. He is a teacher of civics and economics at Armstrong High School, a member of the committee appointed to revise the tax structure of the District and a well known journalist.

Hails Movement.

The community center movement is hailed by Thomas as the "great socializing agency" of today. A right understanding of it, he believes, will prevent the "oppression psychosis" which he sees increases everywhere among the masses who "do not understand the social movements that affect them."

Johnson terms himself a "plain-living conservative" and has always looked upon American citizenship as a two-sided affair in which the duties equaled the rights and in which privileges should be matched with responsibilities. He is as proud of the letters of commendation he received for his work as a night foreman of a garage in 1906 and 1907 as the praise which has come his way for establishing a laboratory for the study of experimental psychology at Miner Normal School, for editing the Daily American, for starting the Progressive Consumer Magazine, and for other evidences of his intellectual leadership.

"A revival of the old faith, in this new age, will alone keep America off the rocks," he declares.

On Monday—Maj. Campbell C. Johnson, secretary of the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A., will be next in the "Working for Washington" series.

Teachers Union For Labor Truce

Cedar Point, Ohio, Aug. 18 (AP).—The American Federation of Teachers in a resolution today urged the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization to end the breach in the labor movement.

The resolution indorsed the principles of industrial unionism and called upon the A. F. of L. executive council to reopen negotiations with the C. I. O. to mend differences between the two organizations, and to co-operate on issues designed to further economic, cultural and political advancement of labor. The Teachers' Union, in convention here, is affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Aged Better Off Here, Study Finds

Though 24,500 men and women in the District over 65 are dependent on public or private charity, Washington is better off than other large cities in this regard, the District of Columbia Life Underwriters announced yesterday. Washington's favorable position, the association said, is due to the large number of Federal pensions distributed here.

Approximately 70 per cent of the indigent aged, the association said, are supported by friends and relatives; the remaining 30 per cent depend on Federal and organized public and private charities. The 12,900 who are self-dependent receive support from current earnings, savings or securities, military, civil service and other pensions and insurance annuities.

Comdr. Jones Renamed To Presidential Yacht

Lieut. Comdr. Walter R. Jones has been appointed to succeed Lieut. Comdr. A. D. Clark as commander of the Presidential yacht Potomac and naval aide at the White House, it was announced yesterday by the Navy Department.

Commander Jones was ranking officer aboard the Potomac in 1934-35 and on its predecessor, the Sequoia, in 1933-34, and subsequently served on the U. S. S. Oklahoma. Commander Clark has been named navigating officer of the new light cruiser Phoenix.

800 Midshipmen Home From Tour

Norfolk, Aug. 18 (AP).—Their summer training completed, approximately 800 midshipmen from the United States Naval Academy arrived in Norfolk aboard the battleships Texas and Wyoming this afternoon for a round of gayety which will end Tuesday when they sail for Annapolis.

They joined approximately 350 other midshipmen who arrived last Saturday aboard the battleship New York, third ship in the training squadron, which is tied up at the Norfolk Navy Yard for repairs.

Pleurisy Strikes Unity Mitford

London, Aug. 18 (AP).—With the departure for Germany of Baron Redesdale, it was disclosed today that his daughter, "Aryan blonde" Unity Mitford, one of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's most ardent British champions, was ill of pleurisy at Bayreuth. Miss Mitford's mother, Lady Redesdale, flew to her bedside several days ago and Lord Redesdale left last night.

One version said Miss Mitford suffered sunstroke at Breslau because she stood hatless for hours awaiting a glimpse of the Fuehrer and that pleurisy developed.

Inquiry Hears Lilienthal on Berry Marble

By the Associated Press.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 18.—TVA Director David E. Lilienthal took the stand today to give his first testimony on the Berry marble deal, but digressed almost immediately to renew his criticism of Arthur E. Morgan, ousted TVA chairman.

Lilienthal said he had been criticized for "hiding" a memorandum which voiced suspicion of "fraud" in the marble and mineral claims of United States Senator George L. Berry and associates. Terming the criticism unjust, the TVA director said he had never seen the document prior to a condemnation hearing.

"It's inconceivable, however," he continued, "that Arthur E. Morgan did not have it as he and Bock (Assistant Chief Engineer Carl Bock) were very close."

"Everybody knows Bock hardly takes a drink of water without asking Morgan," Lilienthal added.

Second Round on Stand.

It was Lilienthal's second round of testimony before the Congressional committee investigating TVA. In his first he reviewed his and incumbent Chairman Harcourt Morgan's squabble with the ousted director.

The memorandum was written in 1934 by Edwin C. Eckel, TVA geologist, to Bock. Lilienthal said it was in March, 1935, before he heard of the Berry claims.

At that time, he testified, Bock advised the TVA directors of the claims and suggested a settlement if it could be arranged for $2,000 or $3,000."

Facts Distorted, He Says.

Lilienthal said distortions of facts incident to the Eckel memorandum had resulted in unwarranted criticism of him and Harcourt Morgan since the investigation started.

A report by TVA geologists holding that the Berry marble had "no commercial value" was made June 1, 1936, Lilienthal testified.

He said he received a memorandum June 23 from Arthur E. Morgan in which the former chairman said "the President should be informed of the situation."

"This was the first time," Lilienthal said, "I knew Arthur Morgan expressed an opinion this should go to the President.

"The thing that went through my mind was why it should go to the President and what he could do about it. It seemed our job was to see we didn't pay for something of no value."

Lilienthal said he did not believe in "blackmailing" anyone.

Sees "Vindictiveness."

"I felt this attempt to drag in the President was an exhibition of vindictiveness because I was reappointed and because he (Dr. Morgan) didn't get the veto power he asked for."

Lilienthal asserted the authority had a "clear road" to follow since if no value was established the Government was protected and if there were value, "obviously he was entitled to recover."

Colored workers on the TVA's Chickamauga Dam have been kicked, cursed and treated "brutally" by their foremen and walking bosses Charles H. Houston, colored special counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told the committee.

The committee ordered TVA Personnel Director Gordon R. Clapp to prepare a report on complaints.

First New Mt. Pleasant Trolley Arrives in City

The first of 50 new streamlined trolleys, which will be placed on the Mount Pleasant line, Routes 40, 42 and 44, has arrived in Washington, the Capital Transit Co. announced yesterday. The company said it expected to have the Mount Pleasant line completely equipped with streamliners by the middle of September.

The new cars, which cost $17,000 each, will bring the city's streamlined fleet to 115. They are almost exactly like those already in service.

The Gallup Poll:

Opinion Toward Third Term Still Unfavorable Despite Pressure on Roosevelt to Run.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Aug. 18.—Speculation on a third term for President Roosevelt continues to increase as the President conducts his vigorous campaign to produce a smashing administration victory in the fall elections.

GALLUP.

With pressure already being brought upon him by New Deal spokesmen, State Governors and various labor groups to run again in 1940, what is the attitude of the public? The issue is clear—a popular President brought face to face with a strong American traditioin against the third tetrm.

At periodic intervals for the last 20 months the Institute has found sentiment consistently upholding the tradition against third terms. Once, in July, 1937, the number of persons favoring a third term for Roosevelt rose as high as 37 per cent, but it has generally averaged not more than 30 to 33 per cent. Today the proportion of voters favoring a third term is 31 per cent, with 69 per cent opposed.

The vote against a third term is not to be confused with the Institute's index of Roosevelt's popularity at this point in his second term. As reported last week, 56 per cent of the major party voters approve of Roosevelt as President today, though many of these persons would not favor him for a third term.

However, the antithird term vote does not necessarily indicate what President Roosevelt's political strength would be if he actually did decide to throw his hat into the ring for a third time.

It is quite possible that if, in 1940, the voters find no candidate who, in their estimation, can match Roosevelt, many of them may decide to ignore the third term tradition and vote for him.

Some evidence of this likelihood is contained in today's survey. Whereas only 31 per cent say they think Roosevelt should run in 1940, a somewhat larger number—approximately 40 per cent—say they would vote for him if he actually succeeded in obtaining the nomination. This group is composed chiefly of Democrats, and of these Democrats the majority are in the lower economic levels.

Throughout many surveys the Institute has found that persons on relief are the most strongly in favor of Roosevelt for a third term.

But even the 40 per cent who say they would votoe for him would not constitute a large enough number to give him victory. Sentiment would have to change more in the next two years than it has in the past two in order to put him in the lead if he should decide to run. As long as third term talk continues the Institute will make periodic tests of opinion which will be reported in Washington exclusively in The Post.

In one recent survey the Institute found that a substantial number of voters,—36 per cent—think the President will seek a third term, and an even larger—51 per cent—think he will win if he does run.

The chart line shows percentage of voters who, in Institute surveys since December, 1936, have said they favor a third term for President Roosevelt.. Supplementary studies show that about one-third of the voters think he will run in 1940, and that approximately one-half think he will win if he does run.

U. S. Breaks Up Fake Lottery Ring

Boston, Aug. 18 (AP).—Smashing of a nationwide fake lottery ring was announced today by Jackson J. Holtz, assistant United States Attorney for Massachusetts and Tennyson Jefferson, assistant chief postal inspector, upon their return to the city with approximately six tons of lottery tickets.

Close to 100 Federal indictments will be sought, they said. Approximately 20,000,000 tickets, with a face value of $1 each, were distributed annually by the ring, which they said had operated 15 years with "political protection."

Federal Union to See '38 'Miss Washington'

Dorothy Parker, "Miss Washington of 1938," will perform at the Union Playhouse August 30 in the Agriculture Department Auditorium, under the auspices of Agriculture Branch of Local No. 2, National Federation of Federal Employes.

The program will include "Dangerous Dusts," an agriculture film dealing with dust explosions, and a United States Steel technicolor film, "Steel—Man's Servant." Four other acts are promised.

AAA Maps Boost In Virginia's Leaf Marketing Quota

By the Associated Press.

Farm Administration officials worked yesterday on increases in flue-cured tobacco marketing quotas for Virginia and North Carolina as well as for Georgia. Announcement that the quotas for Virginia and North Carolina would be increased was made yesterday.

Total increases will amount to "several million pounds," officials said.

A minimum for small farms equal at least to average production in the three preceding years was established by the 1938 farm law, under which the quota system was invoked. This provision, AAA officials said, caused inequitable allotments to some of the larger farms in Virginia and North Carolina as well as in Georgia.

Negotiation to Settle Rail Strike Stalemated

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—The Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad and its union employes were in a stalemate tonight over a 15 per cent wage cut order which led to suspension of operations Tuesday. Conciliator Harry E. Scheck of the Federal Labor Department said the situation was "serious" and called for assistance.

Briton, Henlein Fail to Break CzechDeadlock

Autonomy, Racial Equality Reported Conditions for Continued Talks.

By the United Press.

Prague, Aug. 18.—Viscount Runciman, British unofficial mediator, late today failed to break a deadlock in the Czechoslovak minority crisis after motoring across the country to a secretly arranged meeting with Sudeten German Leader Konrad Henlein in an old German castle.

The "Czechoslovak Hitler," meeting Lord Runciman for the first time, refused to yield on his militant demands for Sudeten autonomy or alter his formal rejection of the government's proposed minority reform statute as a basis for negotiation.

The meeting between the two men—key figures in a situation crammed with the possibilities of war for all Europe—occurred near the German frontier. Lord Runciman was greeted with the Nazi salute.

Lord Runciman sought some kind of "stop gap" formula which would prevent collapse of negotiations.

Stringent Conditions.

Deep pessimism developed among diplomats in Prague shortly after Runciman's return from his two-hour talk with Henlein, when it was reported that the Sudeten leader had laid down three stringent points to which Premier Hodza and the government's coalition party leaders must agree before negotiations are resumed.

These provisions were said to be:

Local self-government for the Sudetens must form an "integral part" of the negotiations.

There must be an understanding of general principles before specific subjects can be discussed in detail.

The German people as a group must be expressly recognized as having complete equality with the Czechs in conduct of the state, and not as a minority people with lesser rights.

If these conditions are agreed to by the government, Henlein intimated there might be a possibility of some compromise between his eight-point Carlsbad autonomy demands and the government's proposal.

Henlein was said to have emphasized to Runciman that there will be no weakening of the Sudeten demands or any retreat from the Carlsbad program which, according to the government's version, would establish a "state within a state."

The Sudeten leader also was said to have told Runciman that his 14-point memorandum of June 7 was ignored completely by the government although it offered a "workable modus operandi for the Carlsbad program."

Issue Clear, Says Berlin.

Berlin, Aug. 18 (AP).—The German foreign office mouthpiece, Deutsche Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, today declared Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German minority had put its autonomy demands anew in such "a clear factual manner" that the Prague government could not evade the issue.

The foreign office mouthpiece said the Czechoslovak government's task now is to reveal "whether it will continue to pass over the heart of the matter, or at last give up its blind policy, revise its standpoint and thereby manifest its will to come to an agreement which will lead to a peaceful and final solution."

The publication declared "the answer also is awaited by the rest of the world in the interests of maintaining European peace."

Japanese Convert Runs Propaganda For Chinese Reds

Chinese Guerrilla Headquarters, Central Hopeh Province, North China—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—A 23-year-old Japanese soldier "converted" to the Chinese cause is serving as director of "enemy propaganda" for Chinese guerrilla forces in this area.

The Japanese is called "Big Scar" by his new comrades. He was captured January 11 when an enraged farmer leaped on him, knocking his gun down, and dug his teeth into the forehead just above the eye.

"All spring I have been treated more like a foreign ambassador than a prisoner," Big Scar told a reporter. "I received the best food the guerrillas have. They even gave me a bath once a week at a rich man's bathhouse in the headquarters town. This was a privilege denied even to the commander in chief."

Big Scar now has traveled more than 5,000 miles by horseback and motor car, visiting the fighting fronts in this guerrilla state, sending secret letters across the lines to Japanese soldiers.

British Aide Held By German Police

Vienna, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—German gestapo (secret police) agents were reported tonight to be holding the passport officer of the British consulate, Capt. Thomas J. Hendrick, under arrest in the Hotel Metropole after seizing him near Salzburg en route to a vacation in England.

A suggested explanation was that his passport lists him as "captain" and he failed to register with Nazi authorities as not being in the regular British military service. The British war ministry last Saturday warned British military officers in the active services that Germany had prohibited their presence in six specified military zones.

Duce Inspects His Island Base Threatening British Lifeline

Travels 700 Miles—His Longest Flight—to View New Fortifications on Pantelleria Which May Offset England's Malta.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Aug. 18.—Premier Mussolini today made a flying inspection of Italy's new Mediterranean stronghold, Pantelleria Island, which flanks Britain's empire lifeline.

Some foreign circles considered the flight as intended to impress Britain and France with Italy's armed strength in the Mediterranean.

Flying his own bombing plane at 180 miles an hour for the 700-mile round trip, Il Duce was back in Rome in time for lunch.

Although the journey became known here only after it was completed, the press declared "it could not be a more significant gesture."

The trip was made at a time when Italy's relations with France and Britain are impaired by continued Italian activity in Spain and other points of contention.

The fortification of Pantelleria as an air base at the point where Mediterranean shipping lanes pass through the 100-mile-wide bottleneck between Italian Sicily and French Tunisia, would tend, in the opinion of some observers, to offset Britain's control from Malta.

The newspaper La Tribuna said, "a powerful stronghold has been constituted where so often has been concentrated the curiosity of those who fear our indomitable Mediterranean power."

The Fascist press, applauding the flight, said that it was the longest Mussolini ever had made.

It was announced that Mussolini "closely inspected the works of the base" and saluted cheering islanders.

The visit was the first public indication of the island's further development since the Ethiopian war, when its commanding position in the Mediterranean narrows attracted attention.

Il Duce was the first member of any national government, Italians said, to call at Pantelleria "within the memory of man."

Konoye Proposes Civilization.

Milan, Italy (Friday), Aug. 19 (AP).—Premier Prince Konoye of Japan suggested today in a message to Premier Mussolini's newspaper the creation of "Universal civilization" as an outgrowth of Italian-Japanese friendship.

"The anti-comitern pact (the Italian-German-Japanese anti-Communism agreement) established a united cultural front between two extremely ancient civilizations," the message said.

"The friendship existing between Italy and Japan, therefore, has a profound historic value as a point of departure towards creation of a universal civilization which could grow precisely out of this collaboration of Rome and Tokyo."

Lindberghs Sit With High Reds At Flying Show

Hundreds of Thousands See Mass Parachute Jump at Moscow.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, Aug. 18.—Russian fliers today staged a thrilling three-hour spectacle in celebration of the Soviet "Aviation Day," holding spellbound a gathering of several hundred thousands which included Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The American flying couple, who arrived yesterday from Warsaw, were seated with high Soviet officials at some distance from other foreigners, diplomats and correspondents.

The program began with the ascension of a gigantic portrait of Joseph Stalin lifted by a globe-shaped balloon on which was painted a map of the world. Portraits of other Soviet leaders followed, towed by plain balloons.

Most picturesque feature of the show was the mass jumping of several hundred parchutists. For a moment opening parachutes seemed to fill completely the sky in front of the spectators.

Afterward, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were dinner guests of the United States charge d'affaires, Alexander C. Kirk, at Spasso House, the embassy residence.

Lindbergh maintained his usual reticence concerning his plans and the purpose of his trip to the Soviet Union, but it was understood he and his wife would fly to Russian cities and be shown the industrial and agricultural achievements of the Soviet regime.

Among the spectators who stayed to the very end were Dr. Marcelino Paccua, the Spanish republican government's envoy to Moscow, and Mamoru Shigemitsu, the Japanese Ambassador to Moscow.

British, French Cheer, Fascists Deplore Talk

Roosevelt Must Have Been Thinking of Japan, Italians Say.

President Roosevelt's redefinition of the Monroe Doctrine to include United States defense of Canada against invasion dominated British and Canadian news today, provoking almost unanimous enthusiasm.

The strictures on Nazi-Fascist brutality and curtailment of individual freedom with which Mr. Roosevelt garnished his declaration at Queens University, Kingston, pleased French publicists. Commentators in the Democratic bloc of nations saw in the speech as a whole a deliberate strengthening of America's alignment against the totalitarian states. Spokesmen in Rome agreed, complaining of the President's "entirely unnecessary severity."

Mr. Roosevelt, some Italians said, must have been talking about Japan, but did he think the Japanese so naive as to suppose they could attack Canada without provoking the United States

"Best Neighbor in World."

The new version of the Monroe Doctrine "is all the stronger for being founded on reality," said the Montreal Star, which believed Mr. Roosevelt spoke for a united, unanimous nation. The Winnipeg Tribune displayed the headline "The Best Neighbor in the World" and urged the Ottawa government to reply with "something ringing."

Captioned "Roosevelt's Pledge to Canada" the Roosevelt speech drove German maneuvers, Spanish war and Czech crisis off the front pages in Britain. London comments:

"Vital for Peace."

"Momentous pledge . . . part of the history of the British Empire," Daily Herald (Laborite).

"Vital factor for world peace," Evening Star.

"United States opinion is marshaling beneath the standard of freedom," Daily Telegraph.

But the Mail, which often speaks kindly of Hitler, declared the very cordiality of Mr. Roosevelt's speech "may even inspire attempts to read more into the President's words than is justified."

French officials expressed "great pleasure" at the American President's speech, citing it as proof that the "democracies of the world are standing together."

Only one Berlin newspaper carried any reference to the speech. Officials quarters, declining to comment, said there had not been time to study the declaration.

Toronto, Aug. 18 (Canadian Press). Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario said today his government never would give its consent to development of the St. Lawrence River as a waterway and source of electric power.

Loyalists Claim Recapture of Gandesa Hills

Smashing Ebro Victory, Halting of Almaden Drive Reported.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France, Aug. 18.—The Spanish government today reported victories on the two most important civil war battlefronts—in the Ebro River valley and west of Almaden, the mercury mining center.

Barcelona advices said Ebro River forces had smashed their way back into complete control of hills dominating Gandesa, recovering positions lost to the insurgents since the July 26 push across the river in south Catalonia.

In the south, where the insurgents have been striving to take over some of Spain's richest natural resources, the government reported it had blocked the two-pronged drive toward Almaden.

Insurgent dispatches indicated the southern insurgent campaign merely was being held up to permit reinforcements necessitated by the new government resistance.

Barcelona reported Gen. Franco's crack fourth Navarrese division was wiped out in the defeat of an insurgent offensive in the Pandos mountains south of Gandesa. Three Moroccan regiments, four Spanish divisions and a Moroccan cavalry brigade were said to have been crippled in a vain assault on a solid wall of government machine guns.

The government estimated the insurgents had lost 20,000 men on the Ebro front in the last six days.

Conference Hinted.

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 18 (AP). Simultaneous appearance in Zurich today of the premier of government Spain and the Spanish insurgent representative to London inspired reports that the two had met as representatives of the warring Spanish factions.

Swiss sources were inclined to discount a statement by Dr. Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier, that he came to Zurich only to attend the International Congress of Physiologists.

Associates of the Duke of Alba, insurgent representative in London, declined to disclose why he was in Zurich. He and Negrin had suites at different hotels, both of which were guarded.

Nazi in Hungary Given 3 Months

Budapest, Aug. 18 (AP).—The superior court today sentenced the Hungarian Nazi leader, Imre Kemeri-Nagy, to three months in prison for insulting Parliament.

Kemeri-Nagy was accused of suggesting in a campaign speech that the government seat 280 donkeys in the Hungarian Parliament in place of the present deputies because "they for much less money would nod their heads for yes and amen to any government proposal."

3 Held in Death Of D. C. Youth Grilled 8 Hours

Solution of Sanford Mystery Slaying Expected by Officers.

Speedy solution of the mystery surrounding the death of 20-year-old George E. Sanford was anticipated last night after police grilled for eight hours three youths held in connection with the case.

"We are satisfied that these three men are the only ones implicated in the case," Lieut. George Darnall, chief of the Homicide Squad, declared.

Two of the boys, Leroy Evans, 19, of the first block of Fifteenth street northeast, and George Molloy, 18, of the 1100 block North Capitol street, were captured in Richmond Wednesday night on a tip furnished police by the mother of one. They were arrested at a telegraph office, awaiting a response to their wire appeal for funds from home.

The third youth questioned yesterday was James D. Posey, 22, 600 block of D street southeast, arrested Saturday and since held at the Fifth Precinct Station. He was returned there late yesterday while officers of the Homicide Squad continued to quiz Evans and Molloy.

Both mothers saw their sons at police headquarters yesterday afternoon and conferred at length with Lieut. Darnall.

Police believed they knew the identity of a colored man thought to have been in the car with three young men early Saturday morning when Sanford was fatally wounded in the chest.

Suffering from an infected gunshot wound in the hand, Evans was given an injection of antitetanus serum at Gallinger Hospital shortly after he and Malloy were brought here from Richmond by Detective Sergts. John Wise and Dewey Guest.

One of the youths who brought Sanford's body into Children's Hospital had been shot in the hand, a nurse said. The boys told the attendant their friend had been shot by a bandit.

Malloy and Evans told police they had driven from Washington to Philadelphia and back again Saturday, hitch-hiking Sunday to Richmond, and then as far as Wake Forest, N. C. They returned to Richmond Tuesday, they said.

Lloyds Refuses Bet World Won't End Before Sept. 1

Philadelphia, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Lloyds of London, reputedly willing to take a chance on anything, declined with regret today to bet a million dollars that the world will not end before September 1.

The insurance company's New York office, replying to the request of William A. A. Castellini, publicity director of Franklin Institute, for a $1,000,000 policy against a September 1 end to everything earthly, said, "Regret cannot entertain your interesting proposition."

France Expels Aliens Waging War on Franc

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 18.—The government, fighting attacks on the franc, tonight ordered the expulsion of a number of foreigners conducting a "black bourse," or undercover operations in foreign exchange.

The number and nationality of the foreigners ordered out of the country were not announced.

Officials said, however, that police and the surete nationale had gathered evidence against 18 small private exchange offices whose directors were ordered to explain their activities before judicial committees.

This action followed an appeal by Premier Daladier to the nation to give renewed support to the government in the face of "international difficulties and attacks on the franc."

After declaring his government had no intention to devalue the franc further, the premier said he would present in a radio speech the government's program "of energetic measures indispensable both to maintenance of the currency and defense of the nation."

The franc already has fallen to a point close to 179 to the pound.

Berlin Market Falls.

Berlin, Aug. 18 (AP).—The boerse continued its downward trend today with record sales seldom experienced in the last five years.

A few buyers hastily withdrew their orders upon learning of heavy drops. At the close, the boerse slightly recovered when it was learned Economics Minister Walter Funk was scheduled to touch upon the stock market situation in a speech Sunday opening the Koenigsberg Fair.

RFC Dismisses AtlantaCounsel For George Aid

fice in Georgia. The Senator recently complained to the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee that removal of Earle Cocke, nonsalaried Georgia director of the National Emergency Council, was "political."

Signed by Claude E. Hamilton, jr., general counsel of the RFC, it read:

"The directors of the corporation have instructed me to request your resignation as counsel for the loan agency at Atlanta, effective August 20, 1938. Mr. William J. Hobbs, of North Carolina, attached to the Washington staff, has been selected to succeed to your duties. Your cooperation in effecting this transfer will be appreciated."

In Atlanta, Dunlap and Leonard Roan, members of George's campaign publicity committee, released copies of both Hamilton's telegram and Dunlap's telegraphed reply.

"I acknowledge your telegram, dated today, demanding my resignation as counsel for the Atlanta loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation," Dunlap wired Hamilton.

"This, of course, follows the conversation in Washington with you and Mr. Schram (RFC Director Emil Schram) and myself in which you demanded that I cease my activities in behalf of Senator George.

"You made no complaint of my work, but expressly stated that if I ceased my activities for Senator George everything would be all right. I told you I had as much right to be active in this campaign as District Attorney Lawrence Camp and his assistants and that I would continue to help Senator George to the extent of my ability. This morning I had a telephone call from Mr. Schram stating that in view of my statement he would have to demand my resignation and I received your telegram making this demand.

"I accordingly resign to preserve my independence and integrity as a citizen of the sovereign State of Georgia."

WPA to Shut Down.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—State Works Progress Administrator Lawrence M. Pinckney announced that all WPA projects in South Carolina would be closed August 30, the date of the State Democratic primary, to allow workers to vote without being "penalized in exercising the right of suffrage."

"The Works Progress Administration takes no part in politics," he said in a note to area directors, "but I feel that all people working for WPA should be given the right to vote without being penalized by loss of pay."

Meeting Will Plan Ways to Enliven D.C. Vote Demand

Plans for keeping alive the fight to enfranchise the National Capital will be discussed tonight at a meeting of the executive committee of the campaign council and the resolutions committee of the Citizens Conference on District Suffrage.

While no positive action is possible until Congress reassembles in January, Wilbur S. Finch, chairman of the suffrage conference, said that the group intends to keep the issue before the public during the fall.

The conference sponsored the suffrage referendum of April 30 in which nearly 100,000 District residents went to the polls, returning a 13-1 verdict in favor of a vote in National elections and a 7-1 decision for local self-government.

Winning Post Carriers Return From Vacation

The Capital Hiking Club will hold a whale and shark hunting party Sunday at Breezy Point, Md. The animals and fish will not be hunted in the flesh, but in fossils embeded in cliffs 2 miles south of the point for 100,000,000 years. Buses will leave 1416 F street northwest at 9:30 a. m.

Court Forbids Father To Teach Sons 'Heil'

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—A father was ordered in superior court today to stop teaching his two small sons Nazi doctrines and the salute, "Heil Hitler."

Judge Peter H. Schwaba issued a temporary injunction against Harry Doherty and forbade him to see the children pending a full hearing on the restraining order September 2.

The court acted upon a motion of Mrs. Elizabeth Doherty, who has filed a crossbill for divorce, charging infidelity. Doherty, a bell captain at a Michigan avenue hotel, is 34 years old; his wife is 33.

President Roosevelt's Speeches on Affairs of U. S. and Canada

President Roosevelt's address at Queens University, Kingston, Ontario, yesterday follows, in full:

To the pleasure of being once more on Canadian soil, where I have passed so many of the happy hours of my life, there is added today a very warm sense of gratitude for being admitted to the fellowship of this ancient and famous university. I am glad to join the brotherhood which Queens has contributed and is contributing not only to the spiritual leadership for which the college was established, but also to the social and public leadership in the civilized life of Canada.

An American President is precluded by our Constitution from accepting any title from a foreign prince, potentate or power. Queens University is not a prince or a potentate, but it is a power. Yet I can say, without constitutional reserve, that the acceptance of the title which you confer on me today would raise no qualms in the august breast of our own Supreme Court.

Civilization is not national—it is international—even though that observation—trite to most of us, is today challenged in some parts of the world. Ideas are not limited by territorial borders, they are the common inheritance of all free people. Thought is not anchored in any land, and the profit of education rebounds to the equal benefit of the whole world. That is one form of free trade to which the leaders of every opposing political party can subscribe.

In a large sense we in the Americas stand charged today with the maintenance of that tradition. When speaking recently in a similar vein in the Republic of Brazil I included the Dominion of Canada in the fellowship of the Americas, our South American neighbors gave hearty acclaim. We in the Americas know the sorrow and the wreckage which may follow if the ability of man to understand each other is rooted out from among the nations.

Destruction of Men's Minds.

Many of us here today know from experience that of all the devastation of war none is more tragic than the destruction which it brings to the processes of men's minds. Truth is denied because emotion pushes it aside. Forebearance is succeeded by bitterness. In that atmosphere human thought cannot advance.

It is impossible not to remember that for years when Canadians and Americans have met they have light-heartedly saluted as North American friends, without thought of dangers from overseas. Yet we are awake to the knowledge that the casual assumption of our greetings in earlier times must become a matter for serious thought.

A few days ago a whisper, fortunately untrue, raced around the world that armies standing over against each other in unhappy array were to be set in motion. In a few short hours the effect of that whisper had been registered in Montreal and New York, in Ottawa and in Washington, in Toronto and in Chicago, in Vancouver and in San Francisco. Your businessmen and ours felt it alike; your farmers and ours heard it alike; your young men and ours wondered what effect this might have on their lives.

We in the Americas are no longer a far-away continent, to which the eddies of controversies beyond the seas could bring no interest or no harm. Instead, we in the Americas have become a consideration to every propaganda office and to every general staff beyond the seas. The vast amount of our resources, the vigor of our commerce and the strength of our men have made us vital factors in world peace whether we choose or not.

Contribution to Peace.

Happily, you and we, in friendship and in entire understanding, can look clear-eyed at these possibilities, resolving to leave no pathway unexplored and no technique undeveloped which may, if our hopes are realized, contribute to the peace of the world. Even if those hopes are disappointed, we can assure each other that this hemisphere at least shall remain a strong citadel wherein civilization can flourish unimpaired.

The Dominion of Canada is part of the sisterhood of the British Empire. I give to you assurance that the peoples of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire.

We are good neighbors and true friends because we maintain our own rights with frankness, because we refuse to accept the twists of secret diplomacy, because we settle our disputes by consultation and because we discuss our common problems in the spirit of the common good. We seek to be scrupulously fair and helpful not only in our relations with each other but each of us at home in our relations with our own people.

But there is one process which we certainly cannot change and probably ought not to change. This is the feeling which ordinary men and women have about events which they can understand. We cannot prevent our people from having an opinion in regard to wanton brutality, in regard to undemocratic regimentation, in regard to misery inflicted on helpless peoples, or in regard to violations of accepted inviduals rights. All that any government, constituted as is yours and mine, can possibly undertake is to help make sure that the facts are known and fairly stated. No country where thought is free can prevent every fireside and home within its borders from considering the evidence for itself and rendering its own verdict; and the sum total of these conclusions of educated men and women will, in the long run, become the national verdict.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Public Opinion and Policy

That is what we mean when we say that public opinion ultimately governs policy. It is right and just that this should be the case.

Many of our ancestors came to Canada and the United States because they wished to break away from systems which forbade them to think freely and their descendants have insisted on the right to know the truth—to argue their problems to a majority decision, and, if they remained unconvinced, to disagree in peace. As a tribute to our likeness in that respect, I note that the bill of rights in your country and in mine is substantially the same.

Mr. Chancellor, you of Canada who respect the educational tradition of our democratic continent will ever maintain good neighborship in ideas as we in the public service hope and propose to maintin it in the field of government and of foreign relations. My good friend, the Governor General, in receiving an honorary degree in June at that university at Cambridge, Mass., to which Mackenzie King and I both belong, suggested that we cultivate three qualities to keep our foothold in the shifting sands of the present—humility, humanity and humor. All three of them, imbedded in education, build new spans to restablish free intercourse throughout the world and bring forth an order in which free nations can live in peace.

Subsequently, Mr. Roosevelt spoke at the Thousand Islands Bridge, on the Canadian-United States boundary, as follows:

Mr. Prime Minister, it has always seemed to me that the best symbol of common sense was a bridge. Common sense is sometimes slow in getting into action, and perhaps that is why we took so long to build this one.

It is a particular pleasure to me to meet you here, where a boundary is a gateway and not a wall. Between these islands an international gap, never wide, has been spanned, as gaps usually are, by the exercise of ability, guided by co-operative common sense. I hope all our countrymen will use it freely. I know they will find, as I have done, a happy welcome on either shore, and for the right fellowship from neighbors who are also friends.

The St. Lawrence River is more than a cartographic line between our two countries. God so formed North America that the waters of an inland empire drain into the Great Lakes basin. The rain which falls in this vast area finds outlet through this single natural funnel, above which we now stand.

Events of history have made that river a boundary, and as a result the flow of these waters can be used only by joint agreement between our two governments. Between us, we stand, therefore, as trustees for two countries of one of the richest natural assets provided anywhere in the world. The water which runs underneath this bridge spells unlimited power; permits access to raw materials both from this continent and from beyond the seas, and enhances commerce and production.

When a resource of this kind is placed at our very doors, I think the plain people of both countries agree that it is ordinary common sense to make use of it. Yet up to now the liquid wealth, which flowing water is, has run in large part unused to the sea. I really think that this situation suggests that we can agree upon some better arrangement than merely letting it contribute a microscopic fraction to the level of the north Atlantic Ocean. The bridge which we here dedicate is a tangible proof that administration by two neighbors of a job to be done in common offers no difficulty. Obviously, the same process applied on the larger scale to the resource of full seagoing navigation and of complete power development offered by the St. Lawrence River can build and maintain the necessary facilities to employ its magnificent possibilities.

I suppose it is true, as has been true of all natural resources, that a good many people would like to have the job—and the profits—of developing it for themselves. In this case, however, the river happens to be placed in the hands of our two governments, and the responsibility for getting the results lies plainly at our doors.

At various times both the people of Canada and the people of the United States have dreamed of the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes development. They have translated those ideas into plans which can easily be carried out. While there has been no difference between us as to the object, history compels me to say that we were not able to arrange matters so that both peoples have had the same idea at the same time. How would it do for a change if, instead of each of us having the idea at alternate intervals, we get the idea simultaneously. I think we are rapidly reaching that happy and desirable event.

I am very clear that prophets of trouble are wrong when they express the fear that the St. Lawrence waterway will handicap our railroad systems. We know now that the effect of a waterway is not to take traffic away from railroad lines. Actually, it creates new possibilities, new businesses, new activity. Such a waterway generates more railroad traffic than it takes away.

There is, today, a 14-foot channel carrying traffic from the Great Lakes through the St. Lawrence River into the Atlantic Ocean. If this were deepened—which can easily be done—to 27 or 30 feet, every city on the Great Lakes, now inland, would become an ocean port. The banks of the St. Lawrence Valley would become one of the great gateways of the world and would benefit accordingly. Here all that is needed is co-operative exercise of technical skill by joint use of the imagination and the vision which our two countries have. Can anyone doubt that, when this is done, the interests of both countries will be greatly advanced? Do we need to delay, and to deprive our peoples of the immediate employment and profit, or prevent our generation from reaping the harvest which is awaiting us?

Let me make, now, an unusual statement. I am sure you will not misunderstand. I consider that I have, myself, a particular duty in connection with St. Lawrence power. The almost unparalleled opportunity which the river affords has not gone unnoticed by some of my friends on our side of the boundary. A conception has been emerging in the United States which is not without a certain magnificence. This is no less than the conviction that if a private group could control the outlet of the Great Lakes basin, that group would have a monopoly in the development of a territory larger than many of the great empires in history.

If you were to search the records with which my Government is familiar, you would discover that literally every development of electric power, save only the Ontario-Hydro, is allied to, if not controlled by, a single American group, with, of course, the usual surrounding penumbra of allies, affiliates, subsidiaries and satellites. In earlier stages of development of natural resources of this continent, this was normal and usual. In recent decades, however, we have come to realize the implications to the public—to the individual men and women, to businessmen, big and little, and even to government itself, resulting from the ownership by any group of the right to dispose of wealth which was granted to us collectively by nature herself.

The development of natural resources, and the proper handling of their fruits, is a major problem of government. Naturally, no solution would be acceptable to either country which does not leave its government entirely master in its own house.

To put it bluntly, a group of American interests is here gradually putting itself into a position where, unless caution is exercised, they may in time be able to determine the economic fate of a large area, both in Canada and the United States.

Now it is axiomatic in Canadian-American relations that both of us scrupulously respect the right of each to determine its own affairs. For that reason, when I know that the operation of uncontrolled American economic forces is slowly producing a result on the Canadian side of the border, which I know very well must eventually give American groups a great influence over Canadian development, I consider it the part of a good neighbor to discuss the question frankly. The least I can do is to call attention to the situation as I see it.

Our mutual friendship suggests this course in a matter of development as great and as crucial as that of the St Lawrence. Fortunately among friendly nations today this is increasingly being done. Frank discussion between friends and neighbors is useful and essential. It is obvious today that some economic problems are international, if only because of the sheer weight which the solutions have on the lives of people, as well as inside any one country. To my mind, the development of St. Lawrence navigation and power is such a problem.

I look forward to the day when a Canadian prime minister and an American President can meet to dedicate, not a bridge across this water, but the very water itself, to the lasting and productive use of their respective peoples. Until that day comes, and I hope it may be soon, this bridge stands as an open door. There will be no challenge at the border, and no guard to ask a countersign. Where the boundary is crossed the only word must be "pass, friend."

O'Connor Says Roosevelt Aim Is Dictatorship

O'Connor

when it blocked for almost a year House action on wage-hour legislation.

It was that fight which turned the spotlight on the committee's strategic position and aroused Administration wrath against committeemen who opposed the legislation.

O'Connor said that "if we are to revert to a one-man government the people should be made conscious of the issue at once . . . If they submit to the change, they should do it with their eyes open."

Feared Ambition.

The veteran Representative of Manhattan's Sixteenth Congressional District said his opposition to the President's reorganizion bill was "the one unpardonable 'sin' which has placed me high on the 'purge list.'"

"Other names are inscribed on that roll of excommunicants," he added, "because they honestly feared there was a desire on the part of the Executive to control the court branch of our government.

"Some of us, still unchastened, still maintaining the same views, feel that the indictment may yet constitute an 'honor roll.'

"The independence of thought and action by our representatives has never heretofore been challenged," O'Connor continued . . .

"'One hundred per cent' this, or '100 per cent' that, is a very recent innovation in our national ideology.

"The dictator demands the '100 per cent'—and, of course, will last only as long as he has it."

O'Connor said "the repetitious disavowal of any desire to become a dictator cannot be taken at full faith when actions evidence the contrary."

"No 'dictator' in Europe would for one moment admit he is a dictator. They all palaver and prate honeyed words about 'democracy' and justify their every act—no matter how drastic—as for the best interest of their 'free' people. They all claim to be supported by a 'mandate' from the people."

Cites History.

"Current history records," he added, "that the first step of the dictator is to abolish, or make impotent, the legislative branch of the government. That step is indispensable to the fulfillment of his program and the attainment of his '100 per cent.'

"What the American people are seriously concerned about, at this very moment, is this demand of the President for only 'yes-men' in our parliament. They are asking each other: 'Well, what is the difference between that and having no legislative branch of the government at all?'

"Does it not, either way, lead inevitably to the same end—one-man government?"

O'Connor said "there are still some of us left who recall that our forefathers established the American system of Government after a revolution against one-man government; that they set up a tripartite system, an executive, a legislature and a court, to remain forever independent of each other's encroachments.

"Are they still independent, or do we now stand at Thermopylae?"

He said that "the editorial which the President accepted as his own text used an expression only recently current, that the 'President is the responsible head' of the Government."

"That is an entirely new conception in America," O'Connor continued.

injured when she was struck by an auto while crossing at Benning road and Seventeenth street northeast. The girl, June Heil, of 1807 L street northeast, was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated for severe injuries to the head and a leg. The driver, Harry Jewel, colored, 33, of 1118 First street northwest, was charged with reckless driving and bad brakes.

Two other children were slightly injured in traffic accidents.

Walter Welch, colored, 6, of 11 Leonard street southwest, was struck when he ran into the street from between two parked cars near Eighth and Delafield streets northwest. He received superficial cuts and bruises.

Eldran L. Holley, 13, 1315 Irving street northwest, was taken to Sibley Hospital with lacerations after he was struck near New York avenue and Fenwick street northeast.

At yesterday's meeting of the new citizens' advisory traffic committee Brig. Gen. Albert Cox, chairman, received reports from various subcommittees and said the group's final proposal to relieve current conditions would reach Commissioner Hazen by 9 a. m. today.

At the same time, Gen. Cox named a 4-man executive committee, with himself as chairman, to launch steps for long-term safety planning. The executive unit includes George Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Auto Club; Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the local A. A. A. and L. A. Carruthers, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Reports Submitted.

As a result of studies by three subcommittees, the safety group submitted the following recommendations to Commissioner Hazen:

To reach more than 29,000 persons with safety information through distribution by WPA.

To continue safety education with the support of newspapers.

To use the theaters as a medium of reaching District residents.

To include safety messages with all deliveries of milk and bread.

To employ street car and bus advertising.

To appeal through the churches.

To use boys clubs to educate both parents and children.

To adopt the slogan: "Streets are not safe playgrounds."

To spread safety preachings by volunteer workers.

To form a Juvenile Safety Club.

To use sound trucks.

To seek aid of the Salvation Army in spreading safety propaganda.

To request publicity by all radio commentators.

To spread safety teachings through children at playgrounds.

To send speakers to all service clubs.

To use window displays in the various commercial establishments.

To open the 86 school playgrounds now closed, with volunteer supervision.

To urge that community playgrounds not be closed until after the school term starts.

To seek public donations, vacant lots and back yards as play spots for children.

To amend traffic regulations to govern pedestrians, requiring penalties for infractions.

To commend police and urge continuance of the present policy of clearing streets of unattended juveniles.

To provide for additional one-way streets and parking bans on narrow streets in outlying sections.

In the plan to use street car advertising and store window displays to keep the safety question constantly before Washington, A. Julian Brylawski, president of the Variety Club, announced that a $200 appropriation by his organization was available to defray printing expenses.

Car Space Offered.

He said the Capital Transit Co. had agreed to provide space both inside and outside of street cars and buses. A safety motion picture, offering a lesson in safety by Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown and Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, will be shown in every Washington theater, Brylawski added.

The request for volunteer safety workers was supported by Mrs. Walter Fry, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, who offered members of her group as willing to undertake the job of spreading news of the current campaign's progress.

The long-range program includes also the inclosure of safety messages in monthly statements and bills by department stores and public utilities.

Lamenting the District's established policy of closing all community playgrounds on September 1, it was urgently demanded that these play spots remain open until school starts and Dr. Thomas Gosling, assistant superintendent of schools, announced that action along this line was now being considered.

The recommendation for an immediate policy of pedestrian control was presented by Cleveland, of the A. A. A., who pointed out that 75 per cent of all accident fatalities involve careless walkers.

It was urged also that special attention be given to motorists who ignore the right-of-way privileges of pedestrians.

In joining The Post-Junior Board of Commerce safety program for light delivery trucks, Beavers, of Peoples Drug Stores, stressed the company's policy of employing drivers only after they have passed rigid tests. Dismissal, he said, would be the punishment for recklessness on the highway.

"it seems a pity to forfeit this chance to obtain something we have been calling for year after year."

Since the Commissioners' committee strongly advocated a trained safety expert to direct the city's permanent program to stamp out death and destruction on its streets, movements were on foot yesterday to see that Capt. Miller attends the course.

Subscription Suggested.

A public subscription to cover his salary was proposed, with George Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club, offering to "start the ball rolling with $50." Another suggestion was that a decision by the comptroller general might reverse Auditor Donovan's ruling.

Capt. Miller was selected for competition in the fellowship award by Maj. Ernest W. Brown and passed all examinations with flying colors. Maj. Brown said, however, that in view of the fact Capt. Miller has a family and is purchasing a home, he would not be asked to sacrifice his salary to take the course.

Designation an Honor.

The Northwestern Institute is sponsored by James S. Kemper, president of the Lumberman's Mutual Casualty Co., and the American Motorists Insurance Co. Commenting on Miller's selection, Kemper said:

"By qualifying for a fellowship Miller has brought honor upon himself and his department. To become a member of the eligible group, one must demonstrate that intellectually he is among the upper 10 per cent of the population."

Eight fellowships were awarded. Others went to Capt. Milo L. Hewitt, California highway patrol; Sergt. James M. Lupton, Detroit police department; Lieut. Harry Sutherlin, Indiana State police; Lieut. Joseph B. Kennedy, Cleveland; Sergt. James A. Pryde, Washington State patrol; Sergt. Dan Hollingsworth, Oklahoma City, and Lieut. Glenn G. Pauley, Buffalo, N. Y.

Hines Captain Goes Back on Dewey Story

Hines

member," or "No, sir, I never said that."

Courtroom Cleared.

By the time the cross-questioning closed, with the closing of today's hearing in the Foley Square courthouse, Dewey was reiterating in his questions the charge that his own witness was lying, and was asking him whether he had been talking over his testimony with Leo Rosenthal or Jack Plunkett, two lieutenants of Hines, since giving it before the grand jury.

The commitment of the witness to the Tombs came after court had recessed at 6:18 p. m., when Justice Pecora had the room cleared of everyone except the witness and newspaper reporters and called opposing counsel to the bench.

Edwards, sole colored election district leader in Hines' bailiwick, has been free under $500 bail as a material witness. At the request of Dewey, Justice Pecora ordered Edwards recommitted to the Tombs and raised the bail to the $10,000 figure. Dewey announced that tomorrow he would place the official reporter for the grand jury and his own assistants on the stand.

Tell of Getting Off.

The sensation provided by Williams' altered testimony in the late afternoon followed testimony by three State witnesses that policy workers of the Schultz mob got off scot-free after they were caught red-handed at the policy bank, sorting and adding up the policy slips, and were taken to the court of the late Magistrate Francis J. Erwin. Erwin is one of three judicial officers whom the district attorney has named in a bill of particulars to his indictment as having been under the influence of Hines in the protection of Schultz's gang.

All three witnesses were colored men. The principal story was by Camille Monsanto, a policy banker in the bank of "Big Joe" Ison, otherwise known as "Spasm." To corroborate his story, the district attorney presented Leon Gomez, a Puerto Rican, who said he worked the adding machine in "Spasm's" bank, and William Edwards, who had worked his way up from being a bouncer to the post of doorman for the adjoining banks kept by "Spasm" and Marshal Flores at 870 Saint Nicholas avenue.

The two banks were raided in the late afternoon of December 22, 1932, and 26 workers there were set free by Magistrate Erwin on December 28.

All three witnesses were arrested in the raid, and all got bail, it was testified, though not one of them engaged a bondsman. Two of them were represented in court by J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, lawyer for the Schultz gang, who is to be Dewey's star witness, though neither of them, it was testified, hired him.

Their testimony developed the following story: When the banks were raided the workers were gathered about two long tables, with sheafs of policy slips in front of most of them. They were engaged in sorting them; they admitted to the police and the court that the papers were policy slips, but their hands were not on them.

When they got to court Magistrate Erwin examined the arresting officer, one Jacob Katz, at length, and drew from him the admission that he had seen nobody's hand nearer than 2 inches to the policy slips. He had seen no defendant try to sell one, or collect money for one. He had seen no defendant place the policy slips on the table. He saw no defendant "exercise any constructive ownership" over them.

Back to Work.

"Nobody is more anxious than I am to hold anybody for possession of policy slips," the magistrate commented, "but possession has to be shown." He dismissed all hands, and they trooped back to work after changing the address of the bank.

There was further testimony during the morning by Wilfred Brunder, colored former banker of the policy racket, who now is president of three real estate corporations in Harlem with properties assessed at $500,000. He told of the difficult moments which attended turning over his business in policy to "Bo" and George Weinberg, George Schenck and "Abe" Landau, four of Schultz's gangsters, when he decided to quit in 1934. He told them, he said, that he would help them all he could in getting the collectors and controllers with whom he did business to co-operate with them.

One of his principal aides had been a man named Fred McLaughlin, who he called more frequently Fred Mack. He introduced McLaughlin to the gangsters, and McLaughlin was advised to do business through them, Brunder said. They believed, however, that Fred Mack was not manifesting the proper spirit of co-operation. One "Little Abie" came with "Abe" Landau and Schenck to a rendezvous with Brunder and Fred Mack on a Harlem street corner, and there they complimented Fred Mack on the fine automobile he was using.

"You want to live and ride in that car," the witness said Fred Mack was warned by Landau. Mack replied that he had lived through the World War and he thought he would live and ride in that car for some time to come. Thinking of the conversation, Brunder decided to make a quick trip out of the city. He went to Detroit and stayed two weeks.

Then he went to Washington and spent a couple more weeks before returning to Harlem.

Ousted Car Union Chiefs Ask Lewis To Settle Dispute

By the United Press.

Two ousted officials of the United Automobile Workers Union and their supporters last night appealed to C.I.O. Chairman John L. Lewis and his top flight lieutenants to intervene in the union's bitter factional struggle.

After a three-hour session with Lewis, former U.A.W. Vice Presidents Richard T. Frankensteen and Wyndham Mortimer announced plans for a closed conference by local union delegates in Toledo, Ohio, Saturday to map plans for a special convention to oust U.A.W. President Hoer Martin. Frankensteen predicted more than 1,000 delegates from United Automobile Workers locals would attend.

Lewis had "no comment" on C. I. O. intervention, or if it was under consideration.

Youth Held as Attacker Of Woman in Hospital

The prisoner was arrested Sunday night after he allegedly threw to the ground Mrs. Myrtle E. Miller, 23, of the 2800 block of Myrtle avenue northwest, while she was walking near her home. With her was her 6-year-old son.

Roosevelt Son Denies Politics Sold Insurance

Says He Never Was Asked for Political Favors by a Client.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 18.—James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President, denied today that he was "in the political insurance business."

"Political insurance is insurance that is required by a political boss or body in order to win contracts from that boss or gang," young Roosevelt, a member of the insurance firm of Roosevelt & Sargent, Inc., said in an article to be published tomorrow in Collier's Magazine.

Practice "Unsafe."

"Listen," he continued, "I have never written a surety bond, a contractor's bond, fire insurance or any other kind of insurance that might by any definition be called political. Never. And I never will."

The article is the second of two in which the President's son replied to published charges that he had made use of his father's office to promote his own interests and profits.

"If all these smear stories are so," Roosevelt wrote, "they must involve many of the government agencies and many of those individuals and groups to whom I've sold insurance. Thus they, too, must be engaged in dark practices.

"Doesn't it seem to you that such improprieties are far too widespread for safety?"

The President's son denied that he ever had been asked "by a prospect or a client to do anything except write insurance contracts."

Wrote T. W. A. Policies.

He said his firm obtained a contract under which National Distillers is insured for $60,000,000 to $100,000,000.

"The new schedules we wrote for National Distillers," he said, "saved them $65,000 a year in premiums."

He disclosed that his company handles compensation insurance for Transcontinental and Western Airways, but said "no airmail contracts were given TWA since Roosevelt and Sargent did business with them."

Tydings Hailed In Challenge on His Voting Record

Folliard

who is opposed for a third Senate term by Representative Lewis, New Dealer of Cumberland, excoriated the latter's backer, John L. Lewis, of the C. I. O.

Hits C. I. O. Communists."

"Are you going to turn this fine old State over to John L. Lewis and the Communists?" he asked. "Do you want a Senator who is dominated by the C. I. O., which is half Communists?"

"No," cried many in the crowd.

"You can't tolerate sit-down strikes and get this country out of its misery," Tydings continued. "Amen," shouted a man in the crowd.

The Eastern Shore country is bitterly against the C. I. O., in fact that was eloquently demonstrated not so long ago in nearby Crisfield, where a C. I. O. organizer was run out of town by vigilantes and his automobile burned. He had been organizing the crab pickers.

"Don't turn this State over to the C. I. O., my friends," Tydings said.

Scores "Pay-Off."

He reminded his audience of how John L. Lewis contributed a fat sum of money to the Democratic campaign fund in 1936, and how, when the sit-down strikes broke out in Detroit later, Lewis reminded the White House that he expected to be "paid off."

He himself, he told the crowd, would not be under obligation to John L. Lewis, or any other man or group—only to voters of Maryland.

Senator Tydings told the Eastern Shore people that the Government could not spend the country back to prosperity. There had to be a better atmosphere, he said, a feeling of confidence which would spur business to greater activity.

Then, he said, more people would find jobs and there would be a greater market for the farmer's produce.

To Speak Sunday.

"Hard work and commonsense are the solution," he said. "There is no royal road to prosperity. You can't destroy wealth and increase the prosperity of the people.

The nearest Tydings came to mentioning President Roosevelt's castigation of him Tuesday was when he said: "I am going to make a speech over the radio Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock and I hope you will listen to it. It will deal with some matters that have come to your attention very recently."

Tydings ended what he called his "handshaking tour" of the Eastern Shore in this town tonight and started back to Baltimore.

Sasscer Praised.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 18.—Appealing to eastern shore voters to support State Senate President Lansdale G. Sasscer for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Charles Marbury, of Upper Marlboro, in a radio address here tonight, recalled the senator's successful efforts to prevent closing of the Salisbury and Frostbury Normal Schools several years ago.

Marbury, a candidate for the State Senate to succeed Sasscer, credited the senator with saving the appropriations for these two schools "at a time when disastrous cuts were being made in the budget due to an impending financial crisis."

Marbury also praised Sasscer for his fight in the Legislature against the 2 per cent retail sales tax urged during the past two sessions by "so-called leaders from Baltimore City."

PETER BORRAS, popular host at the Madrillon. Harris and Yvonne Ashburn (upper) are dancing at the Shoreham Terrace.

By Mary Harris.

Opening of the Hour Glass, new luxury spot in the Trans-Lux Building, will take place on Thursday, August 25, instead of next Monday as originally planned. Y'know the million-and-one things to be done in opening a new place, the thousand-odd unexpected items that arise. Vincent Gallegher, operator of Hour Glass, is going to have everything absolutely shipshaps, slick as a ribbon for the H. G. opening.

That "Redskin Pow Wow" at the Shoreham on Wednesday turned out to be a regular Apache Old Home Week. Customers, orchestra and the Redskins joined in war whooping and community singing. Sich a time! Proudest fellow in the place (outside of Geroge Preston Marshall, Redskin boss) was the one who had his copy of "Hail to the Redskins" autographed by every member of the squad. Barnes wore a war bonnet of red and white feathers and the whole orchestra was diked out in the Indian costumes they'll wear at the Redskin games this fall. But a sad moment came at 11 o'clock when Coach Ray Flaherty marshaled the Redskins and marched them out relentlessly. All the girls looked daggers at Mr. Flaherty and the footballers looked back wistfully. Ah, well-a-day! Fun's fun, but training's training.

Tonight comes the pay-off on the Pow'hatan Roof. Meaning the finals in the Powhatan Talent Contest. Some folks who've attended all the prelims are vowing that it's a toss-up between Jerry Jumkin (Treasury) and James Ferry (Postoffice Department). But there's likely to be many a slip between what comes outa the mike and taking that streamliner trip (first prize) to New York.

Between managing the Madrillon and doing strenuous organizational work, Peter Borras still finds time to translate some of his favorite Spanish apothegms into English. Here are a couple of them—both packed with the tang and realism of Spanish thought.

Mind not the path of your feet, it is the path of the heart that matters.

The veil of modesty should be transparent.

Another versatile person is Harold Veo, director of the Sidney orchestra in the Mayflower Lounge. Harold composes waltzes, rhumbas, concertos, rhapsodies (all good ones, too), has even turned out one musical comedy which may be produced this fall. He also raises fancy dahlias and gladioli. In his idle moments he putters in the machine and woodturning shops he has installed in the basement of his Cleveland Park home.

Pretty-pretties:

That seraphic whit chiffon worn by Ernestine Gardner (Wardman's Metronome Room). It must measure 36 yards around the hem, but if there's more than a yard in the bodice, we miss our guess. But when Ernestine sings "I Married An Angel," she should add a pair of wings to the frock—just to make the picture perfect.

The quaintly pretty frock of print in pale yellow, greens and maroon, worn by Evelyn Knight as she perches on the King Cole Room bar and sings request numbers by the dozen.

The tremendous cape of black sequins swirled by Yvonne Ashburn, sleek and petite dancer on the Shoreham Terrace. Probably cost more than a silver fox cape.

The way that gown of lipstick red dripping with fringe sets off the personality of singer Angie Rodante at the Hi-Hat. But Angie's indigo numbers sound even bluer when she's wearing that dress of icy blue satin.

That soignee pompadour hairdo being sported by Phyllis Cromling, Mayfair's contralto. Gives her such a Marie Antoinette-ish look. Phyllis denies, and definitely, that there's any inner support (ah, rats!) to her pompadour. How could we have imagined such a thing!

Note from Ernie Johnson, Glen Echo's publicity trumpeter.

Dear Mary: Look! Ladies are being admitted free on Monday, August 22, to the Spanish Ballroom."

It looks like a great opportunity, Ernie, for a felow to take out his best girls—all six of them—coincidentally instead of consecutively. Especially as Maestro Dave McWilliams will be the official host to all lady guests on Monday evening.

"Biff" Johnson, pinch hitting for Jack Torry at Brinkley's, tells us that old tunes are easier to swing than the new numbers because the chord progression is slower. We hope you understand.

Countryside Edens:

Show Boat. Smart modernist surroundings. Dining indoors or on deck. A fine German chef. Big, cool tap room. Dancing to excellent music every night but Sunday. Managed by cordial and attractive Mrs. Sallie Boynton.

5 Trapped Miners Saved Unhurt in Scranton Cave-in Scranton, Pa., Aug. 18 (AP).—Five miners, entombed in the Shawnee Coal Co. mine, were rescued tonight. Rushed to a hospital, they were found to be suffering only from shock.

Rescuers reached the men about five hours after they had been trapped when a runaway mine car smashed timbers, causing a roof to collapse and block the mine entrance.

U. S. Fighters In Spain Called Dupes of OGPU

of Boston, pleaded that the Government take steps to extricate the American troops from Spain. He testified, too, that because he wrote a newspaper article on his Spanish experiences, Communists kept him out of the C. I. O. and WPA and thus prevented him from obtaining a job.

The House committee investigating "un-American" activities also received testimony, in affidavit form, that Harry Bridges, West Coast leader of the C. I. O., attended Communist meetings, was "treated as one of the Communist functionaries and apparently spoke with authority" among the party members.

Miss Margaret Kerr, of Los Angeles, identified photostatic copies of an affidavit that Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader, attended meetings of the Communist Party as "Harry Dorgan."

In addition the Labor Department delivered to the committee its files concerning deportation proceedings against Bridges. However, the committee did not immediately inquire further into charges that department officials gave Bridges "aid and advice" while the proceedings, now held in abeyance, were pending.

Representative Thomas (Republican), New Jersey, put in the record a statement that when the committee sought Government officials, it repeatedly was told they were "on vacation." He wanted particularly, he said, to reach Catherine Kellogg, an official of the WPA Federal Writers' Project, whose husband, he added, was a publicity man for the Russian embassy.

This led Representative Mosier (Democrat), Ohio, to express curiosity as to whether anyone was "tipping off" persons whom the committee wished to question.

He said he had seen some investigators for the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee in the committee room.

"Are they trying to hamstring this committee?" he asked.

"It looks mighty suspicious to me. We put two and two together where I come from."

Witnesses Agree.

Sobel and Halpern both told substantially the same story. They were "recruited," they said, by men whom they knew to be Communists. Communists paid for their passports and provided passage money, they testified.

"It didn't take long to find out that the whole setup was communistic," Halpern said of the situation in Spain, adding later:

"We went over there to fight for an ideal and then found ourselves under the O. G. P. U. of Russia."

He said 3,000 to 4,000 Americans had been in Spain during his time there.

"I know definitely that those boys want to come back," he said. "If we had thought Franco would repatriate us we would have gone over to his side in a minute."

He made repeated requests that he be permitted to return home, he said, but his request was always denied.

The Justice Department, meanwhile, sent to the Dies' committee a voluminous report on activities of the Amerika-Deutscher Volkes-Bund and its affiliated organizations.

The 1,000-page report was made by Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to Attorney General Cummings last December following a five-month investigation of German-American activities in this country.

The Volkesbund, which is commonly known as the German-American Bund, maintains training camps throughout the country where German sympathizers meet.

Contents of the report were not made public.

Testimony "Leaked."

Miss Kerr identified for the committee record a photostatic copy of an affidavit by Irving N. Markheim stating he had joined the Communist Party in Los Angeles at her suggestion and had met Bridges on several occasions. The affidavit said Markheim's first contact with Bridges occurred at a party session at Belvidere Gardens on Floral street, Los Angeles, in the spring of 1933. Eight or ten persons were present, the affidavit said.

Later, Miss Kerr testified, Markheim advised her that threats had been made against his life. She charged that information given her by Markheim "leaked" mysteriously after being turned over to Federal authorities.

Boom Is Reported In Wagon Business

The carriage and wagon business is getting better in this automobile age. The Census Bureau said yesterday the business increased 50 per cent from 1935 to 1937, due primarily to the manufacture of farm wagons.

Tax Board Studies Tonsil Operation As Deductible Basis

By the Associated Press.

The question whether the removal of Madge Evans' tonsils was a business or a personal matter came before the Board of Tax Appeals yesterday.

The screen actress contended that the tonsilectomy she underwent in 1934 was for the purpose of improving her voice and therefore constituted a business expense for which she was entitled to a deduction of $459.58 from her taxable income.

Government attorneys took a different view in a report to W. W. Arnold, board member handling the case. They said the Internal Revenue Bureau had recognized that an actress' stock in trade was chiefly her "feminine charm and beauty" and had allowed Miss Evans $583.55 in deductions for wigs and makeup and $802 for her maid.

But such expenditures, the Government lawyers argued, were "entirely different from a tonsil operation, which was deemed advisable to "eliminate the susceptibility to colds."

Terrific Battle Fought Above Central China

Japanese Claim 32 Foes Downed; Defense Also Reports Victory.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Friday), Aug. 19.—The Japanese naval air fleet late yesterday invaded deep central China and reported destruction of 32 Chinese planes in a tremendous air battle over Hengyang Airport, Hunan province.

The Japanese struck at the air base while other warplanes and warships about 300 miles to the northwest on the Yangtze River bombarded Chinese positions in redoubled efforts to crack the Chinese line defending Hankow.

Chinese reports from Hengyang, on the Hankow-Canton railway, disputed the Japanese report of the air battle, asserting the Japanese lost four bombing planes, as against one Chinese pursuit plane.

Another Japanese report said four Chinese bombers were shot down over the Yangtze east of Wuchang when Japanese bombers raided near the tricity area of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang. Chinese river craft were bombed.

The Chinese dispatch on this engagement said the Japanese lost one bomber and the Chinese none.

From Tsingtao, Shantung province port, it was reported that on Wednesday evening a seaman from the British destroyer Decoy ripped a Japanese flag down from the doorway of a Japanese hotel. Japanese naval patrols took the man into custody, but released him when he apologized.

A little later three petty officers from the Decoy appeared at the scene, unaware of the incident, and were seized and imprisoned overnight. They were released only after a strong demand from British naval authorities who now have demanded a Japanese apology.

In Shanghai, the United States consulate was asked to protect mail to the Chinese-American Publishing Co. against Japanese military censors.

Fireman, Trapped In Submerged Cab, Rescued by Hobo

Liberal, Kans., Aug. 18 (AP).—An 18-year-old transient, Eugene Simpson, dove into a submerged locomotive cab today and rescued C. M. Powell, Rock Island fireman who was trapped when a freight train crashed through a bridge into the flooded Cimarron River. Two other transients were believed drowned.

"Where is the fireman?" Simpson asked trainmen who had reached the river bank. They pointed to the water-covered locomotive. Simpson plunged back into the swift stream, dived until he found the cab, dragged Powell out and swam to shore with him.

Surgeons Replace Woman's Scalp, Lost in Accident

New Orleans, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Mrs. Isadoria Scyld, 20, scalped when her hair became entangled in a bagging machine, tonight was given an even chance to get her hair back.

In a spectacular grafting, doctors took the woman's scalp of shoulder-length tresses torn off around the crown and sewed it back. Her scalp was taken from the machine by fellow workers, brought to the hospital in a newspaper, medically treated, sterilized and replaced.

If enough vitality remained in the tissue, it will heal, said the surgeon.

Court Approves Sale of Brewery

District Court Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday ratified the auction sale of the Washington Brewery, Inc., successor to the Abner Drury Brewery, for $113,000.

The sale was made to Charles Jacobsen, though Albert E. Steinmen, an attorney bid in the property. In the early days of repeal the brewery did a thriving business.

U. S. Building To Be Secured Against Fire

Social Security Board Wins Long Flight to Protect 650 Employes.

The 650 Social Security Board employes in the Rochambeau Building may, by the end of the week, have their fire-escape facilities improved to the requirements of the fire marshal and building inspector. If so, a long story will be ended.

It began two years ago when the building owners, the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co, equipped the building to what was regarded as fire-safe standards. Just recently another survey was undertaken by Deputy Fire Marshal C. G. Achstetter and Fire Escape Inspector H. B. Mallory.

They called for further fire prevention equipment, and while this was going on, the United Federal Workers of America, which has members in the building, demanded less susceptible Social Security Board do something to make the building more secure to blazes.

The insurance company said the building was fireproof, and the Social Security Board conferred with the branch of buildings management, National Park Service, under which all Federal buildings are managed. The branch of buildings management took the matter up with the life insurance company.

Then the Social Security Board issued a statement saying: "We have done all we can do."

Compliance with the wishes of the building inspector will entail:

Enclose elevator shafts on all floors with fire resistive material; provide lights and signs designating fire escapes; erect fire escape in light courts of each wing on east side of building; terminate all stairs and any openings on first floor to basement in fireproof compartment; replace plain glass with wire and metal frame, all windows opening on corridors from lavatories, and provide a bridge between north and south rooms or enclose stairwell with a fire resistive material.

Tut-Type Tomb To Save Relics Of Machine Age

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 18.—A streamlined "tomb" for the machine age was being built by science today to let people 5,000 years from now know what we were like.

It will be filled with the things that make us what we are—including a typical woman's hat.

To balance the hat, there will be serious things relating to government and industry, religion and philosophy, history and geology, music and art.

So that archeologists who dig up the "tomb" will not just look at the hat, laugh and dismiss us as a peculiar race, the Smithsonian Institution hopes to place in the machine age sarcophagus a "key to English" which will make it easy for persons unfamiliar with English to understand our language.

The whole thing will be buried somewhere in the World's Fair ground this fall.

The "tomb," being built in the laboratories of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., is a cross between old King Tut's last resting place and something you would expect to find on Mars. It is called a "time capsule."

Like King Tut's tomb, the "capsule" will have an inner crypt and an outer chamber, and will look roughly like a shell from a Big Bertha. It will be 7 feet 2 inches long and 8 inches in diameter.

Since the "capsule" is expected to last 5,000 years, the outer shell is being constructed of a new metallic alloy, made principally of copper and small amounts of chromium and silver. It is as hard as steel, yet resists corrosion as well as pure copper.

The inner crypt will be 6 inches in diameter and slightly more than 6 feet long.

What articles will be buried in the "tomb" is put up to science and the public in the current issue of the magazine Science. To be acceptable, they should follow these lines:

Something to show how we appear, dress and talk.

Information as to where we live and work.

Description of our arts and entertainment.

A cross-section of our general information, and how it is diffused to us.

What we know of our world; its geology, geography, religion, philosophy, industry, government, history, medicine, science.

Police Fail to Recover Body of Manning; Canoe Upset in Potomac.

Day-long dragging of the Potomac River failed to recover the body of Alfred William Manning, 32, who plunged to his death early yesterday in an attempt to rescue a friend already safe.

Manning, a free lance cartoonist and artist, dove into the waters after he and Patrick H. Casey, an Agriculture Department employe, had made their way to Three Sisters Island above Key Bridge when their canoe had upset 100 yards off shore.

Casey told police that as Manning climbed to the rocks, he called out that he was all right. But Manning, apparently, thought his friend was in trouble, and dove in to make a rescue. He did not come to the surface again.

Manning was the son of W. T. Manning and Mrs. Katherine Manning, curator of philatelics at the National Museum. He lived at 1330 Columbia road northwest with his mother and two aunts, Mrs. Estelle Thompson and Miss Fraude Manning.

On his father's side he was related to Stephen O Hempstead, the last man to see Nathan Hale alive, and of Edward A. Hempstead, who helped negotiate the Louisiana Purchase. On his mother's side he was related to W. W. Corcoran, donor of the Corcoran Art Gallery.

He was born in Washington and was graduated from Gulfport Military Academy. Here he was member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

He also is survived by a daughter, Marcia, aged 10; two sisters,

PATRICK H. CASEY.

Miss Estelle Manning, student at Trinity College, and Mrs. Marie M. Wright, all of Washington, and three aunts, Mrs. Ruth Francis, of Wasnington; Mrs. Lucille Balch and Mrs. Charlotte Benton, both of Arlington, Va.

Casey was released pending a coroner's inquest. When Casey called to Manning, his cries were heard on shore by Miss Bertha Duncan, 4128 K street northwest, and James W. Pizzarello, 4132 K street northwest. They helped in the fruitless search in a motor boat and called harbor police.

Explorer Plans New Hunt for Paul Redfern

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 18 (AP).—Theodore J. Waldeck, explorer here in the interest of a city zoological garden, said today he planned a second expedition into the interior of Venezuela in an attempt to find the airplane of Paul Redfern and the aviator's remains.

Ten years ago Redfern vanished on a solo South American flight from Brunswick, Ga. Waldeck said that his party would fly in a pontoon-equipped plane to a base on the Cuyune River, only 3 miles from the spot where a native insisted he witnessed the crash of Redfern's plane.

Corrigan Just Misses Tank Holder in Detroit

Detroit, Aug. 13 (AP).—Douglas Corrigan, the "wrong-way" flier, was welcomed to Detroit today by a crowd police estimated at 25,000. He flew here from Buffalo in the old plane he used on the transatlantic flight.

City officials arranged to present Corrigan with an "hour-angle" watch designed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as an aid to flying. Corrigan narrowly missed a tall gas tank holder in landing at City Airport here.

Britain to Construct Sub-Strato Bombers

London (by mail) (AP).—Production of "sub-stratosphere" bombing planes for the air ministry is expected to start in the summer of 1940. The planes will weigh 70,000 pounds and their four engines will speed them along at 275 miles an hour at 25,000 feet. A pressure cabin will shield the crew.

Subway In 40 Days?

The perennial proposal to equip Washington with subways is in the air again. As far back as 1912 Congress received the suggestion in the shape of a bill which failed of enactment. Since then there have been periodic revivals of interest in the idea, perhaps the most substantial being that promoted four years ago by the then people's counsel. In the end, however, it too came to naught despite some hope that public works funds might become available. Although a special committee approved the plan and an expert drew actual sketches, little unanimity could be found among the citizen groups which participated in the deliberations.

The new interest in subways is promoted by Commissioner Allen who was an ardent supporter of the 1934 plans. Again he sees the possibility of obtaining PWA funds for an underground transit system. He has described his latest concept in only general terms but the fact that he mentions $2,500,000 as the total expense of a 2½-mile system indicates that it differs somewhat from earlier proposals. The estimated cost set by the last survey was approximately $4,000,000 a mile. However, this and other aspects of the Commissioner's plan will be the concern of a new committee appointed by him. Apparently the committee's task is to bring forth a subway plan before September 30, the deadline for PWA applications.

Although the committee presumably will have access to the data gathered by its several predecessors, it can scarcely content itself with merely indicating a feasible underground lay-out. To make its study complete the committee should take a broad view of the city's transportation needs. There is the question, for instance, of calculating the extent and probable directions of Washington's future growth. More immediately, there is the matter of traffic control. In the Nation-wide drive to reduce automobile accidents it has become apparent that engineering and city planning hold important keys to the solution. This being the case, any proposals to revamp Washington's transportation system must be drawn in closest co-operation with its traffic experts and planners. To draft plans that would adequately take into consideration all of these various angles and complete the job within 40 days seems to be utterly impossible.

We Stand Together.

At Kingston, Ontario, yesterday, President Roosevelt added an important codicil to the Monroe Doctrine and in so doing bore witness to the seriousness of the situation that confronts the world.

At Queen's University, which bestowed an honorary degree upon him, the President was within a stone's throw of that undefended border which separates but does not divide the people of Canada from those of the United States. This border has been a justifiable cause of mutual rejoicing. It is more than ever a cause for rejoicing today, with European borders bristling with armaments, with international passions on the rise in other parts of the world and with war clouds looming ominously over many a horizon.

But in addition to the unchanging fact of Canadian-American amity and good neighborliness both nations must now reckon with the dangers from without. We in the Americas, as the President has well said, "are no longer a faraway continent to which the eddies of controversies beyond the seas could bring no interest or no harm . . . The vast amount of our resources, the vigor of our commerce and the strength of our men have made us vital factors in world peace whether we choose or not."

The spirit of aggression which has manifested itself in so malign a fashion in Asia, Africa and Europe may possibly seek an outlet in this hemisphere, as well. It is, indeed, the realization of this possibility which has drawn the republics of this hemisphere steadily closer together.

Of this community of nations Canada has been and remains a silent partner. One of the largest of American nations it is, at the same time, a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations. But this circumstance constitutes no threat to the peace of this hemisphere. On the contrary, the link between Canada and Britain has always been a factor inhibiting imperialistic adventures on this side of the Atlantic by continental European powers.

Mr. Roosevelt has now made specific what has always been understood, that the security of Canada against outside attack, as the security of all other nations in this hemisphere, is of vital concern to the United States. Dramatic as it sounds, he was only stating a truism when he told our neighbors to the north that "the people of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

But this community of defense against outside attack is not all that Canada and the United States have in common. Both belong to the diminishing group of nations that continue to believe in peace and freedom in a world where, in large measure, these ideals are under brutal attack. More than ever, therefore, it is their inescapable duty to stand together so that at least this hemisphere "shall remain a strong citadel wherein civilization can flourish unimpaired."

A Basic Conflict Of Policy.

Secretary Wallace's plan to subsidize wheat exports suggests that it is time for some fundamental thinking on the trend of our national economic development. Export subsidies for wheat will lead to demands for similar treatment of cotton and other commodities. Such a policy cannot possibly be adopted without threatening to undermine the reciprocal trade agreements program.

For a number of years it has been obvious that the Administration is trying to move in two different directions to aid the farmer. Trade agreements have been negotiated with other countries to expand export markets. One of the foremost objectives of this program has been to enlarge foreign outlets for products of the farm. But the AAA has made it increasingly difficult to sell agricultural surpluses abroad. Its efforts have been directed chiefly toward the raising of agricultural prices to artificial levels, with little regard for the expansion of foreign trade.

Now Secretary Wallace has concluded that surplus American wheat cannot be sold abroad in any considerable volume without the aid of subsidies. So he is working on a plan that would reward farmers for the shipment of about 100,000,000 bushels of wheat to other countries at prices below those prevailing in the domestic market. While he admits that "unlimited pushing of exports would be disastrous" to the trade agreements program, he apparently believes that the AAA can take the first step toward such disaster with complete impunity.

As a matter of fact, there is a fundamental conflict between the policies being carried out by Secretaries Hull and Wallace. Mr. Hull is trying to induce the world to minimize trade barriers and move toward a freer international economy. The AAA is remodeling our agricultural system on the basis of national economy. The effect of its program, as the continued slump in cotton exports shows, is to curtail the movement of farm products abroad. With crop restrictions and price-pegging in effect, subsidies will probably be necessary on an increasing scale to stimulate the movement of farm commodities into world markets.

Since export subsidies tend to undermine reciprocal trade arrangements, the conflict between these diverse policies can no longer be ignored. Concessions obtained by the Department of State for farmers have little value if artificial prices make it impossible for basic crops of this country to compete in the world market on an even basis. It is time for the Administration to face this basic fact instead of adopting another expedient remedy that would lead to further confusion.

Mr. Wallace reports conferences between his department and the Department of State on the wheat subsidy plan. If recent speeches from officials of the latter department are any criterion, the AAA proposal will meet with stiff resistance. Assistant Secretary Sayre took a stand against export subsidies in a recent address in Mississippi. Only a fortnight ago Lynn R. Edminster, chief economic analyst of the Department of State, discussed the export subsidy policy in these sharp terms:

> Because it ignores the fundamental proposition that in order for a country to sell more it must buy more—that trade cannot operate on a one-way street—it is basically an unsound policy and foredoomed to cost the Nation more than any gains which it can possibly bring. Applied to agricultural and other natural products, it can only mean the virtual giving away to foreign countries of our natural resources and our soil fertility, at the expense of our own consumers and taxpayers. Without promise of good results on its own account, it would, on the other hand, weaken the efforts which are being made, through the trade-agreements program, to rebuild our foreign trade on sound principles. It is not the way out for the cotton growers, the wheat growers, or any other major group of producers.

If the Department of State persists in this attitude, as it probably will, the resulting conflict may lead to a reconsideration of the entire issue along fundamental lines. Certainly that would be more desirable than casual adoption of a subsidy program without regard for basic conflicts of policy.

A Plea For Open-Mindedness.

The memorandum prepared by A. A. Berle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State, for the Congressional committee investigating monopolies is an extraordinarily frank document. Intended to be a private and confidential communication, its publication is rather surprising in view of Mr. Berle's demolition of certain untenable assumptions that underlie the Administration's attacks upon big business.

"A fair criticism of the technique of the New Deal," he told the committee, "has been that it indulged shotgun imposition of regulation without adequate definition of standard." This is strong language, coming from a high Government official supposed to enjoy the President's confidence. However, Mr. Berle's penetrating analysis of the fallacies underlying New Deal efforts to control and regulate business is merely incidental to his endeavor to outline a method of investigation for the committee's guidance.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of his memorandum lies in the emphasis placed upon the importance of open-mindedness in the conduct of the monopoly probe. For instance, the committee is warned not to harbor a mistaken idea that a small business unit is necessarily competitive. The village grocery store of the old days could and often did charge monopoly prices. Moreover, small business is not always humane in its dealings with labor as evidenced by the "sweatshop" type of competition prevailing in certain small-unit industries. "Where there is no competition," the memorandum explains, "the small scale unit may or may not be a creditable piece of social machinery, depending entirely on the character of the men who run it."

Mr. Berle has much that is original and suggestive to say about the habit of discussing industrial efficiency without defining the term. As he points out, effectiveness in the technical or mechanical sense is not the same as efficiency in the financial sense. And neither kind of efficiency provides a guarantee that a business unit is not socially burdensome or wasteful of community resources.

That being the case, the investigating committee is urged not to harbor preconceived ideas about the kind of business organization which is most desirable. Instead, it should determine the type of industrial system that works and meets tests considered to be essential. "There is no need," Mr. Berle asserts, "to assume that these tests will be met by any single system or any single standard of size or set of practices at any given point."

The memorandum also exposes the confusion of thought of Administration spokesmen who have failed to distinguish between concentration of property and ownership. Mr. Berle confesses that he is unable to "get up any intellectual respect for books like Lundberg's Sixty Families (leaving aside the fact that it was extremely inaccurate) because property is one thing and power is another." On this subject he is entitled to speak authoritatively as joint author with Gardiner C. Means of an extensive study of "The Modern Corporation and Private Property." However, it does not require expert knowledge to realize that the modern corporate world is conspicuous for a divorce of ownership from management.

Mr. Berle himself does not believe that competition in large-scale industry always works out for the public good. On the contrary, he considers that under certain conditions the controlled cartel is preferable. In other cases, public ownership may provide the best form of business organization. In short, he pleads for an eclectic rather than a doctrinaire approach to problems involving the relationship between government and business. That is sound advice which the committee will doubtless take to heart.

Local WPA Administrator.

The many friends of Commissioner George E. Allen will be pleased to learn that his resignation from the local Board of Commissioners to take effect at the end of the month will not mean his instant disappearance from the Washington scene. He has announced he will remain as unpaid administrator of the local Works Progress Administration until a successor shall be named. It is a characteristically generous offer and one that does credit to a retiring public servant.

It is to be hoped, however, that in spite of the desire to keep Mr. Allen's pleasant personality in Washington, a permanent WPA administrator will soon be appointed. In company with the rest of the country, Washington has seen its WPA activities greatly expanded as a result of the new spending program. Since the end of June the number employed on District projects has increased from 8,995 to 12,251. In addition, there are approximately 1,500 Washingtonians working on Federal WPA projects here.

The proper administration of relief for 13,775 persons, disregarding the additional thousands who may yet be added to the rolls, is an exacting assignment. It cannot be regarded as a part-time job. So it would be unfair to both Mr. Allen and the local WPA to leave that responsibility upon his shoulders after he assumes his new private position. The quicker a competent, full-time executive is named, the better it will be for the morale and efficiency of the local WPA office.

Hazing The Press.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In the light of other performances by reigning powers the last few years, New Deal preference for a yes-press subservient to its commands, excites no surprise.

Senator Minton, chief hazer of the press, in a recent address makes numerous charges. The charges form so perfect an analogy to the New Deal's own performances that without qualifying reference one would almost mistake him to be describing that cult.

He accuses the newspapers, which he says are "big business," of telling the people "what they should think tomorrow." Yet the radio chats of the President and allies go them one better—offer to relieve them of the exertion of thinking at all by offering to do all of it for them, according to their own ideas and in their own way.

With politics a permanent part of relief spoils, they also advise the voter, with gentleness, of course, how to vote—or else. The implication of the disciplinary spiked club being inescapably in the background. Newspapers, by mere expression of opinion or presentation of the news (even if, as charged, distorted) have no similar power to enforce adherence to their ideas.

If it is a "crime to publish as fact anything that is false," is it less so for the "votes first" politician by means of ghosted radio appeals to befuddle the common man, reaching that large segment of swallowers of New Deal doctrine who can neither think—nor read; and for whose contamination the newspapers cannot justly be blamed?

Opinion persists that all of Senator Minton's counts against the press would magically dissolve, including the monopoly charges, if their sympathies and support were strenuously enlisted in favor of the New Deal as they have been against.

Downstream Classic?

From the Christian Science Monitor.

When Tom the Water Baby took his first trip under water he was amazed at the number of animals who made the water their home. Texan water sprites would have been equally amazed last week had they been playing in their Colorado River, for paddling south one warm day, no doubt using the "crawl," came a Travis County cow. Not content in merely demonstrating the aquatic ability of Lone Star stock, she set what may be an international record for her class and size; a 40-mile dash downstream. Some of her friends must have told her far fields were greener—and after her trek they must have tasted so.

In Rebuttal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Mr. E. Barr is a 100 per cent anti-New Dealer according to his own statement. Let us see where this places him? He is against the protection of the investing public since the Securities and Exchange Commission is on his list of pet aversions. He does not believe that bank deposits up to $5,000 should be protected since he scorns the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

His first solution to the unemployment problem would be the abolition of the "controlled scarcity" program. May it be noted that every co-operative organization of farmers instituted during the past 15 years has made controlled production one of its objectives? Any agricultural expert will agree that fewer acres of crop land more highly fertilized and the plants grown thereon receiving better care results in better profit to the grower. If my memory serves me well I recall that farm prices just before the advent of the New Deal necessitated the production of crops at a net loss. Under such conditions no one, not even the sharecropper, was able to meet his expenses.

After taking the farmers for a ride Mr. Barr would then seek to lower the wage levels of the laborers of the Nation. The result would then be a decreased purchasing power on the part of both the farmers and laborers.

Finally, Mr. Barr, if any businessman expects to make a profit it is imperative that he have purchasers with adequate purchasing power at their disposal. Ben Franklin, who said, "make a better mouse trap than your neighbor and the world will make a beaten path to your door," stated only a half-truth. For during the Hoover depression millions had not even the price of a mouse trap and it was not their fault. It was Thomas Jefferson, the sage of Monticello, who realized that prosperity must be built from the bottom up and not from the top down. Today, we have in the person of Franklin D. Roosevelt a champion of Jeffersonian Democracy.

Captious Of Captions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Once more Mr. Pegler and other writers rush to the defense of the freedom of the press. Is it not threatened by those cruel ones who have put into concrete legislative form the wish of intelligent people that in some fashion this press be encouraged to make an honest attempt at spreading the truth on its pages? I would not disparage Mr. Pegler's efforts or decry them. The American press needs a defender. The way in which it hounded and harried Col. Lindbergh out of the country is suggestive of an arrogant attitude that may in part explain its all too common disregard of the truth.

Let us hope that this arrogance does not bring to the press the conditions that it brought to the railroads. A democracy needs an active press. But what hope may we have for the education of the man in the street, when, for example, in this technical age the press, "the greatest single force for education," is so ignorant or so careless of truth as to publish roto pictures of "steel" propeller blades (really aluminum alloy) and write captions about "leather" belts on threshing outfits when the belt was without doubt a canvas fabric?

"Small things," you say. Perhaps. Perhaps straws in the wind. For $50 a week any paper or press service could hire a man with general technical education and experience who would keep 90 per cent of these silly errors out of print. Careless and cheap journalism should not be characteristic of our press. As for deliberate and willful misrepresentation of fact, any reader may collect his own examples. The "coloring" of news stories may in part be an unconscious result of deep conviction but is not always so. But remember, any attempt to oppose these practices is a treacherous blow at the sacred freedom of the press.

"I Love Thee, But—!"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The now famous contretemps between President Roosevelt and Senator George, of Georgia, has had wide repercussions throughout political circles. It has even awakened the lyre of a "A Sinner" in Wednesday's Post, to the tune of "My Friend." While the litterati are engaged in learned dissertation upon this polite exchange of political amenities it is somewhat surprising that the concept of this double meaning politeness has not been traced to Shakespeare.

Othello discontinues the services of his erstwhile faithful lieutenant with the polite benediction "Cassio, I love thee, but never more be officer of mine," which without alteration of meaning might well be translated into present-day political parlance "Walter, God bless you, but no longer be Senator of mine."

"Speak, Fido!"

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Lexicographers are supposed to know almost everything. At least about words. Dr. Wilfred J. Funk, who incidentally publishes dictionaries, announces the discovery that the average pet dog knows and responds to a vocabulary of about 60 words, and that the erudition of other dogs ranges from an acquaintance with ten or more words on the part of a self-taught, under-privileged, roving, street dog to a recognition of at least 250 different words by highly trained and sophisticated trick dogs. This all sounds pretty good for the dogs. In fact, Dr. Funk says the 60-word vocabulary of the average dog is about equal to that of an 18-month-old baby. But how many full-grown human beings, with all their supposedly superior advantages, know and can distinguish as many as 60 different words or meanings in the variegated yippings, mutterings and barks that make up a dog's language?

The National Side Of Local Taxes

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Fifty million dollars a year is the probable cost of operating the District of Columbia for the next five to ten years. As the Capital of a Nation spending billions in its ever-expanding operations, constantly increasing burdens must be borne. In addition costs of obsolescence due to the neglect during the World War, plus the increased cost due to price index and a higher standard of living, force heavier costs both for operation and capital outlay in the District.

That the Congress should have agreed at this very period to abrogate its obligation to bear a fair share of that cost; should have spent $100,000 making surveys that have been largely disregarded, when such a sum would have supported a local city council for five years to aid the Commissioners solve Washington's problems, is hard to understand in the face of the statistical arguments on other matters displayed by its members in the Congressional Record.

Because of its powers, the Congressional answer is "taxation." But when the basis for such taxation is sought in so limited and unique an area, the salaries, wages, interests, dividends, rents and profits common to the local economy, buy goods from the whole Nation. The real property values here are incidental to the presence, demands and disposition of the Government of the whole Nation, hence the whole Nation is justly and equitably responsible for a larger part of the operating costs of the District.

As a city, Washington is denied the benefits which most States confer on cities. As a State, Washington lacks the taxable resources such as raw materials, agriculture, manufactures and utilities comprising most Commonwealths. As the main office of the Federal Government, Washington lives largely upon salaries and skimped savings invested therefrom; but since those salaries are seldom generous for those in the majority, they limit the by-products to those who serve them as operators of business enterprises.

True it is that the continuance of the governmental operations causes neither great booms nor deep depressions as in commercial centers, but as everything comes from somewhere else, the costs are greater and the standards of efficiency subject to keener criticism. Taxing real property, regardless of the fact that it retards economic progress, and taxing the consumer, with exemptions, seem to offer the remedies for a situation which should be brought to the attention of the whole people of this country.

The Post Impressionist

Old Kentucky Home.

IT WAS my first visit to the ancestral acres and you can imagine with what feelings I approached the plantation house. By all the rules of O. Henry and Irvin Cobb the first to greet me should have been some old darky who had been with the family since slave times. Actually the first person I saw was my uncle.

He was sitting on the veranda with one of those long and cold ones. He was not, however, as I supposed at first, sipping a mint julep. He was swallerin' corn liquor neat. I think it safe to say there isn't a man in the United States that could sip the stuff my uncle drinks and have any throat left. His idea is to get the stuff down with the least possible wear and tear on the upper reaches of his alimentary canal.

So swiftly as that did I part with the first of my long cherished illusions. The next to go was the one about fried chicken. I will give the recipe and let you draw your own conclusion:

Catch one of the neighbor's chickens. (It doesn't have to be plump; after it is cooked no one can ever find any meat on it, anyway.) Pluck most of the feathers out of it. (Leave a few, though, to prove that the thing was once a chicken.) Take the fowl apart. (I think the usual term is to "joint" it, but some of us have the word "joint" down as a noun.) Plunk the chicken into a frying pan that is very old and hasn't been cleaned since it was new. Add enough lard to make it unappetizing and put it on the stove. Let it frizzle until the field hands come in; if the field hands don't come in just let it frizzle. (If it catches fire it is optional whether or not to extinguish it, the resultant food will be about the same.)

In the traditional plantation dinner there is a platter full of biscuits. Not so here, my aunt explained. She used to make biscuit, but the young 'uns would throw the left-over biscuits at the mules. After three mules had been killed she had taken to buying store bread.

After the indigestion has been relieved one has a choice of afternoon activities. On Kentucky plantations in the novels there is a stable full of race horses. Again this farm shatters tradition with reckless abandon. The stable is called a barn and there are no race horses. There are several mules, upon which one might venture to ride only if his life insurance premiums were paid.

Still there is always rabbit and bird shooting, so I elected to go hunting.

I had always thought that the usual procedure was to have a pack of hounds to chase the rabbits, but I was informed that the rabbits they had in that country would kill any hound this side of Inner Mongolia.

So I decided to follow the local practice of "stirring rabbits." One pokes in likely looking brush until a rabbit jumps out. You then draw a bead on him and blast. I procured a shotgun that must have drilled many a damned Yank in the War, filled my pockets with shells and staggered off in the direction of the river, leading the permanent residents to hope I might fall in.

• • • •

As instructed, I kicked at a likely looking brush, wondering just how vicious the Kentucky rabbits really were. The first one I "stirred" scared me out of my after dinner hiccoughs. This sets my blood to berlin', as they say, and I vowed to annihilate the next bunny that crossed my sights. I spied one sitting on a stump. I hoisted my gun, drew a bead, shut both eyes firmly, apologized for all my sins, and pulled the trigger. After I got up off the ground I looked around for the corpse. I was saved from numerous sleepless nights by not seeing any. I sank into a deep reverie about how lucky I was in not having to go home with blood on my hands. (By this I don't mean to imply that there was any serious lack of soap on the plantation.) I was snapped out of it by the sight of a farmer dashing madly toward me with a dead hen in his hands.

I took one look at that demolished egg-factory and lighted out through the woods. Anyhow, I promised myself as I ran, I'll be late for the lynching.

• • • •

Because of a certain holiday aspect of the first day of my visit my uncle decided to stay up late and listen to the radio. But this turns out to be their idea of a joke, because at 7 o'clock the radio was shut off and the beds made ready. I helped chase the chickens out of the house and then we turned in.

I strove vainly to go to sleep. The family ghost, doubtless feeling sorry for me, tried his best to entertain me, but as an entertainer he was a bust.

I was awakened by the house boy, who would have made a blackboard look anemic. He advised that breakfast was in the process of being fried. I looked at my clock and swore at the worthless rascal for waking me up in the middle of the night.

When I arrived at the breakfast table I was shocked by the inroads civilization had made. I saw a glaring package of breakfast food sitting on the table like it owned the place. I disdainfully declined the stuff and said that I would try an egg. All I did was to try it. I stuck my fork into it in the interests of science. When I withdrew it and ruefully examined the tines I found them bent beyond repair.

Jimmy's Taxes.

WHILE we were waiting for Jimmy Roosevelt to drop that other shoe there can be no harm in observing that, although the title of his piece is "I'm Glad You Asked Me," the question was put to the Little Eagle of the dynasty just about a year ago. It was put by Representative Treadway—a Republican, to be sure, and thus a man of little standing in the Eaglet's kingdom of Massachusetts—in a carefully prepared statement delivered on the floor of the House.

From the title, "I'm Glad You Asked Me," it might be thought that the question whether the President's son profited from dealings with firms subject to the whims of the Government had been raised only yesterday and that Jimmy's reply in Collier's was the spontaneous comeback of a man quick to answer a challenge.

BUT Representative Treadway on August 14 last year reported to the House that he had been thwarted in an attempt to compel the Joint Committee on Tax Avoidance to analyze the Eaglet's returns. He said that Jimmy did appear before the committee but that when he, Treadway, asked him some questions he was choked off. And, although Jimmy's tax return was offered for scrutiny, the committee voted down Mr. Treadway's request that an impartial expert be called to analyze it. He added that anyone with experience knows that it takes an expert to make anything out of such documents.

This committee was the one which went to town on the President's charge that many individuals, mainly Royalists and Copperheads, had used devices to evade and avoid their taxes. He mentioned unethical and immoral conduct. Some of those so accused vindicated themselves, but whether there was intent to smear and whether they were smeared, notwithstanding the failure to convict them of anything worse than compliance with the law, is a matter of individual opinion. The returns of the accused were minutely analyzed and publicized, but those of the Eaglet and Henry Morgenthau were protected from such scrutiny, although Representative Ham Fish, a Republican who represents Henry's home district in the Hudson River dude country, had gone before the committee and charged that Henry had availed himself of a tax loophole, a device having the color, if not, indeed, the substance, of legality, before Congress plugged the loophole.

Mr. Treadway said Henry's returns, like Jimmy's, were produced but that it was impossible to make head or tail of them because a majority of the committee refused to permit a staff of experts to help. The reason for the emphasis on loopholes lay in the resounding scorn of the President's remarks about attacks on the legitimate revenues of Government and "clever little schemes" which undermine the foundation of society.

• • • •

INCIDENTALLY, Jimmy himself, in his first installment under the title "I'm Glad You Asked Me," admits that he split with his wife his interest in his insurance firm, thus reducing his Federal and State taxes—a clever little scheme that his lawyer indorsed as having not only the complexion but the true character of legality. That this was detrimental to the revenue of Government seems to need no arguing, but it is a fine question whether it was an attack on the "legitimate" revenues of Government and thus on the foundations of society.

• • • •

ALVA JOHNSTON and the Saturday Evening Post have been jabbed with the finger of scorn for putting a question which Jimmy says he is glad they asked, and there have been some murmurs of dirty journalism as well. But, bless you, neither Mr. Johnson nor The Post asked the question first, nor as pointedly as a member of the United States Congress holding a mandate from the people of Massachusetts, who in consistency with the New Deal theory of mandates, may be presumed to have clamored for this information even as the committee clamored for information regarding the tax returns of the heretics. If this was dirty journalism, then, by comparison with Mr. Treadway's remark in Congess, it only goes to prove that, as I was saying to Senator Minton the other day, the papers aren't one-to-six with the members of the legislative body when it comes to lying and slander.

I think it only goes to show that Mr. Jesse Jones, of the RFC spoke the whole personal philosophy of all the official New Dealers the other day when a reporter asked him to reconcile his demand for more lending by banks with the fact that his own banks have shown a decrease in such loans. Mr. Jones replied, "I don't want people to do as I do but do as I tell them."

Only Aid to China Prolongs Conflict, Japan Editor Says

Glacier Park, Mont., Aug. 18 (AP).—Japan's war with China will end, a Japanese editor asserted here, "as soon as the British and Russians stop helping the Chinese."

"The belief that Japan is hard hit financially by the present war is far from true," said Dr. Kiichi Miyake, editor of the Tokyo Nichi Nichi Shimbun and Osaka Mainchi Shimbun and one of 15 Japanese newspapermen who stopped here last night en route to Germany and Italy.

"The resources of Japan will be sufficient to continue the war for two or three years."

The newspaper group is due in Chicago tomorrow and will visit Washington before sailing from New York August 27.

O'Connor Reply to Roosevelt

First, let me thank the Columbia Broadcasting System for this opportunity to briefly reply to the attack on me made by the President of the United States.

Two days ago, at his press conference, the President read an editorial from a New York City paper, and said:

"You can interpret that as coming from me."

That editorial contained a brief, but viciously untrue, reference to me and my record in the Congress of the United States.

Immediately after the adoption by the President of that editorial as his own words, I stated, in part:

"The President saw fit to quote an editorial in a newspaper long since regarded as communistic . . .

"Like Senator George, I, too, accept the challenge.

"The voters of the Sixteenth Congressional District will alone decide who will represent them in the House of Representatives." . . .

When I referred to that particular newspaper as being "communistic," I had as part of my authority the official record of proceedings in the House of Representatives of the United States as contained in the Congressional Record of December 21, 1937, at page 2639, March 8, 1938, at page 4058, and April 5, 1938, at page 6270.

Believing in the truth of my assertion, based on those and many other authorities, I paid no attention to the insulting editorial until the President adopted the malicious, unfounded statement as his own utterance.

It is difficult to believe the President would himself "speak the same language" as that editorial, including the word "pickle," or personally utter the misstatements in the first instance.

Nearly every man in public life, especially every Democrat in New York City, has been insulted by that newspaper.

But it is quite different to be insulted by the President of the United States. One necessarily feels it very keenly and naturally is at a disadvantage to reply in kind. He must respect the high office of President of the United States—the greatest office in all the world—and I have always shown my respect for that office, irrespective of the political party to which the occupant at any particular time belonged.

I would be derelict, however, in my duty as a representative elected by the people and as an American citizen if I did not express myself as to what I believe to be the issue now definitely raised in this country.

Will the "purge" work in America?

The editorial, which the President adopted as stating his own position, attempted to justify the President's "interference" in the election of United States Senators and Representatives in Congress. It is probably the only editorial published throughout the Nation to date which has approved of the President's challenge to representative government. The other newspapers throughout the country have been outspoken in opposition to the President's frank appeal to have only "yes men" in Congress—men who will not think or act independently, but will at all times obey the wish or the dictate of the Chief Executive.

The suggestion must necessarily come as a shock to America.

It is not the challenge to me personally that matters. The President's attack on me and other members of Congress is a challenge to America and its present form of government.

It is a challenge to our established system of representative government.

It is an escalator to a distatorship.

The repetitious disavowal of any desire to become a dictator cannot be taken at full faith when actions evidence the contrary.

No dictator in Europe would for one moment admit he is a dictator. They all palaver and prate honeyed words about "democracy" and justify their every act—no matter how drastic—as for the best interest of their "free" people. They all claim to be supported by a "mandate" from the people.

In carrying out this "mandate," they ignore all minorities, however great. Can America ever subscribe to that?

One of the distinctive features of our form of government, bequeathed to us by our people, however small, must be respected and never infringed upon by any majority, however great. Witness our Bill of Rights. No "mandate" from 60 per cent, yea, even 99 per cent, of the people, was ever intended to offer any excuse for a violation of those fundamental rights.

Under those guarantees our representative form of government has been successful for a century and a half. Our party system of politics has contributed to that success. The independence of thought and action by our representatives has never heretofore been challenged. Honest differences of opinion, even within a particular party itself, have contributed greatly to the solution of our national problems, and up to recent times it was never branded as treason or "anti" this or that.

"100 per cent" this, or "100 per cent" that, is a very recent innovation in our national ideology.

The dictator demands the "100 per cent"—and, of course, will last only as long as he has it.

Current history records that the first step of the dictator is to abolish, or make impotent, the legislative branch of the government. That step is indispensable to the fullfillment of his program and the attainment of his "100 per cent."

What the American people are seriously concerned about, at this very moment, is this demand of the President for only "yes-men" in our parliament. They are asking each other: "Well, what is the difference between that and having no legislative branch of the government at all?"

Does it not, either way, lead inevitably to the same end—one-man government?

Are we ready for that? That is the issue, concisely.

Which shall it be—democracy or monocracy?

There are still some of us left who recall that our forefathers established the American system of government after a revolution against one-man government; that they set up a tirparitite system, an Executive, a Legislature and a Court, to remain forever independent of each other's encroachments.

Are they still independent, or do we now stand at Thermopylae?

If we are to revert to a one-man government, the people should be made conscious of the issue at once. If that is the form of government they desire, that is the form of government they will get.

But if they submit to the change, they should do it with their eyes open.

That is why I and 107 other Democrats opposed the reorganization bill—the one unabsolvable "sin" which has placed me high on the "purge list." Other names are inscribed on that roll of former communicants because they honestly feared there was a desire on the part of the Executive to control the court branch of our Government.

As for my vote on the reorganization bill, I, for one, would never want my name removed from that "list," because it was readily apparent that possibly 95 per cent of our people saw in that bill the threat of a dictatorship. That is why the bill was opposed by every church group in America, by every veterans organization in America, by every responsible labor organization in America, by the Government employes, by every patriotic organization throughout the land and by practically every newspaper in our country except the Communist press.

The same issue was raised then on that memorable day of April 8, 1938, as is now raised in the coming election—shall our present Democratic system of government be preserved?

The editorial which the President accepted as his own text used an expression only recently current that the "President is the responsible head" of the Government. That is an entirely new conception in America. It is true that he is called "the Chief Executive," the head of one of the three independent branches of the Government, but each and every member of the other two branches have their own responsibility direct, and separate and apart from any responsibility to the President.

A Representative has no responsibility to the President.

How the opposite of that axiom grew is difficult to understand. The responsibility of a Representative is to the people whom he represents and his country. He is elected directly by the people—to them only is he accountable—and that is so, whether or not the Chief Executive is a member of the same political party.

Much is said in these days of Representatives having ridden into office "on the President's coattails." I was elected to the House of Representatives by the people of the Sixteenth Congressional District in 1923, nine years before Mr. Roosevelt became President of the United States. I have been re-elected seven times by the voters of the Sixteenth Congressional District.

That has always been and, pray God, always will be, the exclusive province of the electorate of our district.

If the "purge" is going to work in America, the sooner we know it, the better.

I, for one, have no hesitancy in snatching up the gage which the President has thrown down.

My abiding faith in the love of the American people for a democratic form of government inspires me to be willing to meet the challenge at Philippi.

The "purge" just cannot succeed in America.

Asking For Trouble

By Ernest Lindley

How To Provoke A Witch Hunt

THE UNCANNY ability which some businessmen have for inviting trouble for themselves is illustrated by information that has reached some of the members of the temporary National Economic Committee—the monopoly investigation—during the last few days. This information is that in at least three specific instances business concerns have sought legal assistance in removing from their files all material which might prove to be embarrassing if their records were subpenaed by the monopoly committee.

The committee members have made no attempt to ascertain whether these three cases of which they have heard are isolated or whether they are indicative of a precautionary exiting of files by certain branches of industry. They do not know what kind of material is considered embarrassing by the three concerns which have sought this kind of legal assistance. They presume that it is material related to price-fixing or to informal agreements to raise or lower prices in certain industries. They do not know that any business concern actually has edited its files as yet, but they are satisfied that they are correctly informed concerning three which have sought legal aid for this purpose. From one source they received the explanation that the aim was only to remove and destroy material which "might be misunderstood."

THE DESTRUCTION of records because they are, or may be, of interest to an investigating body raises some obvious questions of ethics—on the part both of the businessmen concerned and of the members of the legal profession who assist in it. The practice probably is to be expected where crime or conscious moral delinquency are involved. Many Federal investigations have encountered the destruction of records. Sometimes they have been balked by the disappearance of evidence. But often enough the destruction has been incomplete, and the embarrassing document removed from one file has shown up in another.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, chairman, and the other members of the monopoly committee have given every kind of assurance that they are not engaging in a "witch-hunt," that they are not intent upon pillorying anyone. They have had to overcome not only the instinctive suspicion of businessmen of most Government inquiries but the insistent warnings from various hostile sources that, notwithstanding these assurances, the real purpose of the investigation is political in the narrow sense.

• • • •

IT IS TRUE that the arrival of the monopoly investigation was preceded by some thundering speeches by such New Dealers as Harold L. Ickes and Robert H. Jackson. There have been thundering speeches on monopoly, Wall Street and the concentration of wealth for more than half a century, and there will be more. The monopoly investigation has a political objective in the sense that it is intended to result in a program of action. But it has been placed in the hands of men who clearly wish to make a thorough and unemotional examination of the operation of the American business system. They have begun their work, not by feeling around for a subject for a sensational public hearing, but by undertaking 12 or 15 analyses of data already in the hands of Government agencies concerning American business practices. In various informal conferences they have invited the co-operation of businessmen in making their studies accurate and complete.

In due course, the committee will want to supplement the information which the Government already has by sending out questionnaires, by subpenaing records and by public hearings. A questionnaire to be sent to the life insurance companies is now being prepared in the Securities and Exchange Commission. When business executives can be relied upon to give truthful answers, a questionnaire is the simplest and quickest method of obtaining information.

BUT WHEN he hears from reliable sources that a business concern is doctoring its records, the natural reaction of any investigator is to wonder why. The monopoly committee would be wholly justified in impounding immediately the files of the establishments about which it has heard such reports and of other concerns in the same branches of industry.

Actually, no such incisive response from the committee seems to be contemplated—yet. Senator O'Mahoney asserts that "There aren't five lawyers in the country who could hide the evidence we want." Another spokesman for the committee says that "we are not going to be stampeded into a scramble for information which we already have." The fact seems to be that in the records of the Federal Trade Commission, the Department of Justice, the defunct NRA and various other agencies, there already is such a wealth of information concerning the control of prices in almost all lines of business that members of the monopoly committee are not greatly worried about the reports that three business establishments want their files expertly deleted. But the example set by these concerns is lively provocation for enough "witch-hunting" to provide a few lively public hearings. If the monopoly committee decides that it needs a little sensational flavoring for its analyses and charts, it will know where to begin looking for it.

You could always identify it as a war because the fighting was under way.

Now:
The fact that fighting is under way is declared to mean nothing more than that one nation is trying to do something for another nation's own good.

• • • •

Then:
War could be started by a single shooting of an archduke, a lieutenant of marines or a vice consul.

Now:
You can shoot down a dozen archdukes, bomb the marine corps and wipe out an embassy and still have the debate over whether it's a war or an incident go on for months.

• • • •

Then:
There was a fair chance of averting a war through a stern ultimatum.

Now:
They don't even read the ultimatum until the second year of the war.

• • • •

Then:
A pretty good way to start a war was to tear down a flag or spit on a national emblem.

Now:
You can egg the colors, throw the emblem into an ash can and get nothing more than a phone message, asking: "Can't we get together and stop this sort of thing?"

• • • •

Then:
You thought of war in terms of gallantry, great personal valor and national honor.

Now:
If you can associate gallantry with war you can associate bravery with the slaughter of the innocents, think of personal valor as throwing a gas bomb into a nursery and link national honor with mayhem, manslaughter and arson.

• • • •

Then:
A soldier liked to have his picture taken and sent home to his relatives and friends.

Now:
He doesn't want any evidence that he had any part in the darned thing preserved for those who up to that time had thought well of him.

• • • •

Then:
You had to have an inspiring slogan for a first-class war.

Now:
They're all fought under the one cry of "Get the women and children first."

• • • •

Then:
There was a code of honor, a civilized viewpoint and international agreements on what constituted civilized conduct.

Now:
Say, whatever became of those things, anyhow?

Anti-Semitism

(A Catholic Protest.)

The church must not, and will not, condone persecution of an honest racial minority. There is a world of difference between a studied intellecual conviction on doctrine and the defense of human liberty and life itself.

The church owes much to Judaism. No Catholic can repudiate this debt either in an attitude toward history or toward that morality which was struck in stone on the slopes of Mount Sinai. Above all, no real Christian can deny the Jew his right to live.

Catholicism is a religion of love and freedom, not of suppression. Catholics themselves insist upon being heard in the courts of justice and right. The Jew has the same privilege to plead before the tribunals of the world as a man and as a creature of God.

No true Catholic will take part in the persecution of his Jewish compatriot—a blow against the Jew is a blow against our common humanity. Intellectually we believe the Jew is mistaken in his doctrine and belief.

As Catholics and as Christians, we hail the Jew's liberty as our common liberty, his law as a tradition of righteousness. We must not sully out Christianity by a savage attack on those who gave us our Saviour. We must stand fast for the Son of God as against the duplicity and the doctrines of evil men.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett.

Down The Mississippi.

"HULLO, you Eskimos," the boys shouted at Maj. R. Raven-Hart, English and bearded, when, in what he calls a canoe, he and a young American started paddling down the Mississippi from Hannibal, Mo., to Baton Rouge, La.

To the Missouri boys the major's craft looked like a kayak. It was really a German-built Faltboot, 17 feet long, made of seven-ply rubber and canvas, and decked in, Eskimo fashion. "Down the Mississippi" (Houghton, $3) is the major's story of his journey, and a very pleasant book it is, whether read as a commentary on Mark Twain, on the Mississippi, or on the peculiarities of the American species, as noted by an observant, friendly Englishman.

The major is a fanatical canoeist. He has paddled most of the rivers of Europe, and, apparently, written about them. He was continually amazed at the emptiness of the Mississippi. It astonished him that the passage of a canoe was subject for news stories in most of the old river cities. He seemed almost as much of a freak as the gentleman he passed somewhere below Hickman, Ky.; this adventurer was swimming down the river from St. Paul to New Orleans, appearing at movie houses along the way.

• • • •

MAJ. RAVEN-HART had prepared himself carefully for his journey. He was well equipped with charts, and he had studied Mark Twain and several later writers on the river. But he made his own discoveries, and his comments on American ways are always entertaining.

The Missouri, where it meets the Mississippi River, he insists, is by far the cleaner river, contrary to our school-book superstitutions. Riverfolk may refer to "Old Man River" in the terms of the song, but outside of that phrase the river is always "she" or "it," never "he." And neither Memphis or Vicksburg is any longer on the Mississippi River at all; Memphis is on the Wolf, Vicksburg on the Yazoo.

• • • •

River food delighted this Englishman. Catfish, as cooked at Hannibal, Mo., the major calls "smooth nectar." He did not meet succotash until he reached Louisiana, and was astonished to find it "not a vegetable but a heavenly blend of corn and beans." He even found good custard pie, which was something of a triumph. He ate "turnips" in the South, but preferred the roots to the tops, and had to ask for "turnip roots" when he did not want greens.

However, he was not totally Americanized. The cow peas, he insists, tasted "like beans that had gone musty and then been burned in the cooking." Cane syrup had a "curious medicinal taste, suggesting turpentine or coal oil or something else elusive but unpleasant." Persimmons neither pleased nor puckered him—"a smooth, custardy texture," he pronounces, "but as little taste as the average custard, less interesting even than bananas, which up to then I had considered the dullest of all fruits." (They are—raw.) He had never even heard of pecans in England; he munched them with sheer ecstasy.

SOMETIMES the major was almost too tolerant of strange American foods. In Memphis he ate "a candied apple, rolled in syrup and then grated in cocoanut and mounted on a stick," and seems to have liked it, which is good cause for suspecting his taste. He had a passion for chocolate, and reports that storekeepers gave him a powder instead of a cake unless he asked for "chocolate candy;" if he had said "sweet chocolate" he might have been even more successful.

On cheese, at least, he was thoroughly sound. At most places he could obtain no true cheese, but only "a factory product, a messed-up paste, uneatable." It is sadly true that the old American pride in local cheeses almost has disappeared, except perhaps in Phil La Follette's Wisconsin and in George Aiken's Vermont. Canada once boasted of her cheeses; in Quebec, last month I found menus ending with "fromage Kraft." "It's better than they make here," the hotel keepers insisted.

The American language fascinated him. In New Orleans he was delighted to find the natives dropping their "r's" when they spoke French, just as they did when speaking English. He learned to say Muzoura and Arkansaw and N'Yawlins; he learned to say "gallus" instead of "brace;" and to make "quinine" rhyme with "try nine" instead of, as in England, the vowel sounds of "win clean." He picked up at least six different pronunciations for "bayou."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

Expose.

Of all the things of the year, the charge that Honest Fred Silox of the Forest Service is a Communist, was certainly the most surprising. For of all the 100 per cent American crowds in the Federal service, the Forestry people are No. 1, if our observation means anything. But there is one dark and deep fact which the Red Hunters didn't bring out. It is something that this column long has wanted to expose; it is something that America should know in these troubled days of stress and intrigue. It is this:

There is a rumor among all foresters, and they whisper it around camp fires when the broad American night is a harp and the wind is in the forest crown—they say that if you want to get anywhere in the Forest service you must come out of Yale!

There is something for the investigating committee! And when the investigation gets under way, you may hear from some anteroom the soft notes of "Boola Boola," or "Here's to Good Old Yale, Drink 'er Down"—and there will be the proof that the Forest Service, America's fine guardian of trees, is a subversive influence in this land of the free and this home of the brave! . . .

During the long-to-be-remembered hot weather of Monday and Tuesday, when all the Agriculture Department boys and girls whose offices are not air conditioned were dismissed because of the heat, the Department's dirt farmers at the Beltsville Experimental Farm kept working, in the sun . . .

• • • •

The U. F. W. A. Local 10 (SSB) is disturbed about the lack of fire escapes on one of the buildings, has discussed the matter with the National Park Service, which has to do with the buildings, and, if nothing comes from that, the local will go to the private owner of the structure . . .

On Exhaling.

The Guardian at the Gate," organ of the Immigration-Naturalization Inspectors' and Examiners' Association, prints a suggestion to pistol shooters:

"A few years ago I talked with an East Indian Yogi who told me that the secret of the ability of the East Indian religious posers to remain motionless for interminable periods is controlled respiration, especially exhalation. He said that any person who has learned properly to exhale can remain motionless for indefinite periods. His explanation of the above was 'inhalation is inspiration, exhalation is relaxation.' Regarding the application of respiration to marksmanship, I discovered that if one inhales while raising his pistol ready for aiming, filling the lungs comfortably, but not too full, and exhales slowly and gently while aiming and firing, he can hold his pistol perfectly motionless. It will be found that the act of exhaling automatically relaxes the large abdominal muscle, which in turn relaxes all the other muscles of the body, making for a steady aim."

This should interest the I. D. R. A. pistol team. It works. We tried it out a moment ago at the corner restaurant to discover that the problem of eating green peas with your knife is solved now and for future generations. Not a pea rolled off the knife. But we warn you to perfect a system of coordination between the exhale and the inhale. . A faulty system will make you swallow the knife.

Safety Value.

The argument over moving the Immigration and Naturalization employes from the fifth floor of the Labor Building continues to stew and fume. You will recall that the order will send them either to the ill-lighted, ill-ventilated sixth floor or else to a remodeled garage on Fourteenth street. One of the employes affected by the order writes us an interesting letter, titled, "Shall Immigration and Naturalization Service Be Deported," and our correspondent reflects:

"Why can't we have a Government service like the British have? It seems so absolutely asinine, ridiculous, ludicrous, absurd, etc., ad infinitum, to cart away tens of thousands of files to make room for a division which as yet has no files, or few files" (The reference is to the wage-hour division, which is slated to take over the fifth floor after the Immigration and Naturalization people get the boot) . . .

"Yippee!" our correspondent continues, "anything to spend the Government's money; anything to keep the Government clerk in a stew; anything to add to the feeling of insecurity of the Government clerk. All of this works for efficiency!" . . .

Movie Producers Heed Dewey Plea Not to Film Him

Hollywood, Aug. 18 (AP).—Thomas E. Dewey, New York's active prosecutor, is taboo as a movie subject.

There isn't a studio without a story based on Dewey, but a spokesman for the Motion Picture Producers Association said today Dewey has forbidden such a portrayal.

The district attorney is said to have written to Will H. Hays, film czar, as well as to friends in the industry, saying he would dislike seeing himself, directly or by inference, in the movies.

Voters' Bureau Notifies Of Elections in 2 States

Arizona and Illinois voters are being notified by the absentee voters bureau of the Democratic National Committee, concerning voting in their States.

Arizonians may vote by mail in both the primaries and regular election if they register by mail between September 19 and October 8. They must file applications for ballots in the primary before September 5. A special registration trip, leaving here September 2 for Chicago is being arranged for Illinois' voters.

G. O. P. Sponsors Contest for Young Orators in Party

The Republican National Committee and the Young Republican National Federation announced yesterday they would sponsor an oratorical contest for persons between the ages of 16 and 24. Prizes totaling $15,000 will be awarded.

First competition will be in county contests early in October. Winners will advance through district, State and regional matches to the final contest at Washington, November 1.

Contestants must be a member or an associate member of a Young Republican club affiliated with the national federation.

4 Concerts Scheduled.

Band concerts will be given from 7:30 to 9 p. m. at the World War Memorial in West Potomac Park on Monday by the Army Band, Tuesday by the Navy Band, and Thursday by the Marine Band, the National Capital Parks office announced yesterday. Thursday the Elks Boys Band will play at Edgewood Park, Third and Evarts streets northeast.

World Premiere of 'Carefree' Slated for Keith's Next Week

New Astaire-Rogers Filmusical to Be Shown First Here and in Boston; 'Going Native' Principals; New Plays for Olney; Veteran Manager at Atlas; Jottings.

WASHINGTON, next week, will share in the world premiere of another important film.

When "Carefree," RKO-Radio's new filmusical, reuniting Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers after a temporary professional separation, is broken out on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater at two special preview showings next Wednesday night, August 24, Washington audiences will share with Boston's the honor of being the first to view this new release at any public presentation.

BELL.

This advance showing of "Carefree"—the national release date is September 2—will not be in the nature of a "Hollywood permeer," but, more important to local pocketbooks, will represent another of those "two-for-one" amusement bargains that are a boon to thrifty theatergoers. The house will not be cleared of the last "Letter of Introduction" audience, but those in attendance when "Carefree" goes on for the first time, somewhere in the neighborhood of 7 p. m., will be permitted to remain for the new feature without additional charge. The Astaire-Rogers vehicle will be screened a second time Wednesday night, before taking over the regular "all-day grind" schedule on Thursday morning.

Having already established dance vogues with such creations as the "Carioca," "Continental" and "Piccolino," Fred and Ginger will introduce a new terpsichorean novelty in "Carefree," known as "The Yam." According to all grapevine report, this will prove to be a real sweet potato. While it affords the dancing stars opportunity again to demonstrate their extraordinary expertness as team-steppers, it also is said to be fundamentally so simple as to be easily adaptable to the ballroom uses of the casual layman who dances only for his own, or her own, amazement. That fact, however, probably will not be perceptible when Fred and Ginger spin it off on the screen. They have tricked out "The Yam" with all manner of speedy intricacies that are well beyond the capabilities of the ordinary lay "dogs."

Of course, there is always the "out" that dogs don't like yams, anyhow.

• • • •

Today is the day at Loew's Capitol Theater. On the evidence of past years, "Going Native," sixth in the annual line of all-local revues, will pack the big F street house with relatives, friends and well-wishers of the members of the resident cast and chorus who hope that this production will prove the open sesame to future stage greatness—or at least a whirl at it. In order to facilitate the checking of the entries, the high-pressure activities of the past few weeks may be recapitulated into the following list of participants: Lee Everett, radio star and master of ceremonies, will introduce Milbourne Christopher, magic man; Helen Forrest and Earline King, songstresses; "Tiny" Meeker and his 300 pounds of fun and songs; Wilbur Hall's rope trickery; the musico-dancing specialty of the pulchritudinous Lyons twins; Eulla Sholt's acrobatics, John High Smith and His Five Shades of Tantalizing Rhythm and the chorus of dancing beauties assembled by Chester Hale.

Quite a bill on any man's stage.

• • • •

At least two new plays will be given their pre-Broadway, try-out productions at Stephen E. Cochran's new Olney Theater before the present season of summer drama has ended.

The first, tentatively set for the week of August 29, will be a new comedy by Anne Grosvenor Ayres and Frances Reynolds, daughter of the Senator from North Carolina. The authors will assist personally in the casting and staging of this work, already in contemplation for later Broadway production.

The second will be "Romance Extended," a new collaboration by Taylor Holmes and Norman Clark, Baltimore drama critic. Mr. Holmes, last seen in Washington as Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road" and more recently cast as Secretary Morgenthau in "I'd Rather Be Right," with George M. Cohen, will be the Olney's guest star the week of September 12 to appear in his own play. He then will rejoin the Cohan company of "I'd Rather Be Right" for the road tour.

This isn't the last you'll be hearing of these new candidates for Broadway favor.

Charles Clark, a veteran in the field of motion picture exhibition, who began his managerial career under the aegis of the late Harry M. Crandall, founder of the circuit now controlled by the Warner Brothers in Washington and vicinity, has returned to the Capital to assume the managership of the new Atlas Theater, to be thrown open to the public at 1331 H street northeast late this month. After having served as manager of the Home, Colony, Savoy and Avalon theaters, Mr. Clark joined the Warner forces and served in similar capacities in Frederick and Hagerstown, Md., and Staunton, Va. During the past year he resigned from the Staunton post to establish a business of his own, but the "call of the wild" was too strong.

Thus the Atlas will have the advantage of an experienced manager who finds it difficult to divorce himself from "show business." When Charlie called at this desk yesterday he was fit to burst with pride in the new neighborhood house, which even Architect John J. Zink admits is the best of its kind he ever has blue-printed. Yeah, I know, "that's what they all say!"

• • • •

Yesterday's suspicion that the Warner Brothers think they "have something" in their picturization of the stage hit, "Boy Meets Girl," is borne out by the tip that they are screening the Jim Cagney-Pat O'Brien celluloid comedy for the drama-desk peepers on Monday at 1:30.

One of the things to watch for in this unfurling of the Spewack hilarity, one is led to believe, is the work of Marie Wilson, who first came to notice as the cinema's most irritating telephone girl in a series of pictures in which the switchboards were important. They say Miss Wilson walks off with a few scenes in "Boy Meets Girl" which, under the law, no one should be able to "steal" from the male stars. If she gets away with it she must be good. Very good.

• • • •

Following the deluge and lower temperatures, the downtown box-offices will snap back to normal. With the dismissal of Government departments on two successive afternoons by reason of the extreme heat, the midcity picture houses, with their Arctic refrigeration plants, bulged with capacity patronage, thus insuring more than one "hold-over" which theretofore had been doubtful. It's an ill heat wave that blow-torches nobody good. But I still think a dip in the ocean would be all right.

• • • •

Personal aside to Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard, Olney Theater: Please accept my belated but nonetheless sincere thanks for your gracious note of August 11. It is very deeply appreciated.

• • • •

Taking-Time-by-the-Fetlock Note.

Big Town Fans, It Seems, Miss Two Ace Stars

Autry and Burnette Are Kids' Favorites on 'Main Street.'

By Frederick C. Othman.

Hollywood, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Ever hear of Smiley Burnette?

If you live in a big city you haven't, so read on and learn something about one of Hollywood's funniest comedians. If you're a small-towner, don't waste your time here, because you doubtless know him better than we do.

Burnette never has smiled from the screen of a big-time picture palace, nor honked like a frog through its loudspeakers, yet he is one of the movies' most popular actors. He's even got 200,000 fan letters to prove it—and few of the Lombards and the Gables have more.

Smiley plays the part of Frog Millhouse in all the Gene Autry cow operas, which run on and on, year after year, and which frequently are surprisingly good entertainment. Their last film was "Man From Music Mountains"—and it's a bet that nobody but the customers of the new Gems of the Nation's main streets ever will see it.

Hollywood theaters don't show the Autry pictures. Nobody sees 'em here, except the press—at previews—and the press always is on hand, to a man. A rootin', tootin', shootin' Western, with Autry singing love songs between frays with the Indians and Smiley doing tricks with any one of 52 musical instruments, really is something to see. Their pictures, in any event, are the most profitable by far of any produced by Republic Studios.

Yet five years ago neither Autry nor Smiley had any ideas of becoming movie actors. Autry was a radio singer in Chicago, where he functioned as master of ceremonies at the National Barn Dance.

"And I was the chief clerk and bottle washer of Radio Station WDZ at Tuscola, Ill.," Smiley said. "I earned $17.50 per week and for that I was announcer, piano player and everything else. I even tuned their guitars for the kids on Saturday afternoons when the station put on its weekly kiddy program. I also was the janitor, technician and manager. I opened the station in the morning and I closed it at night.

"I played so many phonograph records so often that I couldn't help learning them, words and music, too. I memorized more than 2,000 songs, in spite of myself. One night I was playing away on the piano when the phone rang. So I put a phonograph record on the air and answered the call. It was Autry, saying he'd pay me $35 a week if I'd come and sing on his program at Chicago. I jumped at the chance. That was more money than I knew there was."

Autry took his radio troupe to New York, to Kentucky and finally to Hollywood where he also got a job for himself singing a song in a cowboy movie. He did pretty well; well enough to get some more movie assignments. Then the producer met Smiley and asked him if he could do anything. Smiley said he could play any musical instrument there was. He got a job, too.

Smiley's most faithful fans are the small boys who spend their dimes on a Saturday afternoon to watch him. They're mostly the ones who have written him the 200,000 letters. Each one gets an answer and an autographed picture.

Prague, Aug. 18.

SOME OF THE BOYS were whooping it up at Svatek's Pujkovna Kostymu last night, but a cop came along and broke it up . . . We had arrived here from Croydon, after switching planes in Brussels . . . The day before, we traveled to Stratford-on-Avon, whose lone movie house was featuring that great Shakespearean film, "Kentucky Moonshine," starring those illustrious gentlemen of Verona, the Three Messrs. Ritz . . . And on the wall of the church which displays the statue of Shakespeare presented by David Garrick was a sign: "Air Raid Precautions."

WE HAD DINED at Quaglino's, where Count Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow sat at a ringside table, picking his teeth and ogling the young ladies near by . . . Then, at the Savoy Grill, Alfred Hitchcock confided that he had just arrived from Cambridge, where he completed plans for the widow of Arthur Schnitzler to organize a company for the purpose of disposing of the rights to all the Schnitzler plays . . . There, too, Stefan Zweig announced that he was leaving for America soon, but would not go to Hollywood, where his movie is being screened.

AT 8 A. M. WE FLEW across the North Sea, via Sabena, to Brussels, and then a CLS plane took us across the breadth of Germany, to Prague . . . We motored through the ancient part of the city, to Nerodova street, where Beethoven lived, to Casanova's home and then to the house where Mozart wrote his "Don Giovanni." Then up to the Royal Palace, through the reception halls and to the room where every Bohemian King, from the seventh century until the end of royal dynasty here, was crowned. Then to St. Stephen's and St. Vitus Cathedral, where 1,500 years of regal rule are interred—down to the ghetto, and the oldest synagogue in the world.

The cafe lights were dimmed, and from across the valley, in a setting illuminated only by crimson flares, came the strains of a violin—playing selections from "Cavalleria Rusticana."

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Aug. 18.—So many nasty-nice stories are told about Connie Bennett, I'm happy to pass on the following which I stumbled on in my favorite beauty parlor.

HEDDA HOPPER

Connie was having her hair and nails done, when some of the girls from the Georgia Caravan spotted her, and asked if they might meet her. "Certainly," she said. They chatted like old friends, and Connie asked, 'Wouldn't you girls like to see a motion picture studio?" Their screams could be heard a block "I'll send my car for you," said Connie. "How many are there?" The oldest, 16, replied; "204."

Connie arranged for buses and has taken care of the lot. As she went out she said, "I was just on the verge of inviting them all up to the house for lunch . . . lucky I found out the number before I did it."

The rushes on the first three days of "Dawn Patrol" were sensational. The big boss looked them over and, at great expense, ordered retakes because—the set was too clean. They're going to dirty it up—"cobweb" it and re-shoot.

Lots of tongue wagging after the President's secretary, Mr. McIntyre, finished his visit here. He assured the boys they'd all be coming back in 1939.

When Gene Town gave a cocktail party at the Troc for Louis Sobol and 350 guests, he got it at cost. The following day the bill was sent him. He sent back a hankie to cry in, saying, "Use this until Saturday when I get mine."

Joan Bennett got her release from Walter Wanger, who's managed her business for some time. They're still very much in love, but a bit superstitious as this is the third producer Joan's been in love with.

When things get dull at Warners, they run a record of Rudy Vallee. Seems one day when sound men had very little to do on the "Gold Diggers From Paris," set they wired Rudy's dressing room and recorded all conversations when "Gold Diggers" called on him.

I wonder if the Ann Sheridan and Eddie Norris marriage is off? She's been seen about with Tony Averill—or is that just to help the picture?

A friend back from Sweden tells this one. It seems Garbo and Stokie were dining with the Duke and Duchess of Windsor and some others. They wanted to go on to a very popular night club, when one of the party said: "Do you think we can get a table?" "I'm sure," said Garbo, "that Mr. Stokowski can manage it."

Hear tell that Sam Goldwyn is going to put Kay Francis in a picture when she's finished at Warners. And that Bette Davis won't play in "The Phantom Crown" unless Paul Muni does.

Busy!

Ten important roles in three months! That's the record of Eddie Conrad, versatile comedian now playing a mad Russian in "Gateway." Conrad's parts have included characterizations in "Always Goodbye," "One Wild Night," "Marie Antoinette," "The Great Waltz" and other pictures of similar magnitude and his portrayals have called for Russian, French, Greek, Italian, Spanish and German dialect.

Minerals and Vitamins Economical Health Aids

With Food Costs Rising, Fruit, Vegetables and Milk Take on New Importance as Source of Elements Needed in Diet.

By Ida Jean Kain.

IN THE face of rising food costs the economical sources of minerals, vitamins and protein become of the utmost importance to every family. When the income is small the food money goes for bread, cereals, meat and potatoes, and surveys show that one family out of every four follows a diet inadequate in fruits, vegetables and dairy products. As a result the diet is deficient in vitamins and minerals.

One can be fairly well fed on whole grain bread and milk. Whether or not the food budget is limited, the family menu should be built around these two staples. Bread also refers to the cereals, and on the limited income, particularly, the breads and cereals should always be of the whole grain variety. Whole wheat supplies protein, calcium, phosphorus, iron and Vitamin B.

Grains do not, however, supply a sufficient amount of calcium, and milk is a necessary part of the diet. The milk protein is a valuable supplement to the protein of the grain in that it supplies certain amino acids essential to the growth of the child and to the upkeep of the vital tissues of the adult. Whole milk is a rich source of energy, calcium, phosphorus, vitamins A and G and, to a lesser degree, vitamins B and C.

Vegetables Give C.

Raw cabbage, onions, tomatoes and tomato juice are economical sources of vitamin C. Carrots are rich in vitamins A and C and greens and all kinds of beans contain large amounts of iron. The bean family—soy beans, navy beans and limas—are almost invaluable in the low cost diet for they are rich in minerals and proteins.

If you can manage them on your food budget you should include four eggs per person per week on the family dietary. Eggs supply vitamins A and D, protein and iron.

The preparation of food is extremely important in any diet. It is so easy to destroy or to throw away the vitamins and minerals that it pays to cook food very carefully. To preserve the vitamin C in potatoes, the potatoes should be baked in their jackets, boiled with the skins on, or scraped. The part of the potato next to the skin is richest in the vitamin.

Outside Lettuce Rich.

Always use the outside leaves of lettuce, for those green leaves are the ones richest in vitamin A.

Short cooking of vegetables in as little water as possible helps to preserve these valuable food elements. The best plan is to cook the vegetables rapidly at a high temperature rather than to allow them to simmer slowly over a long period. Never add soda to the green peas or other vegetables.

Meat and grains together are inadequate sources of vitamins and minerals, and a diet consisting mainly of bread, cereals, meat and potatoes is a deficiency diet and it will not keep your family in the best of health. For a perfect diet you should spend twice as much money for dairy products, fruits and vegetables as you spend for meat, and you should be careful not to lose the most important food elements in the cooking.

Cowgirl Styles, Swedish Colors Invade Campus

And Dirndls Hold Their Popularity in Fall Showing Here.

THE TEXAS bad lands, the Mexican pampas and all the wide open spaces combine to make the fall college student into a girl of the Gold'n West. Martha Gale's Cartwright fashions, featured at a fashion show at a department store Wednesday, presented this new out-of-the-West idea with great success, for giggles of delight emerged from the audience of campus contingents each time a new nail-headed belt or cowgirl's stomacher appeared.

According to Miss Marion Mason who substituted for Martha Gale, the Cartwright designer, this wild West influence will bring new blood and gaiety into the more prosaic campus classics. Many of the straightforward little junior classroom frocks sported fringe, saddle stitching, gold studded nail heads, and a variety of amazing belts. Most of these belts, which acted as the life-giving spark to conservative daytime dresses, were of such great size that they bore close resemblance to corselets, or as Miss Mason dubbed them, "stomachers." The most original ones were devised of brilliant pigskin, suede, rawhide or fabric, heavy with metal embroidery or thong closings. One dashing teatime frock of black crepe and gold piping was entitled Gold Coaster.

Swedish Collars Used.

The other influence stressed in the Cartwright juniors was that of the trusty old Tyrol. Ever since Lans of Salsburg popularized the little Swiss dirndl, the school crowd has not regained its sanity over Tyrolian fashions. Martha Gales' classroom and formal clothes combine modified lines with not only Swiss, but Swedish insignia, contrasting with dark greens and plum tones of basic dresses. One high-throated afternoon frock was adapted from a two-piece ski suit and bore incrustations of Swedish embroidery down the front of the jacket.

Gurgles of contentment oozed over the collegiate spectators as they beheld one spry dirndl after another. Most of these were party or dress-up daytime frocks, consisting of basque and lacings, ruffled sleeves, felt jackets sprayed with posies and 10-yard wide skirts.

Juniors Dignified.

Although the Cartwright junior styles as usual featured favorite schoolgirl trimmings of lace, ruffled moire or velvet, pinking and bows, on the whole the fashions were a bit more dignified in line and coloring, the only variation in brilliant color in the entire group being a new hue called strawberry.

Velveteen or corduroy slacks and shirtwaists were voted high honors for lounging or "Navajo-ing" as campus play is called at universities in the Southwest. Double duty date frocks for both dining and dancing combined sometimes as many as four pieces, usually consisting of swishy evening skirts, soft sheer blouses, waistbands and matching jackets. Most novel of the evening innovations was the brilliant wool plaid sport jacket worn casually over a formal gown.

Leather Glorifies Some Dull Gowns

Paris (U.P.).—Tough as leather! Yes, but don't forget how beautiful that leather becomes and how important a part it plays in the salons of haute couture. A scrap of leather is the magic material which converts many a dull dress into a glamorous gown, and leather accessories make many a suit look more than its material value.

● A basketball bag is the latest of these accessories. Robert Piguet introduced it to the fashion world as an amusingly practical purse to complete any sports costume. The bag looks for all the world like an undersized basketball of regulation brown hide. But its top half unsnaps and lifts off to disclose a de luxe interior complete with a comb case, powder puff and all the rest. The ball-bag is carried in a string mesh filet whose drawstrings are easy to clench.

Fall Colors Come in Threes

IT'S NOT ONLY a color season, but a three-way one. So in planning your fall wardrobe you will need to learn to match your colors effectively. There are all sorts of three-somes in the color field—olive, beige and plum; brown, beige and rust; green, rust and mustard, to mention just a few. The ensemble above gets its three-color motif from the topcoat in plaid woolen which combines a trio of colors used by the Italian painters, reddish brown, gray and rich blue. The woolen skirt, suede bag and shoes match the brown shade; the suede jacket and hat are gray. There is a layer of blue leather in the heels of the shoes. An ideal outfit for either the college or young business girl.

Let cool in liquor. Remove shrimps clean and peel. Strain liquor. Melt 1 tablespoon of butter and blend in 1 tablespoon flour. Mix to a smooth paste and add shrimp liquor slowly. When sauce comes to a boiling point, add shrimps and reheat. Serve hot.

Sailors for Sub-Debs.

Paris (U.P.).—Those little sailor hats with the ribbons under the chin have a smattering of followers, especially among the younger girls, and for 12 to 20 the motif is just right.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Aug. 18.

LOCAL SCIENTISTS have been in a dreadful state this month, wagging their wise old pates and wondering why our 70,000 hay-fever victims were hooting their heads off long before the ragweed had tossed its death-dealing pollen on the air. The laboratory wizards found no answer. They just sat and brooded on the unpredictability and cussedness of nature.

ALICE HUGHES

Yes, the scientists were baffled. The meteorologists, about ten days ago, announced there was no sniffle dust yet on the breezes. Yet the practical veterinarians in the town's clinics reported their waiting rooms were already packed with tragic sneezers. Thus the two camps were in conflict, with the theory boys and the realists in open conflict. This is one reason why doctors deplore old Ma Nature. She's so unscientific!

Dr. Israel Weinstein, of our Board of Health, is a local expert on this unhappy matter. He says that the official hay-fever season here is from August 15 to 30, when the weed is at its most vicious, snapping alike at the just and the unjust. Again, Doc. Weinstein laments to me, our patients have waited too long, and now they must suffer the ordeal by snorts, sniffles and weepy eyes. Several months in advance, the Doc says, these folk should go to a doctor or one of our nine free clinics and get a series of injections against the plague. But no. They dawdle. As a result, they can only get faint, temporary relief, or, if well-heeled, can flee to the pollenless heights of the White Mountains or the Adirondacks.

A terrible scourge, this, and the worst of it is that it is crooked. It doesn't play fair at all. The man with the microscope says there's no pollen, yet the citizens are already huffing and puffing. It's just not cricket!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Every year we wait for Schiaparelli, of Paris, to spring her latest stunt on us, for she is the greatest showman in the rag business. She didn't let us down this month, after her splurge with the "doll hats" late in the spring. Perhaps you read of Schiap's eight-button, high-top shoes of 1900 vitage—made in yellow, green or purple, with pearl buttons. Oh, merciful heavens, what next? Schiap says they can be worn both for afternoon and evening—but by whom, cherie? Come clean, La Toots. We all know it's just another gag for publicity, and it worked, so let's forget the whole thing and have a tall, cold one!

• • • •

When I saw Mary Pickford the other day, perennialy cunnin', she had quit being an actress (at least for the movies) and was toting a full line of her own cosmetics. The first thing she did in town was to shop for a regular drummer's case. Then she delighted in demonstrating her creams and daubs for any lady who would look and listen. Ah, me—can this be the little Mary we have loved these 30 years, girl and woman? You're darn tootin' it can.

• • • •

Two startling 18-year-old girls turned up on the ten-acre stage of the Radio City Music Hall last week. One in June Winters, of Hazelton, Pa., and the other is Cyrel Roodney, of Poughkeepsie, our State. Maestro Erno Rapee found these two tikes could sing the F-sharp above high C, and that their voices blend perfectly. Thus they have become the only coloratura sister-team in history! The saints preserve us! One coloratura sends me howling into the night—two of them would slap me dead!

• • • •

Already our school board is readying up for the 1,250,000 darling little kiddies who will trudge back to slavery next month. And what do you think is most needed? More history books? New rulers? Nope—adequate soap and towels for the scholars! Vice President Buck is leading the drive, believing that cleanliness is next to algebra. Would you believe that enough soap and wipers for all will cost $235,000 a year? And they don't know where to find the dough. Money seems scarce.

Table Setting and Service

HOW DOES Barbara "keep up with the Joneses" in entertaining? She does it beautifully—on a slim purse—by following these three simple rules.

1. Have parties fit the season and the limitations of the household. Everybody enjoys a buffet supper on porch or sunroom after a warm Sunday—and no maid is needed to serve one.

2. Plan correct table setting and service in advance. The buffet table in the picture is faultless and you can easily arrange yours like it.

Put on everything but the food beforehand—and check. Are the supper plates next to the salad bowl, so you can quickly fill them with salad and relishes? Are the forks and napkins at one end, convenient for guests? Is there space also for other dishes—coffee, crackers and cheese—to which guests will help themselves?

Have food prepared well ahead of time—put on in 10 unflurried minutes right before serving.

3. Have appropriate, easily served menus. At a buffet supper, only fork and spoon foods. For a maidless dinner, avoid foods that need last-minute broiling.

Our 40-page booklet, "Table Setting and Service," helps you entertain beautifully on all occasions—formal dinners to afternoon tea. Decoration, menus.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Table Setting and Service," to Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Smitten With Elder Brother's Wife, Boy Even Eats More When She Is Around; What to Do About It?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am afraid my story will sound too much like the movies, but every word of it is true. My brother, who is quite a bit older than I, is married to a lovely girl who is near my own age and a good bit younger than he. Last summer his business called him out of town and she spent some time at our house while he was away. I live with my mother and he thought it would be nice for us to get to know each other well and to have some good times together.

• • • •

We went out a few times and we had many long chats about various things—including love and marriage. I found myself getting more and more fond of her. I even enjoyed eating more while she was around. I'll never forget the fun we had getting little snacks in the kitchen before bedtime, etc. During the fall I saw her less but I was just as fond of her as before. And once this spring I went out with her while my brother was away.

• • • •

This summer she has told me that she has not gotten used to being my brother's wife yet. And once this summer she told me that she loved me. Since we have liked each other steadily for over a year I don't think it is a passing thing. We get along so well, I feel sure that my brother knows there is something between us, but I don't know how to approach him about the matter. I know, too, that he is enough in love with his wife to want her to have what she wants. What should be my next step?

R. M. M.

Cat-and-Mouse Game.

DEAR R. M. M.: Your next step should be that of putting a definite end, once and for all, to this cat-and-mouse game your sister-in-law is playing with you. I have a hunch that she is spoiled and childless, with entirely too much leisure time on her hands for her own good—or yours—and that she is inventing excitement for herself in the form of an extremely vicious type of subtle flirtation, calculated to dishonor the family into which she has married.

• • • •

Although she is near your own age, by chronological rating, she is emotionally much more seasoned than you, and knows exactly what she is doing in stirring your young imagination with long discussions of love, marriage and related subjects. From the first days of her coming to your home for a prolonged visit, she could—had she so desired—have cast your association in the mold of a sister-brother sort of comradeship. However, it suited her pleasure to play another sort of game with you—and one which reflects no credit on either her character or her code of ethics.

• • • •

It is within the realm of possibility that she is leading her husband to believe that you, to her allegedly innocent surprise and amusement, have conceived an infatuation for her that she scarcely knows how to deal with. One can imagine that she—in canny self protection; as a sort of skirt-clearing measure—has given her husband, in moments of marital confidence, a plausible version of the situation that completely exonerates herself from any supposition of having incited or encouraged your emotional interest in her.

• • • •

This little flirtation will fall to pieces like the house of cards it is, the moment you see through your sister-in-law's game, realize that you are not so much interested in her as an individual as you are aroused by the images of feminine love, companionship, etc., which intimate association and conversation with her has evoked, and begin looking about for the eligible girl or woman who can become the flesh-and-blood exponent of these images that are now taking shape in your mind. If girls your own age don't appeal to you, try to establish yourself in the graces of some older girl of sound sense and sympathetic intelligence.

• • • •

Don't make an ass of yourself, or let your sister-in-law make a fool of you, by acting on the assumption that she would discard her husband for you. There is no such thought in her mind; and if your brother seems to "know there is something" between you and his wife, it probably means that he, too, is wondering (even as you) just how he can broach this delicate subject in such a way as to give you a right steer without hurting your pride too much.

New Dishes With Orange Win Prizes

First Award Taken by Sweet Potato Recipe Using Fruit.

Sauce for Ham Steak Second and Pie Is Third.

MANY years ago the battle of the Oranges was strictly a religious-political affair. This last week the oranges were at it again, but in the milder form of contesting for recipe prizes. The cooling citrus fruit was not only the theme of last week's recipe contest, but an award was won by an Orange—Mrs. Sara Lee—as well.

Unique ways of changing both complexion and appearance of the orange apparently took place in kitchens to make possible such contributions as Frosted Orange Slices, Poinsettia Salad, Orange Crumb Pudding and a spicy version of Orange Fruit Punch piqued with white wine. The variations of orange custards, creams and puddings seemed endless, especially in such transitions as Souffles, Charlottes, Velvets and Delights. Judgment of stuffed baked oranges and orange cakes was impossible, as in many cases these recipes were almost identical.

Citric Tang in Potatoes.

First prize of $3 was won by Mrs. W. E. Osborn, 415 Gallatin street northwest. Her orange sweet potato treat is a bland mixture of delightfully harmonious ingredients. With a platter of cold cuts or jellied seafood, this sweet potato casserole would be unusual and appetizing. Add to that Mrs. Osborn's recipe for frosted orange slices, and a dinner of real distinction would be achieved.

Mrs. W. Osborne.

ORANGE SWEET POTATO TREAT.

6 medium-sized potatoes, cooked
2 tablespoons melted butter
¾ cup orange juice
½ teaspoon grated orange rind
3 tablespoons light corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
6 marshmallows
6 orange shells

Peel and mash potatoes while warm. Add butter, rind, enough juice to moisten, salt and syrup and beat until fluffy. Pile into orange shells prepared by cutting off the tops of oranges and scooping out the pulp. Top each filled orange shell with a marshmallow. Brown in hot oven. Serve at once with frosted orange slices. Peel and slice crosswise medium-sized oranges, allowing four slices to a serving. Dip each slice in slightly warmed honey, then in shredded cocoanut, and arrange on crisp lettuce leaves. Serve with this magic mayonnaise: ¾ cup vinegar or lemon juice, ¼ cup salad oil, 2-3 cup condensed milk, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 egg yolk, unbeaten. Place ingredients in a pint jar in the order given, fasten top on tightly and shake well for two minutes. The mixture will blend perfectly. Chill before serving.

Saucy Orange Recipe.

Second prize of $2 goes to Mrs. Ernest L'Andes, 1412 Chapin street northwest. She writes that she "is a lover of oranges, and has many favorite ways of using them," expanding her statement by submitting ten of the most tempting recipes entered in the contest. All of Mrs. L'Andes' suggestions were so inviting that her ham steak with orange sauce and orange fritters won by only a close margin over her other creams, fluffs and Waldorf salads.

Mrs. E. Andes.

HAM STEAK WITH ORANGE SAUCE.

1½ lbs. ham steak
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups orange juice
2 oranges

Sear the steak well on both sides. Add 1 cup hot water, cover and let simmer until well done—about 30 minutes. Measure 2 tablespoons fat from the pan, add flour and cook until lightly browned. Add the orange juice, stirring well to avoid lumps. Cook five minutes. Pour sauce around steak on platter, serve with orange and rice fritters.

New Setting for Old Sweet.

Mrs. Charlotte Fay Hiehle, 3021 Tunlaw road northwest, has been mailed a $1 check for her tart orange marmalade recipe. The orange dates back to India and China, and later to Syria, Africa and Spain where it was transported by the Arabs. In later years this golden fruit was called the naranja by the Spaniards who first planted it in Mexico. It is therefore presented in a new light by Mrs. Hiehle in her treasured old New England recipe, but the tropical orange tang is present plus an added tartness of rhubarb.

NEW ENGLAND ORANGE MARMALADE.

5 lbs. oranges
5 lbs. rhubarb
5 lbs. sugar
5 lemons
1 quart cold water

Wash oranges and lemons, slice very thin, remove all seeds. Cover with cold water and let stand two hours. Add rhubarb which has been washed, scraped where necessary and cut in ½-inch pieces. Cook all over low heat for one hour. Add sugar and simmer for three hours, stirring occasionally. Pour in glasses or jars, seal, and store in dark cool place.

A Prize-Winning Orange.

Mrs. Sara Lee Orange, 2025 I street northwest, received $1 for her interesting pie. She calls it an orange marshmallow pie, but it contains other ingredients of subtle flavor. The acidity of lemon and orange juice, the mildness of marshmallows and toasted nuts create a filling of a melt-in-your-mouth quality. Mrs. Orange's crispy lemon crumb crust is peculiarly well suited to the smoothness of the filling.

Mrs. S. L. Orange.

ORANGE MARSHMALLOW PIE.

½ pound marshmallows
1 cup strained orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup heavy cream
Lemon wafer crumb crust
1 orange
Toasted marshmallow halves

Heat ½ pound marshmallows over hot water until almost melted. Remove from heat. Add fruit juices. Cool. Whip cream, fold in. Chill until slightly thickened. Pour into crumb crust. Chill overnight. Garnish with orange slices and toasted marshmallow halves and sprinkling over of toasted split almonds. This recipe makes one 9-inch pie.

LEMON CRUMB CRUST.

1 cup lemon wafer crumbs
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup melted butter (margarine.)

Mix crumbs and sugar. Add melted butter or margarine. Press into piepan 9-inches in diameter. Halved wafers make an attractive border for this pie.

Seafood Tinted Orange.

Mrs. Helen Kuenzel, 3009 Clinton street northeast, has been awarded a $1 prize for her orange salad. This recipe is not only economical when used as the entree of a meal, but quickly prepared in advance for one of these blistering nights still in store for Washingtonians. The combination of shrimps, celery and fruit juices is cooling and easy to look at.

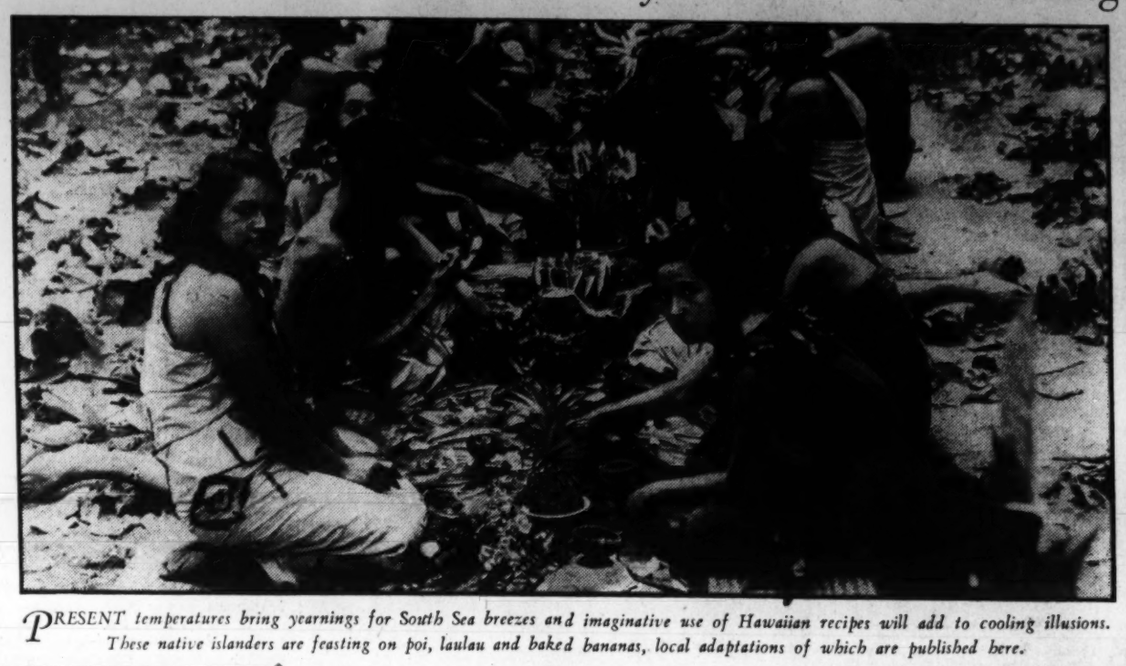
Mrs. Kuenzel.

ORANGE SHRIMP JELLIED SALAD.

2 tablespoons gelatine
6 tablespoons cold water
1½ cups boiling water
1 cup orange juice
6 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup orange pieces
1 cup shrimps cut in pieces
1 cup chopped celery

Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes. Add boiling water, orange and lemon juice, sugar and salt. Cool, and when beginning to stiffen, add the orange pieces, shrimps cut in pieces and chopped celery. Serve on water cress with mayonnaise. This recipe serves about eight persons with individual molds.

Hawaiian Menu Will Suggest Cool South Sea Atmosphere, Also Furnish Welcome Variety in Summer Entertaining



PRESENT temperatures bring yearnings for South Sea breezes and imaginative use of Hawaiian recipes will add to cooling illusions. These native islanders are feasting on poi, laulau and baked bananas, local adaptations of which are published here.

Mrs. F. A. Henny Tells How to Make Fish and Meat Lalau With Sweet Potato Pie and Other Delicacies.

ONE METHOD of combating the heat is to let the mind—and appetite—go wandering off into cooler climes. For such mental wanderers Mrs. Frederick A. Henny, wife of Capt. Henny, of the United States Army Engineers, suggests a gastronomic journey to Hawaii.

Mrs. Henny is experiencing her first Washington summer after being stationed for more than two years in the Pacific islands. Her nostalgia for the cool trade winds has prompted her to put the thought to the deed and prepare frigid native foods in her new heat-wave setting. Several of Mrs. Henny's cooking observations may prove valuable to local homemakers wih a flair for preparation of unusual foods. The very announcement of an all-Hawaiian dinner would prove exciting to friends who have looked a salad bowl in the face just once too often.

Chilled fresh pineapple cocktail
Fish and meat lalau
Sweet potato poi Baked bananas
Papaya

The cocktail can be made with one large pineapple or with as many smaller pineapples as there are guests. Cut off the top of the pineapple about one inch below the crown of the fruit, leaving the bushy leaves intact on the top as a handle. Scoop out the inside, cut away the fibrous center core, cut in small pieces and mix with cut-up banana, green and red maraschino cherries, a squeeze of lime juice, and sugar to taste. Pack back into the shell, cover with the top and put into the refrigerator to chill thoroughly. A large pineapple may be served on a platter surrounded with leaves, so that each guest may lift off the top and help himself as it is passed, or small pineapples may be prepared individually at each plate, which makes a most effective luncheon table.

Piece de Resistance.

The fish and meat lalau is prepared in Hawaii by wrapping the ingredients in Ti leaves, but paraffin paper or patapar will do nicely. Steam for just a few minutes a large amount of spinach, enough for a double portion for each person served. On to each section of patapar turn a cupful of the steamed spinach (in Hawaii they use the young leaves of the Taro plant for spinach), pat it down and make a sort of nest of it. For lalau, you place in each nest a section of lean pork (about the size of a small eclair), a similar section of salt pork and an equal sized section of fish, preferably dried white fish, but a boneless fillet of white fish or even fresh salmon steak may be substituted. Over this pour two tablespoons full of cocoanut milk. Cocoanut milk for this purpose may be obtained by pouring a cupfull of hot water over a small package of cocoanut, letting it sit for several minutes and then straining it through a bag, or by pouring hot water into a freshly opened cocoanut and letting it sit for a while. Do not use the water you find in the center of the cocoanut. On top of this nest place another layer of spinach (about half a cup), gather up the sides of the patapar, tie tightly with string and steam for about two hours, or until the meat and fish are tender. The flavor of the fish and pork strengthened and blended with the spinach and cocoanut milk into a dish of exquisite succulence. Chicken may replace the pork if preferred.

Sweet Potato Concoction.

For the sweet potato poi choose the fattest and juciest sweet potatoes to be found and steam them all the way through in the same kettle with the lalau. They are eaten as a side dish, plain or with lots of butter. You can make a form of sweet potato poi by whipping the sweet potato up into a paste moistened with cocoanut milk.

Select the fattest bananas you can find for baking; red bananas, or if they can be found "apple bananas," because of their special flavor. The common variety of banana is very good, too. Simply slit them lengthwise, make a slight identation down the center for a pat of butter, place in a very hot oven and bake for about 20 minutes. Use for a side dish.

Hawaiian Dessert.

The perfect dessert for an Hawaiian meal is papaya, which can be purchased in the markets in Washington at all seasons. It may be served two ways, as a fruit cup or sliced like honey dew melon is usually served. For the former, cut the fruit in small cubes, pour over it freshly squeezed lime juice, place in covered jar and chill thoroughly. Or slice lengthwise, score deeply in criss-cross fashion with a sharp knife, pour lime juice into the crevices and chill in refrigerator for several hours. Serve like a melon.

Brightness Found In Fruit Plate

For a fruit hors d'oeuvre plate arrange groups of the following on a serving plate or platter:

Orange segments—Remove all membrane from orange segments. Roll in toasted cocoanut.

Orange slices—Cut slices of peeled oranges with scissors on each place where segments join and spread apart. Garnish with stuffed olive slices.

Berries—Frost tips with fondant made of powdered sugar thinned with water to spreading consistency.

Cherries—Dip in honey and ground nuts.

Banana sections—Marinate in lemon juice. Decorate with rosettes of whipped cream from pastry tube and garnish with red jelly or rubyettes.

Ice Cream Comes Easy to All Now

Time was when ice cream was a Sunday dessert. The trouble of making it, and the toil of turning the freezer kept many a homemaker from serving it oftener than once or twice a month, even though she knew it was the family's favorite. New freezing methods and simplified recipes have changed all that and ice cream may top off a meal any day in the week with less effort than many of the less popular desserts call for.

The range of ice cream flavors has increased in the same ratio that the work of making it has decreased. Good old chocolate, vanilla and strawberry have been supplemented with many familiar fruit and nut flavors. Ice cream, always agreeable and cooling, has joined the ranks of the glamor foods with exotic flavors of spice.

Molded Salad Hint.

When making a molded salad, brush over the inside of the mold lightly with glycerine before putting in the salad and it will turn out much more easily. This is particularly helpful for those difficult individual molds. Used for a large salad, it turns out almost too easily, so stop the glycerine film about an eighth of an inch below the salad line unless the recipe fills the mold to the top.

Cold Cuts Keep Kitchens and Housewives Cool And Reinvigorate Appetites Jaded by Heat

Vari-Colored Meats Add Festive Note to Cheap Dishes.

Several Kinds of Bread Should Be Used for Sandwiches.

By Alice Clayton.
The Post Food Editor.

ON EVERY HAND these August days is heard the wail, "Oh, I can't think of anything I want to eat." If you are one of those whose sensibilities revolt at the thought of broiling roasts, cumbersome meat pies, hot beverages and masses of starchy vegetables, then the cold cut is your salvation.

One of the quickest methods of pepping up limp appetities is to prepare a well balanced and perfectly served meal of cold cuts. This is not only the most pleasant way to a man's stomach, but the quickest as well. Cold cuts are so much more reasonably marked for these next few sultry weeks than are the majority of other meats. Grocers around town have wisely ranged their prices of cold cuts to conform with every budget.

Washington's summer entertaining during the last month and at present has been curtailed because it is just too hot to cook. But with a scattering of returning friends, entertaining during late August actualy can be as delightful as at any other time of the year, and with no less comfort in the preparation, provided a cold meat platter is the choice.

These platters can be arranged in a few moments and both store-bought cuts and leftover sliced cold roasts or meat loaves are easy to consume, even though there was a void of appetite before coming to the table. Cold meats should be kept well chilled until almost time for serving. If they have been sliced at the market, merely wrap them loosely in oiled or parchment paper and store them in the refrigerator.

For Colorful Entertaining.

Each cold cut can be arranged in a design, with the contrasting shades of light and dark meat lending character to the pattern. Minced pimiento or sliced ham, large or small ring bologna, liverwurst or sausage, head cheese and various kinds of dry sausages, such as cervelat, salami and pepperoni, are admirable for the cold meat platter.

Some of these meats are highly seasoned with spices, so in choosing an assortment it is wise to state your preference. As a gracious gesture to company, it may be that you will want some cuts to contain plenty of seasoning and others to remain mild in flavor so that your guests may choose ones of their preference.

A gay design is made by rolling minced ham in cornucopia style and fastening with toothpicks. These rolls may be filled with a salad or pickle combination if desired, or well-seasoned dry cottage cheese.

For Added Spice.

Serve cold meat platters with an assortment of breads (Swedish, pumpernickle, rye, whole wheat, and cheese bread are good), so your guests can make the kind of sandwiches they desire. You may want to include one hot dish with the cold platter, and if your oven is well insulated, perhaps it may be an escalloped vegetable casserole.

If the oven gives off too much heat, a creamed vegetable servect in patty shells is a perfect accompaniment. Appetizers such as pickles, olives, deviled eggs, spiced peaches and crabapples are delicious accompaniments with cold cut sandwiches. They lend a festive air if arranged on colorful pottery or silver platter with the different hued meats.

Chutney loses its British accent as prepared by the Washington housewife from tart apples, brown sugar, vinegar, and spices. It is an admirable accompaniment for not only assorted cold cuts, but sliced meat loaves, cold roast fowl and sliced corned beef.

Iced Beverages.

Nothing adds so much sparkle and charm to a cold cut luncheon, dinner or picnic as frigid pitchers of iced beverages. The simplest versions of lemon, orange or limeade are usually most agreeable, as they blend easily with cold fowl or meat. More elaborate versions of punches, crushes or syllabubs are favored by hostesses who want to make a show of it.

The following recipes offer suggestions for quick, inexpensive cold and iced beverage-meals with a difference.

Deviled Ham Platter.

1½ pounds smoked ham, sliced thin, and cut in pieces for serving.
Sugar
Prepared mustard
Mashed white or sweet potatoes
Buttered carrot straws
1 tablespoon finely sliced parsley.

Spread the ham lightly with mustard; add a few grains of sugar and a little water, and bake in a moderately hot oven, 350 to 375 degrees F., until brown—about 40 minutes. In the meantime, boil and mash the potatoes and cook the carrots. Heap the potatoes in the center of a patter to form a mound; arrange the ham around this, placing a generous tablespoonful of carrots on each piece. Garnish with the minced parsley. Serve with fresh fruit orangeade.

Fresh Fruit Orangeade.

1 cup granulated sugar
1 quart water
Rind 5 oranges
1½ cups orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice

Combine the sugar, water and orange rind and boil 20 minutes. Strain out the rind. Chill the syrup, add the fruit juices and pour into small glasses half filled with crushed ice.

Lamb Roi-Up.

1 breast of lamb
1 bunch parsley
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon celery salt

Have breast of lamb boned. Lay on cutting board and sprinkle with half the salt. Lay parsley all over top and roll up like a tight jelly roll. Tie or sew together like a rolled roast. Place in boiling water to cover, add rest of salt and celery salt, cover and simmer for 1½ hours or until tender. Let cool in water, then wrap in waxed paper or parchment and chill thoroughly. Slice for cold meat plates. Serves 5-6. Serve with cold creole sauce and grape juice punch.

COLD CUTS are understandably popular for humid August dining, for no meats are as temptingly cool looking or tasting. Individual arrangements offer unlimited possibilities in design but the meats arrayed here are especially desirable as they include sliced tongue, Smithfield ham, home baked ham, head cheese and liverwurst.

FOOD FORUM

What to Serve Unexpected Guests Is Answered in Suggestions for Hurry-Up Dishes; 'Roman Holiday' Is One Proposal.

WHEN GUESTS drop in for dinner unexpectedly, what do you serve? Do you frantically dash about with can opener, cook book and no imagination, or do you calmly peer into the refrigerator and pantry for a quick inventory? The Food Forum has tabulated the opinions of four Washington hostesses on their solutions of "What shall I serve when uninvited company descends?"

One-Dish Dinner.

Mrs. Frank P. Palmer, 4126 New Hampshire avenue northwest—"For a long time I have been preparing a one-dish company dinner which I had believed to be my own the title 'Roman Holiday.' Although inspiration. The other day I came across the same entree which bore the title "Roman Holiday!" I felt a trifle deflated at not being the originator, I was gratified to realize that it was a tested recipe of high repute. "Roman Holiday" is so appetizing and easy to prepare that it will probably give Forum readers a mental holiday when they start planning for an unexpected dinner crowd from the office.

"Parboil one package of spaghetti, drain, and place half in the bottom of a greased baking dish, then sprinkle on it one-half package of sharp American cheese; add one medium-sized can of bulk tomatoes, then add any left-over meat as the next layer. Alternate a layer of the remaining spaghetti with the other half of packaged cheese. Season to taste and pour small can of tomato juice over all. This creates enough rich liquid to mix the ingredients while cooking. I bake this casserole just long enough to produce a thoroughly blended flavor. The formal recipe for 'Roman Holiday' calls for an addition of bacon drippings, onions and about a pound of hamburger rather than left-over meat, but my friends and I like my original way best."

Fresh Fruit Pie.

Mrs. Martha Luber, 1348 Kenyon street northwest—"I have an old standby for unexpected guests: a luscious fresh fruit pie, a quick, easy dessert to manage and one which my guests all say 'tastes like more.'

"As most housewives have made would not help them much, except that I am particularly cautious about adding corn starch and sugar to cherries or other fruit, to prevent cherry pies of their own, my recipe running, the most common cause of failure in cherry pie making. I served this tart old-fashioned pie with vegetable juice, cold sliced corned beef, potato salad and tomatoes on lettuce. These simple meals are popular with the three members of my family, and especially so with visitors. I bake two pies when I expect two or three extras because I can never get more than five portions from one pie."

Frozen Watermelon.

Mrs. James P. Hornaday, 1327 Hemlock street northwest — "The method of preparation of this novel quick-dish idea is so simple, it's scarcely a recipe at all, but here it is. Extract the pink meat from about ¼ of a medium-sized watermelon. Remove seeds and mash pulp thoroughly with potato masher. Add a pinch of salt, tablespoon of sugar and a teaspoon of lemon. Mix well and heap mixture in refrigerator tray or mold. Freeze until ingredients are of rich firm texture. Inasmuch as these specifications suit my individual needs (for the contents of a medum-sized refrigerator dish), I have suggested my own measurements. The quantity, however, may be doubled or tripled. The preparation and freezing of this fruit is so rapid that dessert is ready by the time the rest of the meal is completed."

Plain Potatoes Are Good, but Try New Mode

Paprika, Parsley, Hasty and Home-Fried Styles Make Them Better.

A PLAIN boiled potato is a very fine food. There's nothing better, when properly cooked and served hot, white and mealy. Where would the boiled dinner be without it, or the Swiss steak dinner, or the creamed codfish dinner? And many's the trick that can be played with this homey, familiar dish.

Potatoes which are destined to go to the table plain boiled should not be pared before cooking. Select potatoes of even size, firm and heavy. In almost any other form of potato service defects can be removed or disguised without trouble, but every eye shows up in the boiled ones. So the ones selected for boiling should be unusually pretty. Scrub them well, put them in a generous amount of rapidly boiling salted water, cover and cook 30 minutes or until tender. Drain, place the kettle near but not on the heat, let the cover be slighfly ajar, and do not peel until potatoes are perfectly dry. The skins will come off easily. Serve them in a hot dish with a little melted butter poured on top of them.

But, at times, to fit occasions, boiled potatoes must not be so plain.

To make parsley potatoes, boil very small potatoes. Then, after peeling roll them in a very little chopped parsley.

Parsley Stewed Potatoes.

Wash and peel 6 potatoes. Cut in ¼-inch slices. Place in skillet with 1 cup boiling water and cook until almost tender. Remove cover and cook until water evaporates. Season with salt, pepper, butter and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley just before they cook dry.

Paprika potatoes also are appealing, when fresh, fragrant, bright powder is used.

Hasty Cooked Potatoes.

Wash and peel potatoes, cut potatoes in slices ¼ inch thick. Put them into boiling salted water, and they should be tender in about ten minutes. Drain well, put into a hot dish, chop them a little and toss with salt, pepper and butter. Serve at once.

Potatoes which are to be warmed up after cooking have a much better appearance and flavor if they are boiled the day before. Boil them with the skins on as directed, do not peel them until ready to use.

Cooling Appetizers Will Win Prizes In Post's Contest

What is the most cooling summer appetizer you can think of? Is it an hors d'oeuvre, a jellied soup, a seafood cocktail, or a fragrant fruit cup? Do you cling more to the custom of serving zestful little salads as a relish before the main course? Perhaps you are vitamin-conscious and serve a host of zestful looking vegetable straws, curls or roses as a hot-weather appetizer.

If you have a favorite formula for a cooling appetizer, mail it to Alice Clayton, The Post Food Editor, at once. Test all recipes and write them out carefully, as a tested recipe is more likely to win than an elaborate-sounding concoction that won't stand up under trial. All entries must be received before August 27. A few moments recollection or retrial of your pet appetizer may win one of five cash prizes.

The first award is $3, the second $2 and there are three prizes of $1 each.

Egg Tests.

Egg tests: Fresh eggs will sink when they are placed in a pan of cold water. Held in front of a candle flame in a dark room they will appear clear.

CONSUMERS COUNSEL

Miss Evelyn Wiesbacker Suggests Food Hints for Diet Followers.

MANY splendid consumers' letters have come in to the Counsel. Some housewives desire more homemaking hints, some want information on diets, party dishes, budget and time-saving foods, some on preparation of little buffet dinners. Each request or desire to participate in Counsel activities has been carefully considered, and effort is being made to telephone or write consumers whose requests seem most urgent. Open letters, or questions on homemaking advice are published in this column for both their timeliness and value to other housewives. Mail all cooking hints, remarks or criticisms to Alice Clayton, Post food editor.

The comments of Miss Evelyn Wiesbacker, 4423 Eighth street northwest, were found to be of such interest that not only is her letter published today, but in the near future the food editor plans to act on her request by giving recipes for special foods recommended for certain types of diet patients. Here is the letter:

Dear Miss Clayton: I received my check yesterday as a prize for my "club plate" recipe, and I want you to know that it was not only a great pleasure to win it, but it came in time for my birthday.

Will you let me congratulate you on being the new editor of my favorite page? I really envy you, because I always wanted to do something like it, but I have been ill for a great many years. Your page is better than ever, only much too short.

I would like to make a suggestion for one of your contests. Not being able to eat everything myself, I know how difficult it is for those on diets to find good things to eat, so why not have recipes for those unfortunates such as dishes containing iodine for goiter and vitamin A for weak eyes, especially the so-called night blindness? I would welcome them myself.

Then, what is better than the corn in the markets now? There are so many ways of preparing it.

Good luck, Miss Clayton. I know you will be very happy in your new post. EVELYN WIESBACKER.

Mrs. Barbara Lipscomb, 934 New York avenue northwest, who has long been an interested participant in Post food contests, has sent in a rudimentary list of white sauces in a chart which may be of assistance to Washington homemakers. She suggests preparing sauces of desired consistency for left-over summer vegetables.

Mrs. Lipscomb Gives List of White Sauces in Chart Form.

WHITE SAUCE.

TABLE FOR DEGREES OF THICKNESS.

	Thin.	Medium.	Thick.
Butter, tablespoon	1	1½ or 2	3 or 4
Flour	1	1½ or 2	3 or 4
Salt	¼	¼	½
Pepper	Dash	Dash	⅛ tsp.
Milk	1	1	1

Cream butter, flour and seasonings together. Add this to the hot milk in top of double boiler. Do not stir. Cover. Cook over boiling water 10 to 15 minutes. Stir briskly with spoon or heat with rotary egg beater until well mixed. This can be made 15 minutes before dinner is served. It won't get too thin and won't be lumpy.

For Better Bread.

Bread should be cooled thoroughly before it is stored. In hot weather, especially, each loaf should be inspected daily—for mold. The bread box also should be cleaned and aired frequently and kept in as cool a place as possible.

Prices are for District of Columbia only, until close of business Sat., Aug. 20, 1938.

Tennis Week Draws Visitors to Newport

Sen. Glass' Arrival Causes So Much Attention That He Leaves.

By Hope Ridings Miller.
The Post Society Editor.

Newport—topflight society's favorite summer playground—took on a new dash of interest this week when activities in connection with Tennis Week drew a number of politically prominent visitors. For several days plans have been under way for the colorful barn dance given last evening for Miss Anne Somerville Grosvenor, and for weeks Count and Countess Alfonso P. Villa have been making preparations for the forthcoming marriage of their daughter and Robert Grant tomorrow, but the most widely talked-of topic in the Rhode Island resort now is the recent visit there of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia.

Arriving in Newport early this week for a short sojourn, Senator Glass found himself the center of so much attention that he terminated his visit earlier than his friends expected and is now cruising again aboard the Ariel.

Henry Fletchers Entertain Knoxes

Mrs. Paul FitzSimmons, member of the Republican National Committee, entertained recently for Col. Frank Knox, former Republican candidate for Vice President, and Mrs. Knox, and for former Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, and Mrs. Moses, who have been feted right and left ever since they arrived in Newport. Col. and Mrs. Knox are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Fletcher at Faxon Lodge. The former chairman of the Republican National Committee and Mrs. Fletcher, who have been enlivening the social calendar at the resort all summer, have entertained a number of political figures in the past few weeks.

Meanwhile, diplomatic and upper crust notables also have been making news at Newport. Baron Paul Schell of the Hungarian Legation has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Cushing for several days. Mr. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock, of Washington, have as their guest, Maurice Lyon; and Mrs. Mondell Gregg, of Washington, and Everett W. Fabyan are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, jr., of McLean, who are spending the summer in Newport. James M. Beck is the guest of Sheldon Whitehouse, former American Minister to Guatemala, and Mrs. Whitehouse.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Breckinridge Bayne, of Washington, who were recent sojourners at Newport are now cruising again on their yacht, The Venture. They are expected to return to Washington September 15.

Anne Grosvenor Honored at Barn Dance

The barn dance given by Mrs. Charles S. Whitman for her daughter, Miss Anne S. Grosvenor, last evening set a new high in informal entertaining at the resort. While not as fancy either as to decorations or cost as several parties drawing Newport's debutante set this season, it was one of the high lights of the summer social calendar.

Colonists, visiting tennis players and guests down from New York for the event donned dirndls and overalls for the event, which took place at the villa of Mr. and Mrs. Whitman. As everyone knows, Mr. Whitman was formerly Governor of New York and like most officeholders, past or present, numbers many politicians among his friends. So in last evening's gathering, there were several guests who were invited because of their prominence in other circles besides purely social ones.

Two bars and a long marquee built out from the Whitman villa were especially arranged for the event. Decorations appropriately consisted of bales of hay and cornstalks and an orchestra turned out in overalls, straw hats and bandanas.

Astins Are Hosts To Mrs. Glass And Husband

Richmond Officer and Wife Are Honor Guests in Fete at 'Contemplation.'

Contemplation, the quaintly named home of Maj. Gen. E. B. Wymans near Vienna, Va., was the scene of a large and merry gathering last evening. The general's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Mills Astin, entertained 20-odd friends at a buffet supper in honor of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. E. L. M. Glass, of Richmond, who have been visiting the Astins en route to Texas for a vacation.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, for whom Mr. Astin serves as secretary, was among the guests. Others included George T. Summerlin, Chief of Protocol for the State Department; the Commandant of Fort Myer and Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright, Col. George Milholland, Gen. and Mrs. George P. Tyner, Capt. and Mrs. T. Q. Donaldson, Lieut James Winn, Mrs. Alfons B. Lands, Mrs. Jean Nelson and William van Lennep.

Several of Mr. and Mrs. Astin's neighbors in Virginia dropped in for the festivities, among them Mr. and Mrs. Smith Bowman, with their sons, Smith and De Long Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richardson, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Graham.

Doris R. Mitman Plights Troth

She Will Be Married Here to Thomas Henry Darling, of Dahlgren, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weaver Mitman, of Wesley Heights, D. C., announce the engagement of the former's daughter, Doris Rodgers Mitman, and Thomas Henry Darling, of McLean and Dahlgren, Va. The wedding will take place at St. Alban's Church in October.

The bride-elect was graduated from Western High School and attended American University. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hambleton Dawson, of Washington, and the late Rev. Mr. Mitman, who was rector of the pro-cathedral at Bethlehem, Pa. Her maternal great-grandfather was the late Judge Alexander Gray, of the United States court of appeals and former secretary of state for Wisconsin. Her father is head curator of arts and industries of the Smithsonian Institution.

Mr. Darling, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Darling, was educated at Christ Church School, the Pennsylvania Museum School of Industrial Art and the Corcoran Art School. The couple will make their home in Washington.

Lecuonas Guests Of Miss Archibald At Informal Tea

Dr. Pedro Lecuona, newly arrived Minister-Counselor of the Spanish Embassy, and Senora de Lecuona were guests of honor yesterday at a small informal tea given at the Hay-Adams House by Miss Anna Wolcott Archibald.

Dr. Lecuona has a background of diplomatic experience extending over many years. He has represented his country several times in France, and twice in Estonia—that small state just across the water from Finland. He also has been on diplomatic duty in England, and Argentina, and in the foreign office in both Madrid and Barcelona.

Senora Lecuona, who is Spanish by marriage, was born in Estonia, and is, much to the astonishment of those who think of her as Spanish, quite blond with large blue eyes. Yesterday she was gowned in a smart black street length afternoon frock worn with a white turban and white accessories. Senora Lecuona speaks five languages as well as her own, French, German, Russian, Spanish, and English.

Others at the tea included Antonio Garcia Lahiguera, first secretary of the Spanish Embassy here, who has just been transferred to Havana, Cuba as first secretary there. Senor Lahiguera will leave Washington Sunday for New York and will sail next week for Havana. Though he has been two years at the Embassy here, Cuba will not be strange to him, as he has represented Spain eight times previously in that country.

Still others at the tea were the Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy, A. Teixeira Soares, and Senhora de Soares, Commercial Secretary of the Spanish Embassy Ignacio de Castillo, Juan Meana of the Spanish Embassy, and Mrs. Preston McGoodwin, wife of the former United States Minister to Venezuela.

Navy Set Steals Spotlight Here

Commander Leon Fiske and Family to Take House in Arlington.

Comings and goings of members of the Navy set are stealing a goodly part of the social spotlight these days.

New faces in the Navy corps this season will be those of Commander Leon S. Fiske, U. S. N., and Mrs. Fiske, who recently have come to Washington from Coronado, Calif. With their three children, Nancy, Julie and Leon, jr., they have taken a house at 3401 Fourteenth street in Arlington.

Before being assigned to his present tour of duty at the Navy Yard, Commander Fiske was in charge of the U. S. S. Arctic.

Back in town after an absence of ten years are Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Marion Russell Kelly, who have moved into an apartment at 2301 Connecticut avenue. They have many friends here who remember them from the days before Commander Kelley was sent out to the Orient for four years' duty with the Asiatic Station. He also was in charge of the destroyer John D. Edwards.

En route to the United States the Kelleys took the longest way, stopping off for an interesting month's leave in India. Mrs. Kelley is a sister of Mrs. Frank Vernon Rigley, of Wesley Heights.

Lieut. Robert Noble Downs, U. S. N., and Mrs. Downes, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are at the Mayflower, where they will be for several days. Lieut. Downes, who has been on duty on the West Coast for some time, arrived here Wednesday evening, joining Mrs. Downes, who came on from Newark, where she has been visiting.

Mrs. Downes, formerly a member of the editorial staff of The Washington Post, was Miss Marilyn Reeve before her marriage, which took place in May, 1937. Lieut. Downes was an aide at the White House before being assigned to duty on the U. S. S. Brooklyn.

Miss Dorothy Bibb Will Be Married in Garden This Fall

The garden of the home of Mrs. Myra Mason Bibb, of Arlington, Va., will be the setting for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Dorothy Bibb, to Charles Finley, of Mount Morris, N. Y., son of Mrs. C. Ward Finley and the late Mr. Finley. The bride-to-be has selected September 17 as the date and 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon as the time.

Miss Martha Cannon, of Washington, will serve as Miss Bibb's only attendant, and Howard Donald, of Long Island, will be best man. A reception will follow the ceremony.

The couple will make their home in Arlington after a wedding trip.

Hawkinses to Remain In Capital for Month

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hawkins, who recently returned from a European honeymoon, have taken an apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street. Their plans for the future are indefinite, but they expect to be here a month at least.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Hawkins was Miss Christine Ekengren.

Two Weddings Are Announced

Mrs. George Walter Barton announces the marriage of her daughter, Bette Warren Barton, and John Guilford Hoyle, February 2, at Elkton, Md. Mr. Hoyle, who is the son of Col. and Mrs. Rene E. De Russy Hoyle, is connected with the Washington Loan & Trust Co.

The couple will make their home at 2400 Sixteenth street.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Shirley, sr., of Yazoo City, Miss., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Evelyn, to Stewart Hughes Quinn, of Cincinnati. The ceremony took place Saturday, August 13.

Mr. Quinn is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Quinn, formerly of Washington and now living in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Woodward Off To Roanoke Island

Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, assistant administrator of the Works Progress Administration, left last night for Roanoke Island, N. C., to attend a performance of Paul Green's "The Lost Colony," by players of the Federal Theater project which Mrs. Woodward administers. She will return to Washington Sunday evening.

Yesterday marked the 351st anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, the first white child to be born in the New World. The scene of Paul Green's drama is laid at Roanoke Island, and the great amphitheater in which this historical drama is being played is in the village of Manteo, named for the Indian in whose charge Gov. White left the colonists when he returned to England for the purpose of reporting to Queen Elizabeth and bringing back supplies to the New World. In the meantime, war broke out between England and Spain, and Gov. White, the grandfather of Virginia Dare, was not permitted to cross the ocean again. Hence "The Lost Colony."

French Embassy Attache Plans Trip to Vermont

Count Gabriel de Gramont, Attache of the French Embassy, and Countess de Gramont will leave the end of the month to visit their children who are summering at Montpelier, Vt.

From there Count and Countess de Gramont will visit friends in New England, stopping at Bar Harbor and Newport before returning to Washington.

Arrives From Ecuador.

Senora Maria Teresa Puig, mother of Senora de Alfaro, the wife of the Ambassador of Ecuador, arrived yesterday by plane from her home in Quito, Ecuador, and is now the guest of her son-in-law and daughter at the Mayflower. She expects to be here for some time.

Party Given To Petworth Club Official

Mrs. Shearer, Elected Secretary, Will Move to Chicago.

Another Affair Honors Other Members Who Are Departing.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Members of the executive board of the Petworth Woman's Club yesterday entertained at a farewell reception in honor of Mrs. Frederick H. Shearer, former corresponding secretary of the club. The affair was given at the home of Mrs. F. J. MacMaugh, 4510 Eighth street, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Shearer, with her husband and daughters, Helen and Harriet, leaves Tuesday by motor for Chicago, where Mr. Shearer has been transferred by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. They have been residents of Washington for 20 years and Mrs. Shearer has belonged to the Petworth Club for 14. She has served as chairman of the education section and had been elected secretary for the coming year.

She also has been active in the Petworth Mothers Club, the Order of the Eastern Star and the Petworth Methodist Church. The party yesterday was one of a series which has been arranged for her this week. She was entertained Tuesday at a luncheon given by the Mothers Club at the home of Mrs. Elsie LeDuc. Another luncheon was given Wednesday by Mrs. A. U. Smith which was a farewell not only to Mrs. Shearer, but also to Mrs. Charles Nash and Mrs. Clayton Marsh, both of whom also are leaving soon to reside in Chicago and for Mrs. H. Warren Smith, Mrs. Clay Holmes and Mrs. Charles O. Pierce, all of whom are moving to New York. The husbands of all six of the women are with the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

In the receiving line yesterday were Mrs. Shearer, who wore a gown of brown and white chiffon; Mrs. MacMaugh, who was in a flowered crepe afternoon gown, and the club president, Mrs. Oscar Nelson, who wore a blue crepe, matching the color of her eyes.

Yellow flowers were used as the centerpiece for the table in the dining room from which punch and cake were served. It was lighted with blue candles, carrying out the club colors, blue and gold.

Members of the board who assisted in serving were Mrs. Frank Stuart, vice president; Mrs. B. K. Bauer, chairman of philanthropy; Mrs. R. K. Bailey, chairman of fine arts; Mrs. J. W. Roth, chairman of hospitality; Mrs. Edward Johnson, chairman of literature; Mrs. A. Mac Smith, who succeeded Mrs. Shearer as corresponding secretary; Mrs. Karl Mahoim, chairman of the civic and educational section, and Mrs. A. G. Dunn.

The party was the last affair to be given by the club until its section meetings are resumed in September. The first group to meet next month will be the Visiting Nurse Section headed by Mrs. Sue Richwine, which will hold its regular session at the Brightwood Branch of the I. V. N. A. This section has been meeting all summer and Mrs. Bauer has been present for every session. The general club meetings will begin on the second Monday in September.

Among the guests yesterday were Mrs. W. A. Winklehaus, Mrs. Ellis Logan, an honorary member of the club; Mrs. Claude Ballard, Mrs. R. H. Holm, Mrs. C. G. Fisher, Mrs. Mildred Kimball, Mrs. Jesse Cribbs, Mrs. John Mee, Mrs. J. W. Dorst, Mrs. Frank Schwartz and Mrs. L. O. Cook.

Among others who attended were Mrs. William King, Mrs. William Van Pelt, Mrs. E. C. Magdeburger, Mrs. Otto Hammerlund, Mrs. G. L. Palmer, T. S. Tincher, Mrs. L. T. Jones, Mrs. Alice Waite, Mrs. R. S. Hart, Mrs. G. E. Hudson, Mrs. S. W. Norton, Mrs. S. H. Jacobs, Mrs. H. F. Garner, Mrs. Ruth E. Mills, Mrs. C. S. Eskridge, Mrs. R. E. Adams and Mrs. H. O. Craver.

Mrs. Winklehaus, Mrs. Norton, Mrs. Schwartz, Mrs. Holm, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Hammerlund are all past presidents of the club.

The library chairman of Women of the Moose, Mrs. William Sullivan, has been renovating the chapter library and her committee is adding a number of new books to the collection there. The next meeting of the library committee will be August 24, at 7:30 p. m. at Moose Hall.

The Mooseheart and Moosehaven committees will hold a joint meeting on the evening on August 23, at Moose Hall, Mrs. Margaret Bates and Mrs. E. T. Deegan are the chairmen.

Credit Women Rise Early for Breakfast Fete

Better Business Bureau's Functions Explained by Mr. Marshall.

"It's nice to get up in the morning——"

The members of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club stop right there in the lines of the old song and prove they believe it. At 8 a. m. yesterday they convened for their breakfast meeting in the Fairfax room of the Willard Hotel.

About 40 of their 58 members were present to hear a talk on the Better Business Bureau by Joseph W. Marshall, director. He discussed the functions of the bureau and its effort to discourage business practices unfair either to the merchant or customer.

The vice president of the club, Mrs. Martha Bean Gleason, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Wilhelmina Bude Hussey. The name Creditaire was decided on for the club's monthly bulletin, which is edited by Mrs. Ruth Adams Robinson, corresponding secretary of the organization.

The members discussed plans for a "bosses' breakfast," at which they will entertain their employers, probably next month. The breakfast starts promptly at 8 and the programs end with equal promptness at 9 o'clock, so the members can reach their offices by 9:15.

The Washington club has gained almost 20 members within the past two months and already has affiliated with the international organization of Credit Women's Breakfast Clubs.

Others present yesterday in addition to Mrs. Gleason and Mrs. Robinson were Miss Alice White, secretary; Miss Genevieve R. Blivess, Mrs. Betty Dotterer and Mrs. J. K. Finnegan, its newest members; Miss Hilda R. Holtzman, Mrs. Mary B. Schwartz, Mrs. Alice Underwood, Mrs. Mildred Embrey, Mrs. Margaret Lynn, Mrs. Lorraine Radel, Miss Francis E. Rose, Miss Bertie Riston, Miss Eva DeBroske, Miss Mercedes Wynne, Miss Gertrude E. Wiber, Mrs. Eunice Myers, Miss Emilie Beach, Miss Gladys S. Wright, Mrs. Cornelia Walter, Miss Dorothy B. Acomb, Mrs. M. Crockett, Miss L. Walker, Mrs. Katherine G. Cohen, Mrs. Ruth Adams Robinson, Mrs. Margaret R. Kraft, Miss Marjorie Bendall, Mrs. Mary G. Ridgeway, Mrs. Doris Scott, Miss Florence E. Thompson, Miss Lillian L. Jones, Miss Louise Woodward, Miss Ann Strickler, Miss Betty Clokey, Miss Alice White, Mrs. Gertrude Nichols Lupo, Mrs. Martha Bean Gleason, Miss Elizabeth Crouch, Miss Rebecca F. Walker, Miss Ruth M. Beuchert, Miss Patsy K. Rhinehart, Miss M. H. Engelmann, Miss Helen Rubenstein, and Mrs. F. Kunza.

Mrs. Charles Haig Returns From Trip

Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, with Mr. Haig and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Green, jr., has returned from a motor trip through New England and into Canada.

They were entertained at dinner on their way home by Mrs. William H. Pouch, at the Biltmore in New York. Mrs. Pouch, who is president of the National Society, Children of the American Revolution, had as other guests, Mrs. William A. Becker, of Summit, N. J., past president general of the D. A. R., and Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, a former vice president general from New York.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne.

NINA KINSELLA, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Washington, and Elizabeth Mann, former recording secretary, will leave today by motor for Charleston, S. C., to attend the Southeast regional conference of the national federation.

It will open tomorrow night and continue through Tuesday noon. The high light of the Tuesday program will be the presence of the national federation president, Earlene White, of Washington, who is now on her way home from Europe, where she attended the conference of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Budapest.

• • • •

MISS KINSELLA will conduct a workshop program Monday afternon on co-ordination of the program based on the national theme "My Business and Yours." The Washington club also will sponsor a buffet supper Sunday night at the old Dock Street Theater in Charleston, said to be the oldest theater building in the country, still in use. Lou Brown Gregg, of Florida, is chairman of the region and will preside at the general sessions of the conference. Clubs of Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Virginia and the District are included.

• • • •

THE WASHINGTON B. & P. W. Club will begin its season the second Monday in September, Miss Kinsella has announced, but the place of meeting has not been decided.

YESTERDAY was a time for commemorating the work of feminists. In the morning there were the Margaret Brent ceremonies, conducted by the Maryland Federation in St. Marys City and, last night, at Alva Belmont House, headquarters of the National Woman's Party, the memory of a leader in suffrage work, the late Maud Younger, was honored.

The Government Workers' Council of the party, headed by Edwina Austin Avery, as chairman, was in charge of the program, which was presented in the garden.

• • • •

ALICE PAUL, one of the party's most distinguished members, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, of the national council; Miss Laura Berrien, legal counsel for the organization and also president of the National Lawyers Association, and Mrs. Helen Hunt West, editor of Equal Rights, all spoke, reviewing the part Miss Younger took in the work for suffrage and the equal rights campaign which has followed it.

An unusual feature of the evening was the presentation of slides showing pictures of incidents in the suffrage campaign. These were shown by Mrs. Wiley in connection with her talk.

Margaret Brent Tablet Unveiled By Club Women

200 Make Pilgrimage to St. Mary's for Its Dedication.

About 200 Maryland club women made a pilgrimage to St. Mary's City yesterday morning for the dedication of a tablet in commemoration of the tercentenary of Margaret Brent's sailing from England for the colonies. It was placed in the replica of the old State House which is next to Trinity Church, built from the bricks of the original structure and occupying the site on which it stood.

Mrs. Robert Moss, of Annapolis, one of the early suffrage workers of Maryland, was chairman of the committee in charge of the ceremonies and Mrs. Harry Harcum, of Salisbury, new president of the State Federation, presided.

Miss Lavinia Engle, of Washington, field secretary for the executive director of the Social Security Board, was the chief speaker on the program and drove to St. Mary's with Mrs. Peyton Whelan, of the Montgomery County Federation. In her talk she reviewed the picturesque history of the first of Maryland's feminists.

Margaret Brent epitomized the participation of the women of England in liberal movements of that time, Miss Engle told the club women. She described her coming to the colonies, her courage and leadership in taking the reins of Government after the death of Calvert, when chaos threatened the settlement, and the able administration she achieved.

Miss Engle recalled, as a child having attended another celebration in Margaret Brent's honor, which was sponsored by women suffrage workers in 1912. She went at this time with her mother and participating in the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Raney, who had come from Baltimore in a wagon as part of the program. Mrs. Raney was among the club women who also attended yesterday's dedication.

Following the ceremonies, a picnic luncheon was served and the women went sight-seeing to other places of historic interest.

Bedtime Stories

A Lesson Reversed.

Tomorrow you may find you may Forget the lesson learned today.
—Mrs. Lightfoot.

That sounds as if some lessons are useless. That is not so. All through life you will find that there are important things to be learned and later forgotten because no longer of use. And there are other important things to be learned and remembered always. It is just as necessary to learn the things that will be of use for only a short time as to learn the things to be remembered always.

No one knows this better than Mrs. Lightfoot the Deer. The very first thing she teaches her children is to "freeze." That means to lie still, as still as if they really were frozen and couldn't move, while she is away from them. This is when they are very small and their slim little legs cannot carry them fast or far. Then they are safer lying flat on the ground hidden in a thicket and motionless. If Mrs. Lightfoot discovers the approach of an enemy she signals the fawns to "freeze" while she silently steals away or plunges off noisily to draw the enemy's attention to her.

This lesson the twins had learned thoroughly. You might have stepped on them before they would move. But they grew fast just as all babies do, especially the babies of the people of the Green Forest. Their legs grew longer and stronger. The time came for them to follow mother and to learn the ways of the Green Forest and how to look out for themselves. It was then that Mrs. Lightfoot reversed the lesson they had so well learned. Yes, sir, she exactly reversed it. Now they were taught to trust to their legs instead of to freezing to escape their enemies. They were taught to run instead of to lie motionless.

"Your legs are your safety; use them and do it promptly," she told them over and over again. "Don't wait to find out what the danger is. There will be time enough for that afterward. Run first, and then if need be hide."

Then she gave them some practical lessons. The three would be quietly feeding when suddenly mother would give the danger signal and go bounding off, her tail erect like a white flag that they could easily see and follow. Off would go the twins bounding after her and doing their best to keep that white flag in sight. Always they wondered what mother was running from, but they didn't wait to find out. Presently they would come up with her. She would be standing looking back the way they had come, her head held high, her big ears set wide to catch the faintest sound. The twins would turn and do exactly as mother was doing.

After a minute or two she would relax, lower her head, twitch her ears, let her tail drop and begin to feed as if nothing had happened. Then the twins would know that once more all was well. Sometimes she would slip away from them where they could not see her. With no special danger signal she would start to run as if in fright and the twins, hearing the sound of her feet, would instantly go bounding off as fast as their slim legs could take them.

So the twins learned to run when their mother ran. Later when the family joined other of the Deer folk the sudden jumping and running of any of the group started all, the twins included, off at once.

"Make sure of safety first and satisfy curiosity afterward," was mother's sound advice repeated over and over again.

Then they were taught to understand the alarm notes of other folk —Blacky the Crow, Sammy Jay, Chatterer the Red Squirrel, and the danger thump of Jumper the Hare.

"When other folks are afraid there may be reason for you to be afraid, so watch and be ready to run," said Mrs. Lightfoot.

So the twins grew and learned. Now they were a year old, as smart young Deer as ever the Green Forest had known. One of them was growing his first antlers, just two straight spikes, and the Old Naturalist had named him Spike.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

EASY TO VIOLATE.

Newton, Iowa, Aug. 18.—Soldier boys in shiny trench helmets have been making eyes at Newton's pretty girls, and Newton's pretty girls have been looking right back at them, with just the right touch of shyness . . . This is one gain from the Maytag strike and the visit of the militia . . . Even the strikers' daughters were not too hostile to the slim boys in khaki.

Senator Wagner

• • • •

There were a few days, though, when there was talk of marching into the big washing machine plant and kicking out the sit-downers, or dispersing the picket lines. . . . There was talk of mobilizing the farmers, as they were mobilized at the Hershey, Pa., chocolate factory, with clubs and pitchforks.

• • • •

A strike in a small town like Newton is different from a strike in a large industrial center. The scene is clearer, there is less confusion. Everyone knows everyone else by sight. The outsider must watch his step. Everything that is said and done is remembered quite clearly later. Ideology is at low ebb, and the "good neighbor" policy is more than a theory; it is a small town fact that can't be dodged.

"—just a hint of Hershey"

A few things are quite plain here. One is that the CIO is not popular in such a community. This is true despite the fact that most of the CIO spokesmen here have been temperate, conciliatory, pacific. They even offered to obtain endorsements from satisfied corporation customers to whom they are selling labor.

• • • •

Another is that employers who have, like the Maytags, been rather decent employers, do not lose overnight such good will as they have stored up among their workers and neighbors and, perchance, in heaven . . . Local sentiment remained more than 2 to 1 for the Maytags.

• • • •

But it is also clear that even good employers may lose this good will if they become bullheaded during labor negotiations, as did Elmer Maytag and (1) go away from the strike front, to a summer home on a lake 400 miles away, when they are needed for negotiations, or (2) decline to concede a minor point here and there, as when the company let a piffling $10,000 stand in the way of a truce.

• • • •

Now several things remain to be settled as a result of the Newton laboratory experiment.

One is, do the Maytags have a right to fire the dozen striking employes who got into street brawls?

Or is the CIO right in claiming that such dismissal would be "discriminating" against them because of union activity? (The Maytags are the sort who would have fired a man for brawling in the streets long before the CIO, and strike or no strike.)

"—is this a violation?"

Another issue that seems likely to simmer to the surface is: Can the Maytags fire the 300 sit-downers? The Maytags are not the sort who like to employ workers who "sit-down" in their factory; they're apt to fight this to a showdown, although right now the sit-downers are back at work. But they have received notices that their cases are being considered.

• • • •

Another issue is: What shall be the relationship, during a strike, between bosses like the Maytags and employes like their Newton workers?

Shall it be a violation of the Wagner act if a member of the Maytag family smiles at a striker or a back-to-worker, or if a back-to-worker gets a loan at a bank of which Maytags are directors?

Or even if a Maytag lends $50 during a strike to a worker who's been with the company 20 years?

• • • •

Newton is a town where a striker may be living next door to a foreman or a superintendent or even an official of the company; or in the same block, or around the corner . . . It is not inconceivable that their sons and daughters might even go to the movies or play tennis together, or even get married to each other. They may be mowing the lawn at the same hour in the evening, even during the heat of the strike, and their wives may be gossiping over the back fence; and it's as important to the CIO as to the Maytags to find out whether such things might be violations of the Wagner labor act.

Oram Asks D. C. to Add 19 Inspectors

Boost in Staff Would Increase Budget 20 Per Cent.

$2,630 More Requested for Work of Small Claims Court.

To bolster the present inadequate staff of the District Department of Inspection, Hugh P. Oram, director, yesterday requested $291,020 during the 1940 fiscal year, an increase of more than 20 per cent over the present appropriation.

Oram asked for the increase mainly to pay the salaries of 19 additional inspectors for the various sub-departments under him.

At the same time Municipal Court officials asked for $97,000 for 1940, an increase of $2,630 over the present appropriation. The court stated it would need $1,450 of the requested increase to furnish additional equipment and supplies for the newly created Small Claims Court.

Oram specifically requested two assistant engineers for the Building Inspection Division. One of the assistants would be in the administrative section. He explained that since 1932 when the department was first organized no provision had been made for any additional personnel, which is now seriously lacking.

The other assistant would be added to the concrete inspection force. At the present time there are only two inspectors in this division, Oram said.

"It is almost a physical impossibility for two men to visit every job in the city, where concrete is used, as often as they should," he said.

Inspector Needed.

One additional building inspector was requested for the present force of 11 inspectors, each of whom is carrying an average of 330 active jobs.

"It is absolutely impossible for a man to make adequate inspections of that many jobs, but by adding another inspector the work can be so divided that the situation will be greatly relieved, he said.

Four senior engineering inspectors, two for the elevator force and two for the fire escape force, are also included in the requested increase.

At present there are 8 elevator inspectors and a total of approximately 3,200 elevators and escalators in the city, each of which must be inspected once every four months. It is necessary to have additional inspectors for this division because of the numerous re-inspections required, Oram explained.

Escape Force Short.

The present fire escape force consists of three men, which Oram states is inadequate. In addition four new positions in the plumbing inspection division and an associate engineer for the smoke and boiler inspection divisions are requested.

For the electrical inspection division, Oram has requested an assistant engineer, two principal engineering inspectors and three senior engineering inspectors.

The Small Claims Court was established by act of Congress March 5, having a jurisdiction not exceeding $50. The expense of the court is covered in the Municipal Court budget.

Court officials requested $85,700 for salaries during 1940, an increase of only $840 over the present appropriation. For compensation of jurors, a sum of $8,700 is requested. This is no increase over the present sum. For contingent expenses, which include law books, meals for jurors and repairs, the court requests $3,000, as compared with the present appropriation of $1,550.

Water Budget Up.

The Water Department yesterday set its budget estimates for the 1940 fiscal year at $1,932,570, an increase of $348,700, or more than 20 per cent over this year's appropriation. Included in the budget estimates was a recommendation that District property owners be permitted to pay their water bills semi-annually instead of annually.

A sum of $450,000 was requested for laying of new water mains in the District. Of this amount, $200,000 was asked for laying 6,200 linear feet of 48-inch water mains from the Bryant street pumping station to the new high-service reservoir to be erected in the grounds of the United States Soldiers' Home.

Youth Shoots Dad Who Hit Mother With a Hammer

Tipton, Iowa, Aug. 18 (AP).—A 16-year-old farm youth shot his father through the chest today after the father "ran amuck" and attacked the boy's mother with a claw hammer, fracturing her skull, County Attorney Potter reported.

Potter said H. E. Wood, 49, the father, signed a statement he went to a shed intending to hang himself, but changed his mind, picked up the hammer and attacked his wife in their residence. The mother and father were taken to a hospital. Attendants reported he was in a serious condition.

After he was shot, the father grappled with his son Luverne, took the revolver away from him, but made no attempt to use it, the attorney reported.

U. S. Turns Tables on Black Widow With Fatal Wasp As Science Moves to Wipe Out Tuberculosis in Cows

Underwood & Underwood.

Just as Ceasar met his Brutus, so it appears that Latrodectus Mactans will shortly meet his Baeus Latrodecti.

Or, translating from the Latin, the black-widow spider, whose bite can be fatal to humans, will soon discover that Uncle Sam has imported a foe from Haiti which feeds and thrives on the spider's eggs.

The days of "latro," as the black widow is called by his pet name, are definitely numbered. Scientists of the Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine are checking to make sure that the wasp-like Baeus will only destroy eggs of the black widow, inasmuch as other spiders are helpful insects, consuming mosquitoes and flies.

One shipment of the Haitian parasite has already arrived. Experiments are being made by Dr. James Brennan, Division of Insects Affecting Animals and Man.

Baeus, unlike the black widow, is harmless, according to Dr. F. C. Bishopp, division chief. It digs into the egg-filled silk spider cocoon and eats away. The female black widow will lay as many as 300 eggs in the cocoon.

All spiders are slightly poisonous, but the black widow is extremely so. This arachnid builds its nest in garages and rock gardens, thus coming in contact with humans. Its range is as far north as Montana, and it is particularly abundant in the Southwest and the grape-growing regions of southern California. The bite causes partial paralysis.

The highly-publicized black widow is not as deadly as commonly believed, but because of the fear "latro" inspires, the United States scientists are determined to rid the country of them. Baeus, natural enemy of "latro," was discovered several years ago in Haiti by Dr. H. Dodier, entomologist now with the Bureau of Biological Survey.

Meanwhile, specialists with Bureau of Animal Industry are experimenting with tuberculosis and yellow fever in cattle.

Dr. R. R. Henley, assistant chief of the Biochemic Division, is refining the use of tuberculin tests to diagnose tuberculosis in animals. U. S. scientists have cut the disease from 4 per cent to 1 per cent.

Tuberculin, composed of substances thrown off by mycobacterium tuberculosis—the germ—is injected in the cattle. Certain reactions reveal tuberculosis, and the animal is destroyed. Thus not only is spread of the infection halted among the animals, but also, in the case of dairy cattle, barred from affecting humans. Unpasteurized milk from tubercular cows can be a source of the disease, especially among children.

The department maintains a herd of cattle at the Beltsville Experimental Station. It also propagates the t. b. germs in order to have a supply of matter for the tuberculin. The germs are dangerous, and require special handling.

Experiments to halt an epidemic of sleeping sickness among horses, inflammation of the brain, which affected 170,000 in the United States last year, are being conducted under Dr. H. W. Schoening, assistant chief of the Animal Industry Bureau.

It is believed the disease is a virus, spread by biting insects, especially mosquitoes. The sickness is prevalent in the central Western section of the country.

Jailbreakers Hunted Here; Auto Found

Roads Blocked to Pair Who Fled From Hagerstown.

4th of 6 Fugitives Is Discovered Asleep in Trailer.

Washington, Virginia and Maryland police last night were guarding all roads leading from the District in an intensive hunt for two jailbreakers who led an escape of six prisoners from Washington County Jail, Hagerstown, Md.

The six had made the break Tuesday night after slugging Deputy Sheriff Leister Isanogie over the head with a milk bottle, and locking up two trusties in a cell. Four of the prisoners were recaptured yesterday.

Believed to be still at large in the District are James Lucas, 20, who had completed half of a 60-day term for a filling station robbery, and Raymond Mitchell, 28, waiting grand jury action on a larceny charge, alleged ringleader of the jail break. Mitchell also is wanted in West Virginia.

The hunted pair was traced to Washington through thefts and abandonment of two automobiles used in the escape. They first stole the car of Wilbur Martin, of Broadfording, near Hagerstown, then that of John D. Hoffman, of Breathedsville, Md. The latter auto was found yesterday in Washington, and the two were believed to be still in the District, or heading south. Pennsylvania and Delaware police also joined the hunt.

A posse found Elmer Wolf, jr., 19, asleep in a trailer in Hagerstown yesterday. The three others were caught shortly after the break.

Wolf was serving 90 days for larceny. The other three were Leon Kuhn, Pennsylvania Penitentiary parolee waiting grand jury action for carrying concealed weapons and attempted robbery of a Williamsport store; Buddy Hawbaker, held for the grand jury on a larceny charge, and John Hardy, also held for the grand jury in a filling station robbery.

Rural Mailmen Open Conclave Here Monday

4,000 Delegates Along With 3,000 of Auxiliary Are Expected.

The National Rural Letter Carriers Association, with 4,000 delegates expected, will open its thirty-fifth annual convention here Monday to continue through Friday morning, August 26. Sunday afternoon, before the convention opens formally, Raymond H. Combs, national president, and Mrs. H. G. Courtney, national president of the auxiliary, will place wreaths on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

In addition to the 4,000 members, about 3,000 women of the auxiliary and 500 children, members of junior organizations, are expected. Convention headquarters and registration desk will be in the Mayflower Hotel.

Postmaster General James A. Farley will address the delegates and auxiliary members Tuesday morning at a joint meeting in Constitution Hall and will speak again Wednesday night at the annual banquet in the main ballroom of the Mayflower. Another banquet speaker will be Representative James M. Mead (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the House Postoffice Committee.

Tuesday afternoon a memorial tree will be planted at the Sylvan Theater, imbedded in soil from every State in the Union. Water from the Atlantic and the Pacific, the Great Lakes and principal rivers will be spilled at its base.

Monday will be devoted to registrations and open house at the Postoffice Department.

Medical Corps Job Tests Dec. 5

An examination for appointment as first lieutenant, Medical Corps, United States Army, will be held December 5-9, inclusive, to fill vacancies occurring in 1939, the War Department announced yesterday.

Information and examination blanks will be furnished by the office of the Adjutant General, War Department. Applications will not be considered after November 19.

Cards Request Cabbies' Views On Proposed Rate Increase

Strong Sentiment Held to Favor Boost to Compensate for Compulsory Insurance; Tyler Urges $1.35 for Fourth Zone.

A move to raise taxicab fares in the District was initiated last night as the first batch of 8,000 cards was distributed to drivers to solicit their opinions on possible fare increases and zone changes.

Strong sentiment in behalf of a boost in fares, to compensate for increased expenses incurred in liability insurance premiums, was voiced by 100 drivers at a meeting in Typographical Temple, 423 G street northwest, but specific proposals differed sharply.

The present 20, 30, 50 and 70 cents scale should be changed to 35, 60, 95 cents and $1.35, T. W. Tyler urged, arguing that cabs nearly always return empty from trips to the third and fourth zones. "The boundary for the first zone should be at North Capitol street," he added, "so those Congressmen that slapped compulsory insurance on us can help pay for it."

North Capitol street also was advocated as eastern boundary for the first zone by E. L. Rowsey, who pointed out that almost all trips to the Union Station, Capitol or Library of Congress would then pay 30 cents. William A. Frye proposed a narrowing of all zones, combined with a decrease in fare per zone, with a charge for each additional passenger or piece of baggage.

J. Dolton, president of the Amalgamated Insurance Co., told drivers he had been assured by James Martin, secretary of the Public Utilities Commission, that the replies of drivers to the questionnaires would receive careful consideration from the commission.

Prior to discussion of fares, J. Balch Moor, superintendent of insurance for the District, explained operation of mutual and stock insurance companies under the new taxi liability law. From eight to ten companies probably will be announced by Monday as those certified to do business under the new law, he said.

Trucker Injured; 'Feud' Suspected

A Washington ice cream truck driver was in Providence Hospital in serious condition last night, following a mysterious fight. The injured man, Samuel Finch, 34, of 1427 West Virginia avenue northeast, was suffering from a fractured vertebra.

Finch drove his truck into the Hyattsville Fire Department last night and collapsed. Not until he was rushed to the hospital were his injuries discovered.

Hyattsville police immediately arrested two men for questioning in the belief that Finch was hurt in a feud between drivers of ice cream concerns.

W. R. Lloyd Dies; Treasury Guard

William R. Lloyd, Treasury Department guard, died yesterday at his home, 814 Marietta place northwest. He was 60.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Lena M. Lloyd; two daughters, Mrs. Henry T. Altheide and Mrs. George W. Burke, of Washington; a brother, Aus Lloyd, of Springfield, Ill.; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Morgan, of Bogota, N. J., and Miss Grace Lloyd, of Washington, and one grandson.

A veteran of Foreign Wars, Mr. Lloyd had lived in the District since 1921.

Services will be held at the Wilson K. Huntemann funeral home, 5732 Georgia avenue northwest, Monday at 2 p. m., with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Velma Seeley, Noted Poet, Dies

Mrs. Velma Hitchcock Seeley, Washington native who won recognition as a poet and song writer, died Tuesday at her home in New York City, it was learned here yesterday.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Hitchcock, of 1661 Crescent place northwest, Mrs. Seeley attended Western High School and later was graduated from the Washington College of Music. She studied also at the Ontario College at Whirby, and at the Conservatory of Music in Toronto.

Writing under the name of Velma Hitchcock, she published two volumes of poems called "Caravan" and "Ten Men and a Boy." The last named book won a prize awarded by The Lantern, a poetry magazine.

Many of her poems were widely published in magazines and newspapers and some gained wide popularity when read on the radio.

Services Are Set Today For Mrs. Mary Huther

Services for Mrs. Mary Emily Huther, 70, who died Wednesday at her home, 118 V street northwest, will be held at 10:30 a. m. today from W. W. Chambers Co. funeral home, 1400 Chapin street northwest. She had been ill four weeks.

A resident here 15 years, Mrs. Huther leaves two daughters, Mrs. Sam P. Hatchett and Mrs. Agnes B. Stallings, both of Washington, and four grandchildren.

Mrs. Vandegrift, Prominent D. C. Clubwoman, Dies

Mrs. Mary Van Nostrand Vandegrift, prominent District clubwoman and artist, died yesterday in Brooklyn, N. Y. She had been stricken in March while on a visit to her cousin, Miss Mary E. Jorgensen. She lived at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Vandegrift was a former vice president of the Aid Association for the Blind of the District, regent of Margaret Whetten Chapter, D. A. R., since its inauguration; former officer of D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, and a member of Arts Club, League of American Penwomen, Women's City Club, Daughters of 1812, Chapter "G" of P. E. O. Sisterhood, Daughters of Founders and Patriots.

She leaves a niece, Mary A. Van Nostrand, of Long Island, N. Y.

Services will be held at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Saturday at 2 p. m. with the Rev. Harry C. Goodman officiating. Interment will follow at Rock Creek Cemetery.

Yankees Take Opener, 6-5; Nats Second, 6-3

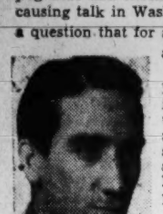
The Washington Post Sports

18 WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, AUGUST 19, 1938 X*

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

A 21-year-old youth with a shock of unruly hair, the suggestion of a pug nose and cheeks that but lately have felt the scraping of a razor, is causing talk in Washington. "What is the matter with Buddy Lewis?" is a question that for a week has been vying with the Washington weather as a topic.



POVICH.

That something is definitely the matter with Buddy Lewis is apparent enough. And that he is causing talk is no surprise. Because Buddy Lewis is now under the heading of strange cases. His complete collapse as a third baseman with the Nats has been sudden, startling and downright spectacular. Little more than a month after he was selected as the American League's third baseman for the All Star game he is performing as a rank busher.

Washington fans are amazed at Lewis' sudden decline, and quite incredulous. Yet in six games against the Yankees during the past ten days they have seen or read about 11 errors committed by the young third baseman. Three of the games, Lewis single-handedly tossed off to the Yankees. His misplays have been constant, continuous. In the four games against the Yankees here, he averaged two errors per game. He has made every conceivable kind of misplays—muffing ground balls, throwing wild to first and home, and dropping pop flies.

Yesterday, in the fifth inning of the first game after Lewis had made an incredibly wild throw to the plate on which two runners scored—his third of the game—the boos of Washington fans were dinned into his ears for the first time since he donned a Washington uniform in 1935. It was something new.

Wet-Eyed in Locker Room

Down in the Washington dressing room between games, Buddy Lewis sought out the stool in front of his locker, buried his head in his hands and was the picture of dejection. There was nothing chipper about the rest of the Nats after that 6-5 beating by the Yankees, but young Lewis was actually wet-eyed.

For newspapermen he managed a weak smile. It was a brave effort. "Don't ask me what's wrong, fellows," he said. "I wish I knew. I wish somebody'd tell me. I never thought I could be such a bum out there."

In another part of the locker room, Manager Bucky Harris was dolefully scribbling the batting order for the second game. He looked up. "I know what you're going to ask me," said Harris, "What's wrong with Lewis, and is he going to play the second game? Yes, he is. I'd be a fine guy if I benched him now. That wouldn't help. There's such a thing as breaking a kid's spirit. The only thing for him to do is stick in there until he shakes that slump."

That Lewis is in need of a rest is apparent enough. It is significant that he is bogged down in the hot days of the race. He is not yet full grown. He isn't filled out. He had his twenty-first birthday only this month. There will be nothing frail about him when he grows up, a year or two from now. But the grind of daily play is tough on a kid who shot up to 6 feet 2 inches before he was 20.

Harking Back to 1935

Washington fans remember the Buddy Lewis of 1935 all to painfully. He came up to the Nats at the fag end of that season touted as sure-fire to be Ossie Bluege's successor at third base for the Nats. He played the last two weeks of that season in Washington and was a tremendous disappoint. He couldn't hit and he was sluggish in the field. There was a doubt that the Nats would even call him to training camp in 1936.

But Clyde Milan, the Chattanooga manager who had personally recommended Lewis to the Nats, insisted that the lad be given a thorough tryout. Milan refused to believe that Lewis was a flop. He made excuses for Buddy, declaring that the tough grind under the hot sun in the Southern Association had left the boy fagged and weary. Milan reminded Clark Griffith that Lewis was only 18.

In spring training in 1936, it was a different Buddy Lewis who joined the Nats. He was bright and eager and there was a spring in his legs. He could field and he could hit and at the end of a week Ossie Bluege frankly admitted that the third base job was no longer his. "There's my successor," said Bluege, pointing to Lewis, "and he'll make this club a whale of a third baseman."

And Buddy Lewis has been a whale of a third baseman for the Nats. Washington fans, inured to the absolute tops in third base play by the sensational Bluege, readily acknowledged that Lewis was an acceptable successor. They cottoned to him, marveled at his fielding and were quite satisfied when Lewis, in 1936, hit .297 in his first year in the majors. Last year, Lewis met the second-season test by batting .314.

More About Buddy Lewis

Of the fellow's courage there never has been any doubts. He has never permitted his fielding slumps to affect his batting. Even in the throes of his worst fielding of his career, he is batting a commendable .309 for the Nats and long ago won himself a reputation as a "clutch" hitter. Despite the fact that he is batting in second place, he has driven home 71 runs this season, more than any other player on the team.

On a club that has more than its share of colorless players, Lewis has been a refreshing figure. When, on certain occasions, other Nats have been timid about facing the fast-ball pitching of the Fellers' and the Groves' and the Gomez's, Buddy Lewis has been up there taking his regular cut with no sign of moving his foot discreetly toward the bucket.

Until the coming of Zeke Bonura, young Lewis represented the only fire and dash in the Washington infield. Aggressiveness is part of the lad's makeup. On the Nats' last trip in St. Louis, a teammate ventured the remark that "it would be nice to win two of these three games with the Browns."

Lewis flared up. "Two out of three. Hell! We're a bunch of bums if we don't win all three. If we're going to get anywhere in the first division, we can't afford to lose any game to an eighth-place club. It's against clubs like this that we have to mop up."

You really shouldn't have booed Buddy Lewis yesterday.

Bosox Blank Macks, 2-0, For 3 in Row

Young Bagby Allows 3 Hits for First Shutout.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 18.—Jim Bagby registered his first major league shutout today, allowing the Philadelphia Athletics only three hits and giving the Red Sox a 2-to-0 victory, their third in a row.

Bagby's hurling extended to 24 consecutive innings the A's current scoreless stretch and gave the Sox a three-out-of-four margin for the series. It was his eleventh victory of the season, against seven losses.

The Sox jumped on Luther Thomas for three hits and the ball game in the third inning. Joe Vosmik banged out a triple to score Doc Cramer, who had singled, and Jimmy Foxx sent Vosmik home with another single.

Bagby was in danger in only three innings. In the first Vosmik pulled down a liner against the wall to end a threat, in the seventh Johnson tripled with one out but couldn't get home and in the ninth a double play helped end an uprising after Bagby walked the first two men.

Tigers Beat White Sox, 5 to 1

Detroit, Aug. 18.—Long George Gill effectively scattered eight hits, and Big Hank Greenberg emerged from a batting slump to drive in three runs, as the Detroit Tigers whipped Chicago's White Sox, 5 to 1, today to sweep a three-game series.

Greenberg's first hit in 19 times at bat, a single to center, scored Billy Rogell in the first inning. Another single by Greenberg brought Rogel and Charlie Gehringer across the plate in the fourth.

Big Johnny Whitehead, White Sox pitcher, allowed the Tigers only six hits but 11 bases on balls, five of them issued to Rogell, kept him in trouble. Rogell scored twice without an official time at bat.

District Golf Pros Decide to Resume Sunday Matches

The Sunday afternoon professional exhibition matches were assured the District golf fans yesterday when George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood mentor, and Wiffy Cox, Congressional pro, met and set a tentative opening date for Sunday, August 28, at Kenwood.

The District Open, pro-pro championship and the pro-amateur championship also were discused and at a future meeting will be placed on the local golf calendar for the aproval of the local professionals.

The same pros that played in the informal exhibitons last year will probably be invited to the August 28 event. Diffenbaugh, Cox, Mel Shorey, Cliff Spencer, Leo Walper, Al Tredor, Robert T. Barnett and Poland MacKenzie were the regular players. Al Jamison, Gene Larkin or Frank Cunningham will probably fill in for MacKenzie.

Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald.

(WJSV-Wheaties Baseball Commentator.)

Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties "Man of the Month."

The two pitchers Bucky Harris sent against the Yankees yesterday emerged with half of the 20 points awarded in the Man of the Month contest on the basis of yesterday's performances. The points were distributed as follows:

To Harry Kelley, six points, because he held the Yankees to six hits and allowed no earned runs in the second game and because he figured in two of the Nats' six runs with his pair of singles.

To Dutch Leonard, four points, because he allowed the Yankees only two earned runs in the first game and gave up only ten hits in lasting the 11-inning route.

To George Case, six points, because he made three straight hits in the first game and three straight hits in the second game, including a pair of doubles.

To Cecil Travis, two points, because he made a pair of hits in both games of the twin bill.

To Al Simmons, one point, because he made a single and a double in the first game and drove in a run.

To Taft Wright, one point, because as a pinch-hitter in the first game he singled to drive in the tying run for the Nats in the eighth inning.

The Score:

Zeke Bonura	23	Sammy West	7
Buddy Myer	20	Ken Chase	7
Cecil Travis	16	Joe Krakauskas	7
Harry Kelley	16	Ossie Bluege	6
George Case	14	Monte Weaver	5
Dutch Leonard	13	Angelo Giuliani	5
Al Simmons	12	Elon Hogsett	2

Armstrong to Defend 2 Crowns in 4 Months

Henry's Lip, Which Required 15 Stitches, Is Main Factor in How Soon He Will Fight Again.

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Sports Writer.

New York, Aug. 18.—Three-Crown" Henry Armstrong will defend his world welterweight championship against Ceferino Garcia of the Philippines at Madison Square Garden just as soon as his mangled lower lip heals.

Thats' what Armstrong's manager, Eddie Mead, announced tonight after conferences with Promoter Mike Jacobs.

The 147-pound defense may not be staged until late October or November because Armstrongs' lip injuries, suffered in last night's electrifying lightweight title bout with Lou Ambers, may require two or three months to heal.

After the welter defense, Armstrong—who added Ambers' lightweight crown last night to his feather and welter togas—will defend the featherweight bonnet on December 6 at Cleveland against the outstanding contender, if Promoter Jacobs will permit the triple-titled Los Angeles Negro to campaign outside New York City. Jacobs has "Homicide Henry's" services under contract for three years.

Meanwhile, Eddie Mead, Armstrong's manager, and Promoter Jacobs decided that a return lightweight title tilt between Armstrong and Ambers must wait until after Christmas, despite its sure-fire box office appeal.

Mead explained, "we've got to have Henry defend his welterweight title before giving Ambers a return shot at the lightweight championship. If Henry met Ambers first, and Ambers won, he would claim Henry's welterweight crown as well as get back the lightweight title. But if he fights Garcia first for the welter championship, even if Henry loses, he can still defend his lightweight honors against Ambers."

New York boxing fans would have the return Armstrong-Ambers bout staged as quickly as possible after last night's thrilling brawl in which Henry wrested the lightweight crown from Lou on a split decision which proved thunderously unpopular with the fans at the Garden.

The fans, doubtless swayed by sentiment, thought Ambers should have kept his title on at least a draw decision after the Herkimer Jumping Jack rose from the canvas twice to give the grandest and gamest performance of his career. Virtually all New York boxing writers agreed that Armstrong had won the decision even though Ambers had made an unexpectedly close fight of it.

Armstrong's terribly mutilated lower lip was the indirect cause of his near collapse at the end, according to Dr. Alexander Schiff, who patched it up with 15 stitches last night and treated it again today.

Ambers' manager, Al Weill, still held that the title had been "stolen" from Lou. He insisted that Referee Billy Cavanaugh should have penalized Armstrong in nearly every round for his "butting, elbowing and low blows"—instead of merely taking three rounds away from him for below-the-belt shots.

D. C. Swimmers Vie in Baltimore

All-star swimmers of Washington and Baltimore will clash Sunday night in the Lakewood Pool at Baltimore at 8 o'clock. Competition will be for the Howard W. Jackson trophy on which both cities have two legs. The Washington team was selected as the result of the championship meet at the Takoma Pool.

The line-up of the Capital team follows:

Men—Ernie Boggs, McKnight, Bob Boorman, James Bonham, Bill Reynolds, Ed Murphy (Y. M. C. A.); Ralph Matera, Francis Flannagan (N. E. Boys Club); Don Kayoe (Ambassador); Bill Tarbett (Shoreham); Freeman Strickland (Washington Golf and C. C.); John Marshall (unattached).

7 Up Nine Invades Charlottesville Sunday

The Seven-Up Athletic Club will leave Sunday morning at 10 o'clock from Tenth and H streets northwest for a game with Charlottesville (Va.) Athletic Club. The D. C. boys will be out for revenge, as they suffered a defeat on their last visit to the Virginia city. Manager "Connie" Wyche will use his star pitcher, Frank Baroni, with George Walters catching. Seven-Up has signed several new players, George Oertel, of Central High; George Walters, Frank Bloome and Donald McGeever, the fleet-footed shortstop of Trenton, N. J.

Here's New Way to Score . . . . . Selkirk Hurts Leg

Left, Zeke Bonura, Nats' first baseman, is shown as he tangled up in Rolfe's legs as the former slid into third on Travis' single in fifth inning of second Yankee-Nat game here yesterday. But Rolfe missed the toss from DiMaggio and Bonura romped home when a spectator grabbed it and held it. The Yanks howled but the ump said run counted. Right, Teammates carry George Selkirk, Yankee outfielder, off the field after he was injured in a collision with Frankie Crosetti while both were chasing a fly ball in the seventh inning of yesterday's first game with the Nats. He hurt his right leg.

Dodgers Nip Giants, 5 to 3

Carl Hubbell Shelled in Fifth Inning.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 18.—The Brooklyn Dodgers clubbed King Carl Hubbell for four runs in a big fifth inning today to whip the Giants, 5 to 3, and take a series from the National League champions for the first time this season. The win gave the Dodgers the set two games to one.

A walk, hit batsman and single loaded the bases in the big fifth, and Tuck Stainback unloaded them with a triple. Tuck pulled up with a charley horse and Buddy Hassett, who ran for him, scored on an outfield fly.

The Dodgers made only 6 hits to 11 the Giants collected off Vito Tamulis, but the latter spread five of the hits over the first seven frames and weakened only in the last two. Jojo Moore hit a homer for the Giants in the eighth.

Newsom Halts Tribe, 9-1; Feller Is Booed

Cleveland Hurler Gives 7 Walks, 7 Hits and 7 Runs in 5 Frames; Children Lead Chorus.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—Buck Newsom held Cleveland's Indians to five hits today, and the St. Louis Browns took advantage of Bob Feller's wildness to win 9-1.

Feller retired with none out in the fifth after successive doubles by Ralph Kress and Billy Sullivan and a walk to Don Heffner. Ken Jungles and Willis Hudlin finished the game.

It was a sad day for Feller. The school children's section booed the former "schoolboy wonder" when he came to bat in the third. He gave up seven walks, seven runs and seven hits. He struck out only four.

Newsom, in contrast, was never in trouble, while his teammates piled up 12 hits, 6 of them doubles.

Cards Sink Pirates, 5-1

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Aug. 18.—Bob Weiland was invincible after his first pitch today as his St. Louis Cardinal mates played heads-up ball to drub Pittsburgh's Pirates 5 to 1, giving the big lefthander his twelfth victory of the season.

It was the first ball thrown that saved the league-leading Pirates from a shutout. Lee Handley slapped it for a home run.

After that Pie Traynor's crew was able to scratch only three more hits, all singles. The loss didn't effect their lead of five games over the stumbling New York Giants, however, as Carl Hubbell lost, 5 to 3, to Brooklyn's Dodgers and Vito Tamulis.

The Cardinal attack was concentrated in the fourth and fifth innings. Big Johnny Mize belted out his seventeenth homer of the year with Stu Martin and Joe Medwick on base to account for the three runs scored in the fifth.

Bryan Grant Beaten by Frankie Parker at Newport

In This Corner

By Jack Cuddy.

New York, Aug. 18.—Casey Stengel, "clown prince" of pilots, must be doing it with mirrors.

Here we are in the dog days, and the Boston Bees are doggedly battling for fifth place in Ford Frick's pennant chase. Which fact is causing no end of surprise among baseball experts and meanwhile elevating Mr. Charles Dillon Stengel to semihero status in the habitat of the cod and the bean.

Mild Will McKechnie, probably the most able manager in all baseball, guided the stingless Bees to fifth place last year, before Will left for Cincinnati to resurrect the Reds. McKechnie admits he had considerable luck in topping second division with the Bees, particularly because of Messrs. Turner and Fette. Those two veteran rookie pitchers made history by winning 20 games each in their first year up. Such a freshman coincidence never happened before and probably will not again for many years.

Turner and Fette were considered a sensation and stole many fans away from Boston's Red Sox, who also finished fifth in the American division, but were considered a bust.

Such was the dangerous situation into which Casey Stengel thrust his weather-beaten neck. The Bees were fifth, commanding attention and finally making a bit of money. Stengel and other baseball people knew it was a tough spot. They knew Turner and Fette couldn't repeat, and the rest of the club didn't amount to much. It seemed that the Bees were destined to battling for last place with the Phillies.

And you wonder why the swarm isn't fighting for last place now if you look at Boston's club batting average, which is by far the lowest in either major league, about .243. Meanwhile, Turner and Fette are just about hitting their strides. Turner has won 10 and lost 13 games; Fette, 9 and 8.

Despite the club's lack of batting punch, pitching has been Casey's biggest problem. Danny MacFayden, his ace right-hander, was out almost a month after being struck on the wrist by a batted ball. Milt Shoffner, his best southpaw, has just returned after having his appendix carved out. In addition, Catcher Al Lopez was out for half the season with an arm injury, and Right Fielder Gene Moore has been an in-and-out because of a bad knee.

When Casey first took over the wheel, Boston fans were somewhat bitter because they were losing the popular McKechnie. But now they are rooting lustily for Herr Stengel Fans and writers feel that he has done a bang-up job with limited material and despite the injury jinx that hovered over key players. His wisecracks in the face of adversity stimulated his popularity.

Casey displayed top-flight managerial ability particularly in handling his players. He developed Dick Errickson (up from Scranton) into a starting pitcher and capable reliefer. He improved Johnny Cooney's play in right field. He worked hard with Max West, young outfielder up from the San Francisco Missions. West's fielding improved greatly and he shows promise of becoming a good hitter. Also, genial Casey probably is the only manager capable of handling temperamental Joe Stripp, who now is proving the best third baseman Boston has had in years.

Casey may be doing it with mirrors, or with hustle and sweat and brain work, but he's staging a grand comeback. And I'm sure that everyone who plays or watches or reads about baseball is delighted, because "he's a jolly good fellow." And the game certainly needs more jolly good fellows in these days of nickle-nursing, sour-pussed businessman players and pilots.

Budge Wins 4-Set Duel With Allison

Ailing Arm Is Handicap; Hunt and Wood Also Winners.

By the Associated Press.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 18.—The combination of a slight twinge in Don Budge's right arm and some of the finest tennis Wilmer Allison, 34-year-old Austin (Tex.) veteran has played during his 12 years in major competition, today provided the Newport Casino gallery with its outstanding match of the current tournament.

Budge's twinges, which he laid to a light cold, slowed him down just enough for Allison to keep pace with him during most of their quarter-finals match, the world champion won after a long, hard struggle, 7—9, 8—6, 6—4, 9—7.

Frank Parker, of Beverly Hills, Calif., moved into Budge's semifinals, brackets by defeating Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, who played splendid tennis for three sets and then slumped, to surrender, 7—5, 6—8, 6—4, 6—1.

Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, seeded second to Budge, gained the second last round by eliminating the last of the seven foreign entries, Yvon Petra, of France, 9—7, 6—0, 9—7.

The Frenchman had an excellent chance to win the first set, but at 7-all he became upset by a poor shot and by the time he calmed down was two sets down and hopelessly beaten, although he did make a determined effort to prolong the match during the third set.

Sydney Wood, of New York, became the other semifinalist by coming from behind against Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., 4—6, 7—5, 6—3, 6—4. Cooke appeared on his way to the second set, for he had a 5—3 lead, but Wood's wide assortment of superb shots came to his rescue and once he gained the upper hand he held it.

Budge's muscular pains prevented him from using his dynamite service against Allison, who blasted over passing shots when his famed rival tried to storm the net. Budge managed to build up a 5—3 lead in the opening set, only to have Allison draw even and then pull into an 8—7 lead by smashing three service aces at Budge in the fifteenth game. That sort of treatment so unsteadied Budge that he surrendered the next game, and set, on his service, at love.

Each of the other sets was a close affair. During the 56-game marathon, Budge was charged with 127 miscues, including 71 outs, to 120 for Allison, but the carrot-topped Californian, a two-time Casino winner, totaled 73 earned points against 50 for his veteran rival.

The Parker-Grant match was a long-drawn-out affair, crowded with rallies that lasted for as many as 32 shots, and was decided by the former's well-placed returns when he caught his opponent on the wrong foot. Parker piled up 93 errors during the match, only two less than Bitsy, but the victor had 47 placements as earned points against 32, and one service ace.

Carl Hubbell Out Again With Sore Arm

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—King Carl Hubbell, backbone of the New York Giants' pitching staff for years, came down with a sore arm tonight that will sideline him for at least a week or two and may keep him from the firing line for the season.

After losing a 5-to-3 ball game to the Dodgers today, the southpaw ace complained to Manager Bill Terry of soreness in his pitching arm. He explained that the member has bothered him for weeks.

Terry immediately wired Dr. J. Spencer Speed, Memphis bone specialist, to meet the Giants in Chicago on Monday to examine the ailing wing.

Yvon Robert Uses Body Press To Pin Emil Dusek in Feature

Rough Battle Ends After 20½ Minutes; Slugging Marks Arena Struggle.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Visibly distressed by a couple of potent pokes in the ribs delivered by Yvon Robert, the robust French-Canuck, Emil Dusek collapsed and was pinned exactly 20½ minutes after the start of the feature bout last night at Turner's Arena.

It was a slow and uninteresting affair in contrast to the two preceding matches, which were executed at a swift tempo and constantly had the audience of 1,000 fans clamoring for the heads of the villains. It was evident from the outset that the boys were confused about the day, and thought they were on Goldie Ahearn's Monday night boxing card.

"Get up, ya lug. The crowd's watching ya."

Dusek did get up and Burns' words were like magic in his ears and he went after Robert like a madman, belaboring him with punishing elbows to the ears and jaw. Robert forgot himself momentarily and clamped a half-Nelson on his opponent, but Dusek shook it off with a half-sneer, and kicked him twice on the shin.

It went on that way until the finish when Robert caught Dusek with a right hook, a la Jack Dempsey, and it was all over.

Cliff Olson threw Reb Russell in 15 minutes with a body press, and Jack League struggled to a 30-minute draw with Bibber McCoy in the two best matches of the evening. The fans threatened to lynch McCoy then and there, and as for Olson, hanging was too good for him. Both villains treated their victims in most unconventional fashion, gouging them, tweaking their noses, rubbing adhesive tape in their eyes, etc., etc.

In the other matches Ed Newman disposed of Moe Brazen in eight minutes with a series of body slams, and Ed Meske used 18 minutes in tossing Steve Budyniss with a Japanese arm lock and body roll.

Monte Weaver Slated to Face Red Sox Today

The Nats today carry their battle for third place into the camp of the Red Sox, who hold that position by a six-game margin. Immediately following yesterday's double-header with the Yankees, the Washington club entrained for Boston.

Monte Weaver, one of the pitchers who figured in the Nats' clean sweep of the Red Sox series here last week, will pitch today's series opener for the Nats. Freddie Ostermueller, Red Sox southpaw, whom the Nats beat here, will take the mound for Boston.

Leftfielder George Selkirk, of the Yankees, suffered a bruised right thigh when he collided with Shortstop Frankie Crosetti in a chase after Lewis pop fly in the seventh inning of yesterday's game.

The National Training School Band entertained the fans between games and gave a rendition of "Hail to the Redskins," official song of the world football champions. Clark Griffith, who has been eyeing suspiciously the increased publicity commanded by the Redskins, was reported to have swooned in his box at this bid for attention in his own ball park.

The Yankees mobbed Wes Ferrell in congratulating him on his victory in the opening game and the former Nat smilingly accepted their compliments. "I'm in the big leagues now," he said.

Except for Buddy Lewis' errors, the Yankees would have scored only one run against Dutch Leonard in that first game and Leonard would have had a 5-1 victory over Ferrell in regulation innings.

Zeke Bonura and Bill Dickey had words at the plate in the first game when Bonura accused the Yankee catcher of influencing Umpire Bill McGowan's decisions on balls and strikes.

Gene Kunes, Oliver Lead At Toronto

Pace Canadian Open With 67s, Snead, Runyan Have 69.

By the Associated Press.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Two dark horses, Gene Kunes, of Chicago, and Ed Oliver, of Wilmington, Del., turned in 67s to lead a smashing attack on par in the 18-hole first round of the Canadian Open Golf Championship today.

Oliver and Kunes, each five under par for the long, cleverly trapped Mississauga Country Club course, paced a field of more than 150 that swarmed over the par-72 layout from early morning until dusk.

Two strokes behind at 69 were the day's most important "big name" golfers, Slammin' Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Little Paul Runyan, the iron stylist, who recently trimmed Snead in the finals of the United States P. G. A. tournament.

Snead and Runyan shared leadership through most of the day until Oliver and Kunes came driving through as the play drew to a close.

An even dozen broke par, and among them there was only one Canadian, Bob Gray, jr., of Toronto. Stocky Sid Brews, of South Africa, a protege of Henry Cotton, posted a 70, one stroke under Gray's total.

Bill Williamson, a former Los Angeles caddy, slipped into the company of the great with a 70, but most of the other leaders were well known.

At 70 the Los Angeles boy was in the select company of Brews, Horton Smith, of Chicago, and Victor Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J. A stroke behind at 71 were the defending champion, Harry Cooper, of Chicago; Bill Holt, jr., of Syracuse, N. Y., amateur, and Walter Hagen, the old master, who won the Canadian open when it was played over this course in 1931.

Kunes captured the Canadian title in 1935 when he was a protege of Ed Dudley.

Oliver, a post entry, took no time at all to get up steam. He birdied the fifth and ninth on the outward trip and might have had a 32 instead of a 34 if it hadn't been for erratic putting.

Reds' Star Under Knife for Tumor

Cincinnati, Aug. 18 (AP).—Johnny (No-Hit) Vander Meer, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, had a small tumor removed from his left ear today.

Dr. William Mithoefer, said the growth developed beneath a boil. The hurler was expected to join the club at St. Louis Saturday.

Boyd, Dempsey's Hope, Arrives Today for Clash With Everett

"Bruising Bill" Boyd, one-time pride of the Navy and now under the protective patronage of Jack Dempsey, a pretty good heavyweight in his day, will be towed into Washington this afternoon to polish up his knuckle work for Monday evening's match with Mr. Buck Everett at Griffith Stadium.

Dempsey, of course, will accompany the newest white hope, whom he also confidently calls his "next world's champion," and one of the greatest punchers in the history of the ring. The old Manassa resturateur will work out with his boy in private at a downtown gymnasium, with only the press as witnesses. Jack wants the gentlemen of the fourth estate to see for themselves how his protege punches.

Bashful Bill, who was born in Birmingham, Ala., but lost his southern accent somewhere on the seven seas, admits he isn't much of a boxer, but steadfastly maintains he'll chill anything on two legs he can hit. The semi-bald blaster is reported to have carved out the enviable record of 20 knockouts in 21 fights after leaving Uncle Sam's battle-wagon.

Dempsey positively is enthusiastic over his man's hitting power and, it must be admitted, is taking a genuine interest in his future. When the former champion was reported to have signed Red Burman, he posed for pictures, issued laconic statements concerning his ability, but did nothing more to further his success. With Boyd it has been different. He actually has been in the ring with him, trying to show him the tricks that helped the great Dempsey achieve the highest pinnacle of success.

Buck Everett, meanwhile, is working himself up to a real mad for the bout in foreign gyms and Manager Jimmy Erwin reports that he'll be in the finest fettle of his career when he arrives in town. Everett will be remembered for the stirring bout he waged with Bob Pastor last winter at the Arena and figures to give a man of Boyd's description plenty of trouble.

Everett packs a wallop in his own mittens, as Murray Kanner will attest, and if he connects with Mr. Boyd's chin Monday Dempsey will have to hunt for another protege. What Everett did to Kanner was nothing short of murder.

The card will not be an all-heavyweight affair as first reported, for Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn last night announced that Paul Lee will desist from tootin' his harmonica long enough to meet an unnamed opponent in an eight-round semi-final.

Injured Abrams Goes Home

George Abrams, District middleweight, who suffered a recurrence of an old spinal injury in his boxing bout with Steve Mamakos last Monday night, was removed to his home yesterday. He had been at Emergency Hospital for treatment. Abrams intends to fight again and will be ready in about two months, provided, of course., his injury responds to treatment.

U.S. Natators Top Germans

By the Associated Press

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 18.—An enthusiastic crowd of 3,000 saw the touring team of United States swimming stars in the third meet of their tour of Germany today.

Peter Fick, of the New York A. C., won the 100-meter freestyle event, first on the program, with the German Fisch tied with Takashi Hirose, of Hawaii, for second. Fick was timed in 1:00.7.

Ralph Flannagan, of the Miami-Biltmore A. C. of Miami, Fla., scored again in the 400 meters in 4:50.2 with Plath of Germany second.

The 200-meter breaststroke was won easily by the Germans. Balke finished first in 2:44.8 with Sietas second in 2:48.5. Jim Werson, of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, was third in 2:51.5. The 100-meter backstroke also went to the Germans. Schlauch won in 1:10 with Neuske secondi n 1:12.3. Bill Neunzig of Ohio State was third and was timed in 1:12.5.

The United States forces took the 300-meter freestyle relay when a team of Hirose, Paul Wolfe of the University of Southern California, and Otto Jaretz of Chicago beat the German entry of Heibel, Birr and Heimlich. The winners were timed in 3:02.8, the Germans in 3:06.8.

Australians Win Singles From Nazis

Bromwich, Quist Stop Henkel, Von Metaxa in Straight Sets.

By the Associated Press.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 18.—Australia struck a devastating blow at Germany's Davis Cup hopes today, winning without the loss of a set the two singles matches that opened the intrazone final between the two nations.

The Antipodeans, who required less than two hours to put both Germans to rout, gave up only 14 games in 6 sets, a remarkable display for top-notch Davis Cup competition.

First, 19-year-old Bromwich brushed aside Henner Henkel, the world's third-ranking player, with a brilliant display of baseline accuracy, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3, and then Quist raced through Georg von Metaxa, the annexed Austrian, who was making his debut in the United States, 6—3, 6—2, 6—1.

The Germans now face the almost impossible task of taking all three remaining matches to win the right to face the United States for the cup. But George M. Lott, the Anzacs' coach, who predicted yesterday his team would sweep all five matches, said "We'll end it up tomorrow in the doubles."

If Henkel and Metaka, who reached the doubles final at Wimbledon this year, can beat Quist and Bromwich in the team match

WHITE OWLS are definitely easier on your breath—scientific tests proved it. Every White Owl always has a filler of Vintage quality and—like a Vintage wine—nature made it exceptionally mild, mellow.
We maintain a vast and unique crop-inspection system . . . classify all filler tobaccos into seven grades, using only tobacco of the top three for Vintage White Owls.
All this to give you a Vintage smoke. You'll like its taste—and ladies will admire your taste for choosing it. Try a White Owl today.
The Metallic Nose Knows
Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten popular brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

sacrificed. Bonura scored while Myer was grounding to Gehrig for the second out and Taft Wright got a pinch-hitting job for Giuliani. He drove a single over second that Gordon could only knock down and Travis pranced home with the tying run.

Leonard encountered no Yankee threats in the ninth and tenth but Ferrell was deep in trouble in the tenth after he walked Bonura, first to face him. Then the Yankees rallied 'round him. Henrich leaped against the rightfield fence to drag down Travis' drive, and after West walked, Rolfe snatched Myer's pop fly from out of the leftfield boxes. Rick Ferrell was intentionally passed and Wes extricated himself completely by forcing Leonard to ground out.

And Then the End.

Then came that triple by DiMaggio and two-bagger by Gehrig in the eleventh and the Nats didn't have any answer for that.

In that second game, Kelley hooked up with Bump Hadley, another former Washington employe, and presented the Yankees with a 1-0 lead in the first inning when he made a wild throw to Bonura at first in an attempt to pick off Rolfe, who galloped to third on the error.

But the Nats hauled off against Hadley in their half of the inning and took a 3-1 lead on a two-bagger by Case, Lewis' walk, and singles by Travis, West and Myer.

The game rocked along at 3-1 for four innings and then Lewis (that man again!) gave the Yankees the tying runs. They were charmed runs for the Yankees from the outset. Dickey's glorified pop dropped just out of Travis' reach for a cheap double and Hoag's pop fly fell safely in short center. In this crisis Kelley fanned Gordon and forced Hadley to ground to Lewis, but that was too bad. Because Lewis, trying to nip Dickey at the plate, threw the ball far wide of Rick Ferrell and not only Dickey but Hoag scored.

Threat Ended.

But that was the last time the Yankees could get a runner as far as third. In the last four innings Kelley allowed 'em only two paltry hits. And the Nats regained the lead.

In the fifth, Bonura singled and Travis sent him to third with a single to center. When DiMaggio's throw to head off Bonura eluded Rolfe and bounced into the leftfield boxes Bonura scored. The Yankees protested vigorously that Bonura was forced to hold his base, but Umpire Summers overruled 'em.

The Nats made it 5-3 against Hadley in the sixth when Kelley led off with a single and eventually scored on singles by Lewis and Simmons to center. And they picked up another run on account of Kelley, who followed walks to Travis and Rick Ferrell by banging a single into centerfield.

Washington-owned Lady's Favor Wins Manley Handicap

Mama's Boy Downed as Saddle Slips

Patsey Begone Second in Cumberland Test; Lena Girl Wins.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fair Grounds, Cumberland, Md., Aug. 18.—Lady luck smiled on H. M. Simpson, of Washington, today with 12,000 fans looking on, enabling his Lady's Favor to capture the Harry A. Manley Handicap, outstanding 6½-furlong race of the Cumberland Fair Association's meeting. Ot the same time, she frowned on another Washingtonian, Bill Denham, costing his Mama's Boy the spoils.

Mama's Boy, favorite with a Shriners' Day crowd that taxed every nook and corner of the plant, was charging on Lady's Favor, pacemaker, in the homestretch, when his saddle slipped. Mama's Boy was within a half length of the ultimate winner with an eighth of a mile to go, but the saddle dangling between the colt's legs caused Jockey Kirk to take up so quickly that he even lost the place to Y. Yarnell Pyle's Patsey Begone.

Patsey Begone set the pace for a half, where he gave way to Lady's Favor. In the meantime, Mama's Boy was closing fastest of all. He appeared to be the winner until his saddle slipped. The saddle also slipped on Ed Talbot's Ever Grand, who finished fourth. Following the race, Pasey Begone's pilot lodged a claim of foul against the winner, which was disallowed.

Receives $425 Check.

Owner Simpson received a $425 check, $100 worth of silverware and a leg on the $1,000 Syndenham Bowl, imported from England. The race was won last year by H. L. Bowers' High Hedge.

Beverly Hacker, America's twelfth leading winning rider, registered his third consecutive victory of the day when he booted G. T. Strother's Little Wackie, favorite, home ahead of seven opponents in the Ali Ghan Temple Shrine Purse, mile and one sixteenth secondary feature. Hacker now has ten victories and leads for the gold watch offered to the rider who wins the most races at the meeting. He has registered 94 victories this year.

P. H. Faulconer, owner-breeder of Charlottesville, Va., brought a big party of friends on to see his Lena Girl perform in the day's six and one half furlong opener. Equipped with blankers and spurs, the filly exhibited startling speed to win as Jockey Sammy Palumbo desired.

Form Players Jinxed.

Taking command at the "off bell," Ed Carver's Square Play made every post of the six and one half furlongs in the second race a winning one. He paid $17.20. Fans holding daily double tickets on Lena Girl and Square Play took down $282.10 for every $2 ticket.

The jinx, which has been following form players at this meeting, still pursued them in the Maryland Day Purse, five-eighths feature when Leonard Lyman's Boro Poker, favorite, after setting the pace from the start was nipped at the wire by H. O. Wilt's Lead Please. E. H. Titmus, jr's Timber Storm showed the way to five others.

War Regalia Wins At Saratoga

Two More Jockeys Hurt at Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—Two jockeys were injured today in the second bad spill in three days at Washington Park.

Earl Steffen, of Capron, Okla., suffered a fractured collar bone and Bob Finnerty, of New Orleans, a wrenched back. The spill occurred when Steffen got in close quarters with Bien Chance at the far turn in the first race. When he was forced to ease his mount back a trifle, Stepladder, with Finnerty up, crashed into the Valdina Farm's filly. Both horses went sprawling.

Jockey Charley Rollins fell off Flying Lill in the fifth race as the field left the post, but was unhurt.

Clayton Perkins, of Cairo, Nebr., was in a serious condition at a hospital with a ruptured kidney and concussion of the brain suffered in a spill Tuesday. Eugene Myers, of Chicago, suffered a fractured collar bone in the same spill.

Miss Wynne Gains Finals, Wins, 6-4, 6-4

Australian Girl Defeats Mrs. Sarah Fabyan; Stammers Victor.

By the Associated Press.

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 18.—Nancye Wynne, senational 21-year-old Australian tennis star, flashed tremendous hitting power today to down Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Brookline, 6—4, 6—4, and enter the final round of the fourteenth annual Essex County Club Women's Invitation tourney.

Miss Wynne, seeded only fifth on the foreign draw, exhibited the same type of heavy-hitting, deep-court driving game which eliminated the famed Margot Lumb, of England, yesterday and kept her third-seeded rival on the defensive most of the match.

Just previously Kay Stammers, the second foreign seeded star from England, entered the semifinal round by eliminating the sixth foreign-seeded Thelma Coyne, of Australia, 6—4, 7—5.

As a result, Miss Stammers qualified to meet top-seeded Miss Alice Marble, of Beverly Hills, Calif., in the second of the semi-finals tomorrow. Miss Wynne then will meet the winner of that duel in the tournament final on Saturday.

Women Meet Today For Last Year's Title

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 18 (AP). Officials of the Essex County Club today announced the final of the incompleted 1937 Essex County Women's Invitation tennis tournament would be played here tomorrow morning, with Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, meeting Mme Sylvia Henrotin, of France, for the crown.

The two advanced to the finals last year, but heavy rains washed out any chance to play for three days.

A Happy Party With a Prize From the Deep

Bradley, Towering End, Pleases Redskin Coach

A blocking end, almost as rare in football as a plug of radium, has appeared on the Ballston horizon to lighten the worries of Coach Ray Flaherty, the paleface in charge of Washington's Redskins.

Blocking backs, that is good ones, aren't exactly found on every street corner, but they're plentiful, compared with an end who can chase a burly opposing tackle out of the ball carrier's path. And when a coach does find a lad of this type, usually the player can't catch a pass or make a tackle without a writ of habeas corpus.

Thus, when Flaherty saw tall, lithe Hal Bradley, the Elon College recruit, snag a pass on one play, then drive the tackle over in an adjacent field on the next, he figured he had something. Bradley doesn't look like a professional gridman. A quick gander at his towering frame makes you think of what two tough tackles could do to him. He is quiet and unassuming off the field, but when that ball is snapped Mr. Bradley is a changed man. Briefly, it looks much like he'll be around a while.

Flaherty has selected his starting line-up for Sunday's intrasquad game, but will not definitely name it until tomorrow at the completion of practice. He doesn't want to make any shifts after announcing the first 11 men. Meanwhile, practice continues at the same brisk pace, trying to get in as much work as possible while the cooler weather is here.

Tennis

tomorrow, they'll have another chance in the two remaining singles on Saturday, in which today's pairings will be reversed.

Bobby Riggs, America's second ranking player, who is almost certain to see action in the cup defense at Germantown, Pa., over Labor Day week-end, was in the gallery scouting the Aussies, and must have been impressed with what he saw.

With both Germans utterly outclassed from the baseline, neither Bromwich nor Quist deigned to waste energy by trying to come to the net.

The Australians were a bit worried before the match because Bromwich had lost both of his singles matches in the series with Japan. But the young Anzac, who hits his forehand shots with both hands on the racquet was much improved today.

He hit for the corners with beautiful accuracy and his cross court and drop shots were no less effective.

Henkel, who has been suffering from a tennis elbow—he said it was "much better" before the start of the match—obviously wasn't at the top of his game, but the depth and pace of Bromwich's drives had much to do with throwing him off.

Henkel led only once—when he took the first game on the first set on his own service, but thereafter it wasn't even a contest.

Ettore Gets Draw.

Philadelphia, Aug. 18 (AP).—Matty Raymond, Mount Carmel, Pa., and Al Ettore, veteran Philadelphia heavyweight, fought a ten-round draw tonight in what was described as Ettore's "comeback."

Allen Entry Prominent At Berryville

Clifton's Diana Takes 11 Points in First Day of Show.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berryville, Va., Aug. 18.—The expected five-cornered race for top honors in the hunter classes was fulfilled today at the opening of the Berryville Horse Show with Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh and Dr. L. M. Allen, both of Berryville, and U. S. Randle, of Fairfax; Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Upperville, and E. L. Redman, of Middleburg, winning the major awards.

Perhaps the Clifton Stables of Allen had a shade the best performance. His good mare, Clifton's Diana, was credited with 11 points when the curtain was rung down this afternoon. Diana had a victory in the ladies' hunters, and a second in both the lightweight hunters and the hunter hacks. Not far behind was Greenhalgh's Springsbury aggregation with a popular win in the pairs of hunters, winning with an entry of Scanty Annie and Hunter's Choice, and a victory in the 3-year-old suitable with Agent Boy. A few seconds and thirds here and there completed the first day's showing for this group.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Loro took care of the lightweight hunter event. Her entry of Airy Spirit and Bob Diablo played second in the pairs of hunters. Joseph Rose, of Delaplane, had a popular winner in the handicap jump, winning after much jumping off over U. S. Randle's So Long and E. L. Reman's No Play.

Randle, however, accounted for the hunter hack event with Randle's Find and also annexed several minor places. Redman's triumph came in the 4-year-old hunters with Royalty 2d. Allen's Coq D'Esprit won the thoroughbred stallion class with Mrs. Lily O. Livingston's Majority Rule in the Reserve.

Heavy draft honors went to Thompson Sowers, of White Post; Mrs William F. Walsh, of Bluemont, and Ray E. Fields, of Round Hill, while pony events were taken by Mr. and Mrs. Greenhalgh and Jack Lee Payne, of Purcellville.

U. S. Pistol Title To Detroit Man

Cincinnati, Aug. 18 (AP).—A. W. Hemming, instructor in small arms firing for the Detroit Police Department, won the all-American pistol championship tournament trophy today, scoring 2,002 of a possible 2,100 points aggregate.

P. M. Chapman, United States Treasury employe from Seattle, Wash., was second with 1,983, and S. M. O'Connor, of Kansas City, third with 1,961.

Hemming, national .38-caliber pistol champion, tied the world record of 198 out of 200 at timed fire.

Today's summaries with .38-caliber pistols included:

20 shots, timed fire, 25 yards—Hemming, 198 out of 200, first; Chapman, 196, second; E. L. Warden, of Washington, member of the Treasury Department and White House police, 195, third.

Team events will be held tomorrow.

Trenton Blanked.

Princeton, Ind., Aug. 18 (AP).—Detroit shut out Trenton, N. J., 4 to 0, here today in the first game of the Northeastern section American Legion junior baseball tournament. Newhauser, Detroit pitcher, gave up only two hits.

Net Entries Close.

Entries for the Government tennis championships close tonight at 6 p. m. at the Tennis Shop, 1019 Fifteenth street northwest.

Outdoors

With Bill Ackerman.

ACKERMAN.

From the actions of the bluefish schools this spring, we made the assertion some six or seven weeks ago, that if past performance was any criterion, we might expect an exceptional season. It seems as though we were right, even though we took but a single year, 1932, as a basis for this assumption. And going back again, if you can remember, that was indeed an exceptional year; with excellent bluefishing on both sides of the bay until late in November, so if the similarity continues we are in for some weeks of real sport.

During the week reports from every section told of good catches of these azure fighters, with the largest individual fish coming from the upper bay. At Messick, Reedville and to some extent on the Middles, the fish are small, few going over three pounds. At Solomons, the schools that have been showing occasionally, run about the same weight. It is not until you get up to the Gooses, Tilghman's Island, and the stretch from Plum Point to Thomas's Light, that the four, five and six pounders start to show.

James Cheseldine, fishing with Capt. Roy Ward out of Deale on Monday, had 11 weighing up to six pounds, and with them 19 trout weighing from three to eight pounds, which is about average for everyone fishing between Holland Point Bar and Chesapeake Beach late in the afternoon and in the early evening. Most catches, however, have about an equal number of rock up to five and six pounds. The largest catch this week from this section was that of Capt. Ben Manifold with 120, about equally divided, blues, trout and rock. The largest weighed around four pounds.

Capt. Bob Lee's boats at Shadyside continue to take mostly rock and trout, trolling early mornings and late evenings. They expect to start bluefish chumming this week with fresh alewives, taken from the nets every morning. If the blues are under Kent Island, as they have been in other years, this should be a good place from now on. Advisable to call ahead for reservations.

Aubrey Sheppard, at Gunston Cove, reported the water clear on Wednesday evening and plenty of fish breaking. This seems to be the best bet at present for bass fishing, even though several reports have come in that the Potomac above Harpers Ferry was clearing slightly.

J. A. Coxe, pioneer in big-game fishing and the production of big-game fishing reels, has turned to smaller game fishing and the casting reel, with the result that there is now coming on the market a new reel that is a distinct improvement over any existing type. It will be in the stores by December.

The main feature is that it free-spools automatically when you make a cast, and the handle does not revolve. It is exceedingly free-running, probably because it does not have end bearings but instead turns on an axle. In addition to several other features new to our present type of casting reel, the unfastening of one thumb screw releases every moving part for cleaning and oiling.

Lou Gehrig, Stanley Harris and Bill Dickey, on their off day last Monday, fished off Ocean City with Paul Townsend on his new Jacpau III. Lou got a 50-pound tuna, but Bill, who went to bat three times with the marlin, struck out each time. As Jim Jarman says, "Bill might be a good catcher, but Mrs. Dickey is the better angler, for on the following day, fishing with Mrs. Paul Townsend and Jack, she landed a 52-pounder in 15 minutes. It measured 7 feet 7 inches, was 28 inches in girth, had a sword of 21 inches and a tail spread of 26 inches.

Betting, which seems to be part and parcel of fishing everywhere, has entered the field of the International Tuna Matches, which get under way in Nova Scotia on August 27. Julio Sanchez, captain of the Cuban team, and fishing in the matches for the first time this year, has offered to bet $5,000 that his team will come out ahead of the crack American team. Paul Townsend said the other day he was sure that Sanchez's bet could be covered without the least bit of trouble, and that if the wealthy Havana sportsman wanted more, that could be covered, too.

We are glad to note again the distinct service Ollie Atlas is extending to local anglers by having Milton Gordon arrange contacts with the best boatmen at the different fishing grounds.

The two latest angles on this service is the single reservations for the Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair on fine boats leaving North Beach early Saturday morning, August 22, and the single reservations for any anglers who might like to try fishing in the Gulf Stream off Ocean City for the big blue marlin and mako sharks.

The last will be on the large 55-foot Deisel cruiser Lev-Lou, captained by B. L. Raymond. Leaving at 2 a. m., the 50-odd miles to blue water can be covered in about four hours, giving the anglers at least eight hours of real fishing.

Why more Washington anglers are not taking advantage of the most wonderful fishing any port in America has ever before experienced is more than we can understand.

This past week every day saw some of the charter boats without parties. Probably because the catches dropped to some extent from the almost inconceivable 30 and more white marlin daily, to the more nearly normal 5 to 10. Yet a brand of fishing that any port would be glad to boast, and the fish have not left, as reports coming from Jersey would seem to indicate. The warm weather has broken the schools, which are feeding at night and laying below the surface during the heat of the day. Let an easterly blow for an hour or two and the fish are right back on top, eager to take a bait.

Our advice is to get some of this fishing while you can, for it can't last more than a few weeks more, even though the school tuna are on hand to take over.

Loan Groups' Savings Jump In 2d Quarter

616 Associations in U. S. Report Increase of $42,210,000.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

There was 16.35 per cent more savings placed in savings, building and loan associations during the second quarter of this year than during the like period of 1937, the United States Building and Loan League reports to local associations. It had tabulations on new money received by 616 associations, showing that $42,210,000 of savings were put in those associations during April, May and June. The reporting association showed a net gain of 3.74 per cent in assets during the first half of the year, according to A. D. Theobald, assistant vice president of the league, bringing assets of these associations up to $962,506,000 as of June 30.

WOL Nears Completion.

With one 230-foot steel tower and its twin nearing completion this week, William B. Dolph, general manager of Radio Station WOL, Washington affiliate of the Mutual Broadcasting systems, announced yesterday that installations of Western Electric Broadcasting equipment in the new biulding is expected to be finished by August 26, when tests will begin.

The new transmitter plant located on Ager road, Prince Georges County, Md., at a cost of $50,000 is furnished with new equipment throughout. Station WOL will make itis power change instantaneously some time during the first week of September. It is expected that this change will be done ceremoniously in the early evening as a regular part of WOL's programs which, after the change, will be heard on the 1230 kilocycle range instead of the 1310 kilocycle.

Topped with red beacons to aid aviators, these twin towers will carry WOL programs to a greatly enlarged reception area. Limited now to practically the District boundaries, WOL'S new plant, with its directional antenna, will take in part of Maryland's Eastern Shore, most of southern Maryland, Quantico., Va., Fairfax County and as far north as Catonsville and Westminster, Md.. Programs from the studios at 1627 K street northwest will go to the new plant on special telephone cables.

Big Czech Shoe Firm May Build In Maryland

Purchase of Tract Along Bush River by Bat'a Is Reported.

By the Associated Press.

Aberdeen, Md., Aug. 18.—Reports were current here today that the Bat'a Shoe Co., of Czechoslovakia plans to build "by next spring" a huge plant in Harford County.

G. H. Pouder, executive vice president of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, said that the company had purchased 200 or 300 acres of farm land along the Bush River near here and contemplated erection of a complete self-sufficient housing development for its workers.

"We have nothing definite on when the plant will be built," Pouder said, "but we've heard it is to be started by next spring. The company's representative—the only person able to speak authoritatively—has returned to Czechoslovakia."

Chief Engineer Nathan L. Smith of the State Roads Commission said that the commission had an agreement, several years old, with the Bat'a group, providing the commission would build a road into the company's plant when and if the plant is built.

Sears, Roebuck Sales 11.5% Under Last Year

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—Sears, Roebuck & Co., reported today sales of $33,146,451 for the seventh period, July 18 to August 13. Compared with the corresponding period a year ago this represented a loss of $3,120,100, or 8.6 per cent.

Sales for the first seven periods this year totaled $258,132,811, a loss of $33,515,825, or 11.5 per cent, compared with the $291,648,636 sales for the corresponding seven periods in 1937.

Nickel Plate to Refund $15,000,000 Notes

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the New York, Chicago & St. Louis (Nickel Plate) Railroad Co. to issue $15,000,000 of promissory notes in exchange for an equal amount of promissory notes due October 1.

The commission also authorized the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Co. to pledge $11,623,000 of its bonds as collateral security for outstanding notes. The Pittsburgh & West Virginia also received permission to issue $250,000 of promissory notes.

Bituminous Production.

The National Coal Association, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended August 13 as approximately 6,050,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1937, 7,691,000 tons; 1936, 7,775,000 tons.

The Market

By C. Norman Stabler, A Special Correspondent.

Prices Yield Slightly as Traders Worry Over Curtailment in Volume.

New York, Aug. 18.—The stock exchange was open for business today but traders must have thought it was a legal holiday. A few drifted into the financial district but the sum total of their business on the big board was 446,610 shares, the smallest since just before the boom got under way on June 20. A continuation of the recent irregularity led them to question whether the rise in prices, which was of five weeks' duration, was just a flash in the pan or whether the current dullness is nothing more than a resting spell which will only interrupt temporarily a more extended advance.

The answer is tied up in the answers to such questions as how business will be this fall, what will be the trend of commodity prices, will there be a major European war and can we expect any change in the Administration's attitude toward business. Not even the seventh son of a seventh son could supply convincing replies to these and other knotty problems faced by security markets and until the visibility lifts a bit the prospect is for a few more weeks of irregularity.

The range within which stocks changed hands today was in line with the light volume. General weakness prevailed during a good part of the session, but there was a fair recovery in late dealings and the composite average recorded a negligible loss of 0.06 point. This followed three days of advances, which in turn had followed six days of declines. Throughout this entire period the total price change on the average has been slight.

The motor and manufacturing groups gave the best performance today and the steels held fairly well. In all groups the fluctuations were mostly fractional. Of the 630 issues traded in, 161 advanced while 295 declined and 147 were unchanged.

Dividend News.

Unfavorable dividend action by two leading corporations, National Dairy Products and International Harvester, did not excite the market as the reductions had been pretty well discounted. Harvester gained a fraction and National Dairy was down slightly. But while these stocks did little, the fact that these and numerous other important corporations have been forced to reduce or omit their usual payments to stockholders was discussed in connection with the word from Washington that President Roosevelt wishes to restore the undistributed profits tax.

The better tone in the motors yesterday brought gains to Chrysler, General Motors and Yellow Truck, the first named being the day's most active stock and adding 1⅝ points.

Tire issues kept pace with the motors, activity and strength being noted in United States Rubber, Goodrich and General Tire & Rubber. Aviation issues closed with little change, as did the gold stocks. United States Steel was up a good fraction. Atchison did well in the rail division but Union Pacific was off 2 in light dealings.

Unfavorable crop developments in Canada and reports that the Dominion's crop had been overestimated brought a rally in the wheat market of 1¼ cents but with low North American export takings there was a later reaction, futures ending the session ⅛ to ⅜. In cotton, sentiment was dampened by the unfavorable picture of the cotton situation as painted by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Futures closed down 3 to 7 points.

Special attention was accorded traction securities when the constitutional convention in Albany approved an amendment enabling New York City to issue $315,000,000 of bonds to finance unification. Sharpest gains were made in the bonds of affected systems, but stocks also did better, B. M. T. moving up about a point and the preferred 1⅛. The 4½s of this system gained 3½ and gains in Interborough obligations ran around 1 and 2 points.

Traction Bonds.

Bond trading on the New York Stock Exchange was slow and prices in most quarters were inclined to weakness today. The outstanding exception to the moderate downward trend of prices was provided by the local traction issues. The utility issues also were in some demand, leading to higher prices for a number of issues.

Traction bonds were firm on the news that the constitutional convention had approved an amendment placing outside of New York City's debt limit the $315,000,000 of bonds necessary to exchange for traction issues in the unification plan. Brooklyn- Manhattan Transit 4½s of 1936 climbed 3½ points, and the Interborough Rapid Transit refunding 5s of 1966 advanced 2 points.

United States Government bonds were mildly reactionary on the whole, but gains were interspersed with losses. Considerable discussion is going on in the market as to the Treasury's quarter date financing plans. Dealers are tending to lighten their portfolios and banks are taking profits here and there against the possibility that the Treasury might raise some new money next month.

Second-grade rail bonds suffered from profit taking, and losses among them were the rule. Some of the better grade rails also lost ground. The index of 30 bonds receded .03 of a point, with ten rails off .02, the five second-grade rails off .08, the ten industrials off .12, and the five utilities up .16 of a point.

Lower Crops In Canada Lift Wheat Prices

Chicago Values Advance 1¼ Cents But React in Later Trading.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Authoritative reports that the Canadian crop has been greatly overestimated gave Chicago wheat values 1¼ cents' brisk advance today, but gains failed to hold well.

B. W. Snow, a leading Chicago expert, wired from Yorktown, Saskatchewan Province, that stem rust had taken a frightful toll, and that the Marquis variety of wheat in Canada would prove a failure beyond anything ever before seen. He said the total yield of Canada's three prairie provinces would fall well below 295,000,000 bushels of millable wheat.

Numerous recent forecasts have indicated 350,000,000 bushels. A handicap, however, to friends of higher prices was that the Winnipeg market showed a tendency to drag, with new export takings of North American wheat amounting to little.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅛ to ⅝ higher, compared with yesterday's finish; September 63¾@63⅞; December, 65⅛@66. Corn, ⅛ off to ⅜ up; September, 52; December, 48½@48⅝. Oats unchanged to ⅛ off; rye varying from ⅛ decline to ¼ advance, and provisions down 7 to 16 cents.

Two Officials to Quit N. Y. Stock Exchange

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Dean K. Worcester, vice president of the New York Stock Exchange, and Robert L. Fisher, exchange secretary, are resigning their positions October 1, it was announced today.

Worcester has been with the exchange since August, 1929, and has been vice president for the past three years. Exchange circles pointed out that prior to the election of the new full-time salaried president, William McC. Martin, jr., Worcester, as vice president was in reality the chief administrative officer. The exchange presidency had been an honorary post, bearing no salary.

Fisher has been with the exchange since September, 1933, and has been secretary for the past three years.

First Federal's Loans Pass Million Mark

New loans made by the First Federal Savings and Loan Association have gone over the $1,000,000 mark for the first time, Carl H. Ellingson, manager, said yesterday.

These loans, advanced since the First Federal opened for business in March, now total $1,001,350. The "cash intake" of the new association, which took over the closed Fidelity Building and Loan Association, also has topped $1,000,000 since March, Mr. Ellingson reported.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP). (United States Department of Agriculture)—Most killing classes of cattle sold actively and strong today. Medium weights and lightly finished steers sold strong to 15 higher. Lambs laso strengthened, but the hog market remained bearish and prices were weak to 15 cents lower.

Cotton Yields To Hedge Sales

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Cotton lost some of its recent advances today under moderately increased hedge selling. Demand was slow. December sold off from 8.35 to 8.30 and closed at the low with final prices 3 to 7 points net lower.

The market opened 1 point higher to 2 lower with steady Liverpool cables offset by a little more Southern selling and light foreign offerings. Demand was limited chiefly to trade price fixing in near months. Reports a cotton loan announcement would be made next week caused traders generally to continue their waiting attitude.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil was steady early today on local covering but reacted under renewed liquidation and commission house selling promoted by disappointing trade demand and the action of the lard and hog markets. Final prices were 4 to 6 points net lower. Sales were 62 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal: September closed, 8.11; October, 8.12; December, 8.11; January, 8.13; March, 8.17.

R. Hoe & Co. Sells British Subsidiary

Fred L. McCarty, president of R. Hoe & Co. Inc., announced today that the company's stockholders had approved the proposed sale of the company's English subsidiary, R. Hoe & Co., Ltd., which for many years has manufactured printing presses of British Hoe design and printers' machinery and supplies.

Under the plan practically all assets of R. Hoe & Co., Ltd., will be sold to R. W. Crabtree & Sons, Ltd., at a price approximating £470,170 (about $2,280,000), the purchaser having the option to pay £75,000 of the purchase price in notes.

Brokers' Loans Rise $9,000,000 in Week

The Federal Reserve Board reported today that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $508,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented an increase of $9,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $1,136,000,000.

Virginia Electric Plans Refunding

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Virginia Electric & Power Co. announced today that its directors had authorized officers to consider the refunding of the company's $3,500,000 first and refunding mortgage 4 per cent bonds due in 1955.

The company, a subsidiary of Engineers Public Service Co., serves many communities in Virginia and North Carolina.

Foreign Markets.

London, Aug. 18 (AP).—Prices fluctuated irregularly on small turnover in the stock market today. Transatlantics ended about steady. Domestic rails improved. Kaffirs moved evenly and coppers were neglected. Oils partially recovered early losses. Weakness in rayons featured an idle industrial group. British funds turned higher, while Japanese loans dipped a trifle.

Paris, Aug. 18 (AP).—A firm tone developed in the bourse today following Premier Daladier's statement against further devaluation of the franc. Rentes were 40 to 50 centimes higher. Bank of France dipped 140 francs, while Royal Dutch lost 30 and Suez Canal 305 francs.

Liverpool, Aug. 18 (AP).—Cotton futures closed unchanged to 1d higher today as trade and local buying absorbed light Bombay selling. Contracts otherwise were scarce. After a small opening decline, wheat futures fluctuated irregularly to finish ½d lower to ¾d higher. A reduced Canadian crop estimate was balanced by liquidation of October against buying of distant months.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, Aug. 18.—FLOUR—Receipts, 4,928 barrels. Market steady. Bank Clearings Turn Upward During Week

But Total for 22 Cities Is 12.2 Per Cent Under Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 18.—Although rising quite sharply from the low level of the week preceding, volume of bank clearings for the current period continued under the total for the same 1937 week. The drop, however, was considerably shortened from that reported a week ago.

Aggregate clearings for 22 leading cities of the United States for the week ended Wednesday, August 17, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., amounted to $4,674,850,000, against $5,326,912,000 last year, a loss of 12.2 per cent. The year-to-year comparison for the preceding period showed a decline of 18.2 per cent.

The week's turnover at New York increased to $2,765,232,000, but was still 9.2 per cent under the $3,046,804,000 for the like 1937 week. For cities outside of New York the amount was $1,909,618,000, compared with $2,280,108,000 last year, or a decrease of 16.2 per cent.

Bank clearings at leading cities, together with percentage declines from a year ago, follow:

Engineering Awards Higher Than Year Ago

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday were slightly above the comparable total last year, although substantially below the high level a week ago, the Engineering News-Record reported today.

Awards totaled $44,479,000, compared with $76,431,000 the week before and $43,341,000 in the 1937 period. Construction for the year to date totaled $1,656,628,000, against $1,638,159,000 last year, a gain of 1.1 per cent.

Idle Bank Funds Up $10,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board estimated yesterday that $2,930,000,000 of lendable funds were held by the banks on August 17, an increase of $10,000,000 over a week ago.

The increase was due to Treasury spending and a slight increase in reserve bank credit. Money in circulation increased $19,000,000 during the week to $6,485,000,000.

Large Utilities Take First Step In Integration

Com. & South. and Cities Service Plan Transfer of Properties.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 18.—The first definite step on the part of big utility systems to comply with the integration provisions of the Federal public utility holding company act has been taken by Cities Service Co., and Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, well informed sources said today.

The two companies, among the biggest in the field, are negotiating a contract by which Cities Service would sell its Michigan properties to Commonwealth. It was to be followed by negotiations—subject to prior blessing by the Securities and Exchange Commission—for the sale of Cities Service Ohio properties to Commonwealth.

The first step has double significance, observers said, indicating that Cities Service may withdraw from the utility field and that Commonwealth may set up an "Adrian division," a completely integrated electric system with Michigan as the hub, utilizing most of the Northern properties of Commonwealth. Such a step was expected to forestall a court test by Commonwealth of the so-called "death sentence" provision of the act.

Units Affected.

The chief Cities Service subsidiary affected was the Citizens Light & Power Co., operating in and around Adrian, Mich., and supplying 21 townships in Lewanee and Monroe counties and 28 communities with an estimated population of under 50,000.

Commonwealth's Consumers Power Co. supplies electricity, and in many cases gas to approximately 1,000 Michigan communities with estimated population of more than 2,000,000. Commonwealth, chiefly operating in the Southeast, has in addition to the "Adrian division" operating utilities in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana.

In the northeast corner of Ohio it controls the Ohio Edison Co. Cities Service controls Ohio Public Service Co., supplying 150 communities in northern Ohio with an estimated population of 280,000. It owns a high-tension line extending through the industrial section.

Cities Service has indicated intention of disposing of its electric subsidiaries in order to confine itself to the petroleum business, a step which would exempt the company from registration provisions of the act.

Cleric Warns Of Red Plan to Kill U.S.Church

Speaker Says $6,000,000 Spent in U. S. Annually to Destroy Religion.

More than $6,000,000 annually is being expended by the Communists in their attempts to destroy Christianity in America, declared the Rev. Maurice L. V. Bates last night at Kendall Baptist Church, addressing a joint meeting of Southwest congregations.

"Much of this amount is being contributed by wealthy but unscrupulous persons and by some international bankers who hope to be in the 'controlling minority' if the Communist Party ever gets the upper hand," charged the speaker, a student at the Southern Baptist Seminary.

"The Communists are even trying to gain control of the churches and the preachers through first gaining control of the students in the seminaries," he warned, adding that "not only are they threatening our tax-kept schools but also our denominational institutions."

Asserting that "socialism and communism are synonymous, differing only in method," he said that they both aim to nationalize everything and to destroy the church. The method of socialism is ballots and the method of communism is bullets, he told his hearers.

The Rev. Mr. Bates, who is scheduled to give several addresses here during the month, conducted an open forum after the meeting. He speaks at Maryland Avenue Baptist Church August 26 and at Anacostia Baptist Church August 28.

Elaine Barrymore Mother Divorced

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 18 (U.P.)—Mrs. Edna Jacobs, mother of Elaine Barrie Barrymore, today divorced her husband, Louis Jacobs, New York clothier.

Mrs. Jacobs told reporters that her duty was with her "dear Elaine and John." She referred to John Barrymore, whom Miss Barrie trailed halfway across the continent when he fled New York.

Mrs. Jacobs testified her husband often fell asleep in theaters, was late for dinner and "otherwise showed his complete indifference" to her. They were married 25 years.

Col. G. M. Russell, Army Journalist, Dead Here at 60

Col. George M. Russell, 60, holder of the Distinguished Service Medal and former editor of The Cavalry Journal, died Wednesday night at Walter Reed Hospital after a brief illness.

COL. G. M. RUSSELL.

A West Point graduate, he was commissioned a second lieutenant of cavalry in 1901. He was stationed in the Philippines from 1902 to 1905 and during the World War served as a major of Field Artillery and a lieutenant colonel in the National Army.

Col. Russell lived in Washington from 1931 to 1935, when he was attached to the office of the Chief of Cavalry and edited The Cavalry Journal. For the last three years he had been connected with the Organized Reserves in New York City.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mabel P. Russell, and a daughter, Miss Rosa P. Russell. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Rites This Morning For Charles Hunt

Funeral services for Charles W. Hunt, a Federal Trade commissioner from 1924 to 1932, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today at the Hines undertaking establishment, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Mr. Hunt died Tuesday at his home, 6925 Ninth street northwest. He was 72.

Born on a farm near Logan, Iowa, he graduated from the Iowa State College in 1888. He served two terms in the Iowa Legislature before he was appointed to the Federal Trade Commission by President Coolidge. At the time of his appointment to the Federal office he was secretary of the Iowa State Farm Bureau Federation.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Clara A. Hunt; two sons, Robert L. Hunt, of Arion, Iowa, and Walter J. Hunt, of St. Paul, Minn.; a daughter, Mrs. Harriet C. Harris, of Minneapolis, Minn., and 14 grandchildren.

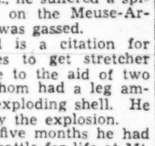
William Myers, Gassed Veteran, Loses Life Tilt

Had Fought Waning Battle Since World War; Dies in Hospital.

William Leedy Myers, 43, lost his battle against illnesses dating from the time he was gassed on the Meuse-Argonne front during the World War yesterday in Mount Alto Hospital.



WILLIAM L. MYERS.

Since returning from the war he had been treated in nine military hospitals. His last operation was early this year at Hot Springs, Ark.

During the war he served two years overseas with the 116th Machine Gun Company of the Virginia Volunteers in the Twenty-ninth Division. In training camp at Anniston, Ala., he suffered a spinal injury, and on the Meuse-Argonne front he was gassed.

In his record is a citation for walking 4 miles to get stretcher bearers to come to the aid of two pals, each of whom had a leg amputated by an exploding shell. He was deafened by the explosion.

For the past five months he had fought a losing battle for life at Mt. Alto Hospital. Only his determination to live kept him from dying long ago, said Mrs. Nellie M. Grisson, the sister with whom he lived here at 1485 Columbia road northwest.

Myers was born in Roanoke, Va.; was educated in public schools at Vinton, Va.; Harrisonville, Mo., and from Central Business College at Roanoke. Before going to war he was with the Bethlehem Steel Co. at Sparrows Point, Md. He had worked with the Government Accounting Office for four years until 1937.

Surviving are his father, Jacob Myers; three sisters and a brother in Roanoke, Mrs. Clara Martin, Mrs. Pauline Martin, Mrs. T. R. Ferguson, and John Myers; a sister, Mrs. Louella Monaca, Bethesda, Md.; and a brother, Charles B. Myers, of Los Angeles.

Myers was a member of the Kenneth Nash Post, American Legion, and the D. A. V.

Military funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow at the chapel at Arlington Cemetery. The funeral party will meet at 10:30 a. m. at Chambers funeral parlor, Fourteenth and Chapin streets northwest.

A. N. Mitchell Dies Of Typhoid Fever

Arthur N. Mitchell, 50, an employe of the Columbia National Bank for more than 30 years until his retirement in 1932, died of typhoid fever yesterday at his home, 908 South Carolina avenue southeast. He had been ill a week.

Mr. Mitchell was born in Liberty, Md., but moved to Washington when 11 years old. He attended grade schools and Business High School. He entered service of the bank after leaving school and worked his way up to cashier. He held this position when he retired because of poor health. He was a member of Lafayette Masonic Lodge.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary V. Mitchell; a son, Edward D. Mitchell, and a sister, Mrs. Edith Cadel, of Kissimmee, Fla. Funeral services will be held at the Lee funeral home at 2 p. m. tomorrow (Saturday). Interment will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Shark Bites Actor.

Hollywood, Aug. 18 (A.P.).—Warren William, screen actor, was under treatment at his Encino home tonight for a lacerated hand, received when a shark nipped him as he attempted to remove the hook. Dr. Stanley Gordon took seven stitches in his index finger and treated other gashes.

Soldier Won't Halt, Sentry Kills Him

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Aug. 18 (A.P.).—Sergt. Charles Bickford Smith, of Pikeville, Tenn., was shot and killed last night on the Fort Davis military reservation when he ignored a sentry's order to halt.

The sentry, Private Charles A. Leake, Company F, Fourteenth Infantry, was held for general court martial. Army informants said Smith, belonging to Battery C, First Coast Artillery, Fort Sherman, was motoring through the reservation with a girl companion when challenged three times by the sentry. When he failed to stop, the sentry fired once over the car. His second shot struck Smith in the back.

An Army Headquarters statement termed the shooting accidental.

Poison Clew Sought In Lamance Death

Laclede, Mo., Aug. 18 (A.P.).—Chemists in two cities studied visceral specimens today in an effort to determine whether poison might have caused the death of Mrs. Ella Lamance, whose husband, Dr. W. F. Lamance, is held for murder.

A professional friend of Lamance, a former amateur boxer who turned to osteopathy, submitted one sample to a Kansas City laboratory. Lamance's attorney, Lon R. Owen, said he was confident the report would "show poison, which will be convincing proof of suicide." A second specimen was scrutinized by a State chemist at Jefferson City.

Mrs. Lamance's body was found in a vegetable cellar at her home Tuesday night.

Hull Rejects Nazi Trade Pact On Their Terms

Expresses Willingness to Deal on Multilateral Basis.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Hull rejected Germany's offer of a trade arrangement founded on the German trade system, but expressed willingness to negotiate on the American basis of multilateral commerce.

Replying to a Berlin speech Wednesday by Dr. Rudolf Brinckmann, German secretary of state for economics, Hull said the United States naturally would be glad to find a basis for increasing trade with Germany.

The system upon which Germany operates, however, he said, is based on bilateralism (balance of trade as between two countries only) and barter.

Hull remarked that this not only runs contrary to principles on which the United States is making trade agreements, but usually winds up in failing to increase world trade.

Therefore, he continued, sympathetic as this Government is to the idea of increasing trade with Germany, so far it has been difficult to find a basis.

It is to be hoped, Hull added, that the international good will referred to by Dr. Brinckmann will be developed.

Boys Will Plunge For Pennies—One To Win YMCA Suit

About 90 boys are expected to take part in a "marked penny hunt" at 3:45 p. m. tomorrow, under auspices of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, in the pool in the boys' building at 1732 G street northwest.

A hundred pennies will be placed in the pool and one of them will be marked. The boys will dive in the pool and hunt for them. The boy who finds the marked penny will be awarded a Y. M. C. A. gymnasium suit. Each boy will be allowed to keep all the pennies he finds.

The affair, the second of a series of special events being staged in the pool, will be in charge of E. Holt Neese, associate boys' director.

Reventlow Flies To Venice; Kisses Barbara on Hand

Venice, Italy, Aug. 18 (A.P.).—Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow arrived at Venice today by airplane from Budapest for an hour's conference with his wife, the former Barbara Hutton, from whom he is separated.

The count's sudden appearance caused Venice society to speculate on the possibility of a reconciliation, but it was believed the meeting was merely another conference to arrange the affairs of the couple.

The countess waited in the lobby of her hotel for her husband's arrival. The two then went to a quiet corner of the hotel bar for their talk.

The count went to a different hotel to spend the night.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded, in Liber No. 7162, Folio 337 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, within the office of Thos. J. Owen & Son, 1431 Eye St., N.W., on MONDAY, THE 29TH DAY OF AUGUST, A. D. 1938, AT ONE O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being lot 800, Square 2872, 48.82 feet on Sherman Avenue and 55 feet on Florida Avenue, part of lot 16 in Wright's and Cox's subdivision of part of Pleasant Plains as per plat recorded in Liber Levy Court No. 2, Folio 25, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, and described as follows: Viz: Beginning for the same at the intersection of the westerly line of Sherman Avenue with the northeasterly line of Florida Avenue and running thence northwesterly along said line of Florida Avenue to the northernly line of said lot; thence easternly along said northernly line of said lot to the said westernly line of Sherman Avenue and thence south along said line of said Sherman Avenue to the point of beginning. Except so much of the above described land as is embraced in the part of said lot not included in the conveyance from John W. Wright and wife to the trustees of Asbury Mission, by deed dated April 30, 1875, and recorded in Liber 784, Folio 230, of the Land Records of the said District of Columbia.

TERMS OF SALE: ALL CASH. A deposit of $500.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise the trustee reserves the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Says—

There's an old sayin' that it takes two to make an argument and I've always found that one is jest about as much to blame as another.

I use'ta live with an aunt and an uncle till he started arguin' with her and it got so noisy, I had'ta move out.

Sometime later I met my uncle on the street and I asked him if the argument was still going on over at his house and he says, "No—the argument's all over with—I'm back to listenin' again."

Friction Delays Peace Plans of YouthCongress

Almost Every Delegate Has Different Proposal; Some Have 2.

By the Associated Press.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Delegates to the second World Youth Congress today found their path to an agreement on an international peace program impeded by the friction of divergent national, racial and religious ideals.

Almost every one of the 56 delegations had a different proposal, and the variations showed the representatives in many cases were strongly influenced by what they felt were the economic and political needs of their own countries.

Some delegations, like that from the United States, were prepared to submit two programs. Leaders of the congress hoped that through conference and discussion the 1,000 delegates and observers would agree on a peace policy to which the youth of all nations could subscribe.

Joseph P. Lash, of the United States group, suggested a basis on which all American youth groups could agree was Secretary of State Cordell Hull's statement—"No nation can hope to escape unaffected by what happens abroad."

Lash suggested that six points made by Secretary Hull might be included—the limitation and reduction of armaments, economic reconstruction, adherence to international law, the observance of treaties, abstention from the use of force, and collaboration between he nations.

"This is in essence really the good neighbor policy of which Mrs. Roosevelt spoke at the opening session," Lash told a Youth audience last night.

Pierre Lointier, a French delegate, said he was convinced the League of Nations offered the best hope for peace, although he felt some reforms were necessary in the organization.

14 Die in Crash Of Italian Plane

Rome, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Fourteen persons were killed today when an Italian passenger plane crashed at Varese north of Milan, it was announced by the government. The dead included Prefect Mario Chiesa, of Milan.

Borah 'Gaining Steadily' At Maine Health Resort

Poland Spring, Me., Aug. 18 (AP).—Senator Borah, of Idaho, today was reported "gaining steadily" against the serious illness from which he is convalescing here.

Fortification Proposal Of Belgians Is Attacked

Brussels, Aug. 18 (AP).—Reports of Belgian plans to build machine gun fortifications on the French-Belgian border drew the fire today of parliamentary and military critics. Communist Deputy J. Lahaut asked the Speaker of Parliament to summon the Chamber to discuss the reported fortifications.

Mrs. Mussolini Sails.

Lussin Piccolo, Italy, Aug. 18 (AP).—Rachele Mussolini, wife of Premier Mussolini, sailed today aboard the yacht Aurora for an Adriatic cruise which will take her outside Italy for the first time. She may go ashore in Yugoslavia.

Democrats Desert Murphy in Detroit

Detroit, Aug. 18.—Anti-New Deal Democrats headed by former Gov. William A. Comstock advanced their plans today to enter a complete third party ticket in Michigan's November election under the "Constitutional Democrat" banner.

"We have no chance to register our protest in the primary," he said. Gov. Frank Murphy, who Comstock said "isn't our kind of Democrat," is unopposed for renomination.

Hawkins Reports $9.21 Campaign Expenditures

By the Associated Press.

G. Tom Hawkins, of Praise, Ky., told the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee yesterday he spent $9.21 in his attempt to win the Republican nomination for Senator from Kentucky. It was all his own money, too.

Pennies Pay for Baby.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 18 (AP).—Charles Anderson, paying the hospital bill just before taking his wife and new son home, turned over 10,000 pennies in several jars. "I have been saving these pennies for 16 months," he said.
